Hunt Count Looks Good

TWEED (Special) — Ten percent of the hunters who went into the woods after deer this year shot an animal.

However, by the time the final tabulation is completed the number of lucky hunters could be doubled. Last year the number of hunters passing through check points with deer was 12 per cent of the number licensed. The final count brought the percentage of successful hunters to 22.4.

There were 2,970 licensed hunters in the area this year and so far, the ministry knows of 313 deer shot. Five moose, all bagged in McClure, Wicklow and Bangor townships have been checked, but the ministry believes the number killed this season will reach 40 to 45. Twenty-six bear have been shot.

Rural Council Seats Go Begging

Inability of farmers to hire competent help and unwillingness on the part of many city-working ruralites to take the time for civic duties are contributory factors in what appears to be a trend toward reduced rural municipal election slates.

This year in rural Hastings there were more than the average number of acclamations for municipal offices — in some instances entire councils being returned without a vote of the electorate.

One veteran clerk admits that so far there has been no difficulty in getting enough candidates to fill all seats but suggests that in recent years there seems to be a declining interest in holding public office.

William Barlow clerk of predominantly rural Rawdon township, says many farmers just don't care to take the time to serve in public office.

"They are too busy looking after their farm work and don't want to be bothered," he said.

Rawdon is one of the several county municipalities in which there is no election this year. The area public school board trustee has received acclamation three times in a row.

But acclamations are no exception in the township, with Mr. Barlow having 23 years in office, recalling that during one stretch Rawdon went eight years without an election.

He says, however, that always a good bunch of men qualify and they take their turns in passing through council to the office of deputy reeve and reeve.

For the convenience of council members, township council meetings are now held in the evenings, but Mr. Barlow says actually the meeting time doesn't make all that much difference.

"If meetings are in the afternoon, members have to quit early to do the farm chores if they are in the evening meetings can't start until the chores are finished."

Tyendinaga township is another municipality where council meetings are held in the evening — and again it is for the convenience of council members.

Clerk William Walsh notes that sometimes councillors are residents with jobs in town and they don't care to take time off to attend daytime council meetings.

"It wouldn't pay them to lose a day's pay at their regular jobs," he says.

Sidney township council meets in the evening, but Thurlow still holds with the old tradition and council meetings are day affairs.

The policy of council remuneration varies, but seldom in rural municipalities is the council pay sufficient to encourage public office.

Somewhere along the line there has to be a desire to serve and also a sense of civic responsibility.

In Tyendinaga, for instance, pay for regular council meetings is $20 a day. Pay for committee meetings is $15 a day.

But even with committee pay, the total amounts to only about $250.

In addition to regular council and committee pay, reeves and deputy reeves get per diem pay for attendance at county council and for serving on county council committees.

On the other hand council service in an urban centre such as Belleville is a bit more remunerative.

In the city, aldermen this year receive $2,800. This figure also covers committee work as city members receive no additional pay for service on council committees.

The office of mayor, now considered almost a full-time job, pays considerably more. The honorarium for the city's chief magistrate this year is $7,900 with the mayor receiving extra pay for serving on the public utilities and the police commission.

Whether or not the higher pay for city council service is an encouragement for candidates to offer themselves for civic office is a debatable question.

Parents Held Liable For Careless Children

Rodney J. Coyne, 70-Wright Ave., says he and all other motorists in the city are potential killers of young children.

The reason: young children walk carelessly down the middle of streets apparently unmindful of vehicular traffic, and in doing so place themselves in constant danger.

He feels it is the responsibility of parents to instruct their children in the way to use streets as they should and thinks there should be a city bylaw making them responsible for children's actions on the roadways.

Mr. Coyne stressed his point at Monday's traffic and light committee meeting citing a recent incident on Hander Drive when he had to turn out around a child walking down the centre of the roadway.

When he stopped and remonstrated, Mr. Coyne said the boy "looked at me as if I was crazy".

He said there was no necessity for the child walking on the roadway as there was a parallel gravel walkway along the street.

Mr. Coyne assured he was not being critical of city police or of Belleville's one safety officer.

He said Officer (R o b e r t) Hall was doing a superb job, but that when his services were spread among 12,000 elementary and secondary school pupils, the effect could only be limited.

"One safety officer is not enough," he urged, "at least two more are needed."

Also, Mr. Coyne said that detailed surveys should be conducted to show where sidewalks are most needed.

Also, he maintained that all bicyclists should be required to take tests before they were granted the right to ride on city streets.

This is done in the United Kingdom and it could be the same in Belleville, Mr. Coyne suggested.

City Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie said steps were now being taken to supplement Constable Hall's work as safety officer.

He said police realize, however, that the problem was getting through to parents to impress on them their responsibility.

The chief said his officer talks at home and school club meetings but unfortunately, this did not reach the right parents.

Mr. Coyne said he would like to see legislation providing fines of $100 for parents whose children disregard other traffic when using city streets.

Under present legislation Chief Crosbie said the only course open to police when children disregard traffic regulations is to take them before juvenile court and almost charge them as juvenile delinquents.

There was no answer forthcoming for a question from Alderman Orr as to whether there was any law prohibiting a pedestrian from walking on a roadway where there are sidewalks available.

Assisting Patient Back to Useful Life

Family Key to Stroke Recovery

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

The difference between success and failure of rehabilitation programs for stroke victims depends to a great degree on the relatives of the patient.

"Co-operation of the relatives is the most important factor of all in stroke rehabilitation," said Dr. J. S. Loynes, internal medicine consultant at Belleville General Hospital, during the third Rehabilitation Week public seminar Wednesday night.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hirst, senior occupational therapist — "call me Gill, pointed out, candidly, my work cannot be done without the help of the relatives."

Basic reason for this emphasis on the family, an audience of 70 people was told, is that relatives can either reinforce or wreck rehabilitation programs.

Ironically, relatives disrupt rehabilitation very often not by being neglectful but by being "too helpful." Dr. Loynes indicated.

Mrs. Hirst said that the partially paralyzed stroke victim will gradually be taught how to dress, bathe and feed himself at the hospital rehabilitation unit, indicating it is counter-productive for the patient to return home and have these things done for him.

"If the relatives are too helpful, the patient may become more and more frustrated," said Dr. Loynes.

Mrs. Muriel Stellter, assistant head nurse in the BGH rehabilitation unit, said the family of the stroke victim can aid hospital staff by pointing out to them the likes and dislikes of the patient so their stay in hospital can be made more pleasant.

She also stressed that it is important for the relatives to sit in on the patient's physiotherapy sessions to ensure that they are aware of the type of programs that should be followed once he returns home.

"We must also know the discharge situation," she said. "What is needed in the way of home care ... We try to bring in the relatives at an early stage to get them involved in the patient's program."

And Mrs. Denise Porter, BGH home care co-ordinator, indicated "part of the criteria for home care is the willingness of the relatives to participate in the rehabilitation program."

While letting the stroke victim return home from hospital largely on the relatives' ability to help maintain the rehabilitation program, Dr. Loynes emphasized "getting back in the home environment is a good morale booster."

Mrs. Porter added that, with the right co-operation from relatives, stroke victims "can cover well under home care situations in their own home surroundings."

Prior to the discussion an stroke rehabilitation last night, specialists involved in rehabilitation participated in a stage presentation in which physiotherapist Miss Margaret Owen acted as a stroke victim. Specialists demonstrated various therapy procedures that brought the stage patient from paralysis to a useful life at home.

Tonight the fourth public seminar in the Rehabilitation Week series, titled Council Can Be Beaten, begins in Education Hall at 8 p.m.

Cancer Topic At Hospital

Cancer Can Be Beaten is the theme of the fourth public seminar in Rehabilitation Week that begins in Belleville General Hospital's Education Hall at 8 p.m. tonight.

On the evening's program will be a film presentation followed by a panel discussion and question - and - answer period. Chairman for the event is Dr. J. S. Lee, Queen's University professor and director of Ontario Cancer Foundation's Kingston clinic.

Parade Will Go But Finances Slow

Loose ends were picked up Wednesday night in final planning stages of this year's Santa Claus Parade.

A record crowd of workers attended a meeting bringing progress reports on the various aspects of the parade, the consensus being all is proceeding well with Christmas pageant, scheduled for 10 a.m. Dec. 3.

More than 45 floats, with at least 100 costumed "walkers" will be included in the parade, equalling last year's Santa spectacular.

For those people who always wanted to be part of the parade, they will have their chance this year.

Costumes will be dispensed at the police station Friday, Dec. 3 between the hours of 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. If you come to Wallbridge Crescent (starting point of the parade) early enough Saturday morning, you'll even get a chance at riding one of the 25 "bunny bicycles."

In all, 70 units of bands, clown groups and floats will form the parade, which will follow the same route as last year, travelling south on Front, then through the market square and north on Pinnacle Street.

Complete details were not available, but projections from a committee spokesman indicate the parade may go in the hole financially this year, unless more donations come through.

With a small surplus from the previous year's budget and what funds could be raised from this year, one spokesman was, "no surplus money would be available to start next year with," showing an even bleaker picture.

Tag day, a major project of the committee, fell short of the previous year by $109. Total collection amounted to $1,613.

Some donations have not come in this year and those that did are generally small-er.

Trenton Sprucing For Christmas

TRENTON (Staff) — All the sights and sounds of Christmas cheer begin to fill the chilly winter air, plans for decorating Trenton's downtown shopping district begin to take shape.

Already town Public Utilities Commission workmen are hanging decorative displays from lamp posts, and now the Chamber of Commerce has announced plans for further Christmas decorations.

Local merchants have agreed to erect three 40-foot Christmas trees. One will be located on the site of Trenton's former post office, one at the front of the municipal parking lot, and the third in the market square lot next to the police station.

From Dec. 11 to 23, all stores will be open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday to Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturdays.

As well, plans are now under way to locate Santa's Workshop at a spot in the downtown area. The Jolly Old Elf will be on hand, with six helpers, distributing candies and listening to the Christmas wishes of children who claim her onto his ample lap.

School Board Contests Quiet

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

School board politics has drifted into the doldrums again.

After two issue - packed elections in 1968 and 1970, voters have turned their backs on board of education elections. It's back to the acclamation - as - usual route to a trustee's seat.

Only one contest will be held Dec. 4 for the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board. Two men are contesting the Tweed area seat following the resignation of the incumbent.

Elections will be held in three rural areas for the public school board — Tweed, Thurlow and North Hastings. Belleville almost elected its five trustees by acclamation but a newcomer filed his nomination at the 11 h hour, ensuring a contest.

James Clarke, first chairman of the Hastings County Board of Education after its formation in 1969, kicked off his initial election campaign to train his seat.

Public school taxes went down by about three mills in Belleville this year, he says. "In consequence, total property taxes didn't go up. This avoided the fate of municipal councils that had changed schools with quadded property taxes. The public didn't get upset."

The same argument applied to the separate school situation, where taxes were down this year by about two mills.

New industry and new houses have brought in extra assessment and broadened the tax base in the county.

"No one cares if the board of education budget goes up as long as property taxes go down," says Mr. Clarke.

All the old issues are dead. Big boards didn't turn out to be bad boards, as people feared in 1968, the liveliest election year for trustees since Ontario introduced public education.

At that time there were rumbles of discontent from the teachers employed by the many small boards that merged to form the larger systems.

In the four years of their existence, both the public and separate schools have solved the problems they inherited — chiefly poor school maintenance and poor supply allocations.

Teacher discontent was probably a greater factor in routing public reaction than most realized.

The sale of the boards, with most areas represented by only one trustee, has inhibited candidates, some trustees believe.

"What can you do for your people?" asked Mrs. Jean Hutchison, one of two Trenton trustees on the Hastings board of education. "With only one vote among 17 I can't guarantee anything."

And, she added, the boards have spread their spending around to all areas of the county on an equitable basis, removing any sources of local unrest.

Drunk Drivers Fortunate Here

TRENTON (Staff) — Comparing the penalties meted out in Canadian drunk drivers against those of other countries, is similar to recalling tales of the ultimate torture.

Bill Norman, a Trenton insurance adjuster, passes on five sentence comparisons received in a recent trade publication.

In Australia, the name of a driver convicted of impaired driving is sent to local newspapers to be printed under a standing heading, "He's Drunk and in Jail."

Malaysian offenders go directly to jail and if they are married, so do their spouses, whether or not they were in the car.

Drunk drivers in South Africa are given a 10-year jail sentence, a fine of $2,800, or both.

In Turkey, drunk drivers are taken out at 2am 100 miles and then forced to walk back under police escort.

But it is Sardinia that offers the most severe punishment for the driver who mixes drink with driving. Drunk drivers are executed by firing squads.

Trustees Handle Monster Budget

Seventeen trustees control one of the largest businesses in the Quinte area and do it for $2,400 a year each.

Only the CN might run a larger local operation than the Hastings board of education.

Its 17 trustees handled a budget of $22.5 million this year. They control, in total, the public $46 million in school buildings. And about 31 per cent of the property tax collected in Belleville goes for school purposes.

As a consequence, the budget of the corporation as the city of Belleville is $73.2 million. The city's 18 aldermen received $2,600 a year for carrying out their duties.

School trustees are protected by provincial legislation from shirking their duties. If they miss more than three consecutive meetings they are out. In cases of illness, the board can, on the written request of the trustee, pass a motion forgiving his absence.

Barbara Allen, Political Veteran

Women's Political Role Growing

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Emergence of women in public affairs is still an evolving political process.

Each municipal election in the Quinte area, for instance, sees a few more women count ed among candidates nominated.

But it's an evolution that's speeding up in the present and one day the contribution of women to public life will be taken for granted, believes Reeve Barbara Allen.

Such equality should be the natural state of public affairs anyway, indicates Mrs. Allen, since the president of the council is over, many women have that much more spare time.

This gives them a wider choice of life styles, although there will always be those who find sufficient fulfilment with the machine beyond the home environment.

Until the moment, public life remains male oriented.

For one thing, it's the lack of access to the impression that politics is rarefied and dirty," says the reeve. "But no more than any other pursuit. It's what you make it."

Then a lot of women think being feminine and being a politician are mutually exclusive terms. And they are not. Not any more than say cooking and being masculine are mutually exclusive."

An aura of the except one still seems to linger around female participation in public affairs. But such attitudes are "wearing away and I think, wearing away fairly quickly.

In historical perspective, it's not so many years ago that women even obtained the right to vote, recalls the reeve. Yet "it's not surprising many still cling to traditional roles and this spills over into politics."

But also precipitating faster change in attitudes is the extension of the franchise to an entirely new — and younger — generation, swelling the numbers of those who can actively influence policies of public styles. Combined differently, the younger voters bring fresh attitudes to bear on political traditions — including the role of women, says the reeve.

Wrong Row Woodie

Trenton Public Works employee Bill Sweet was putting finishing touches to part of the annual PW entry in this Saturday's Santa Claus Parade, when fellow worker Basil Weed decided to try out the display. The public works department usually takes top honors for its annual parade entries. Although they didn't want to spoil the fun by allowing photecrapns of all the display, the first promises to be one of the best in the 1:30 p.m. parade.

Santa in Trenton This Saturday

TRENTON (Staff) — To the beat of the drum, and the toot of the horn, Trenton's army of children and the tired but somewhat reminiscent members of Trenton's annual Santa Claus Parade will be on the full swing this Saturday commencing at 1:30 p.m.

And notwithstanding weather conditions, Grand Marshall Pete the Jolly Old Elf will be on hand in all the glory of red.

There had been some doubt whether or not the parade would take place this year, but there doubts have been completely dissolved. According to Jack Wilson, Trenton Chamber of Commerce manager, "the parade is go."

As in many such events, participation was slow to appear, but by Wednesday, a total of 48 floats, seven bands, three majorette corps and almost a dozen prancing horses and riders will brave the cold of Nov. 25 to bring Santa in style to Trenton.

At 1:30, from Trenton Community Gardens, the parade will wend its way through the downtown area, starting along Campbell Street, down Dundas East, across the swing bridge and through the business district to the dispersal point at St. Peter's School.

No order of appearance of floats or entrance has been announced by the Chamber of Commerce, but it's a safe bet that St. Nick will be saved for last.

When the parade is all over at Peter's school, the judges for the Trenton fire hall, Accurity guard is to be stationed at the door to allow only parade participants and organizers in.

As the marchers make their way downtown, they will be subjected to a tense of local residents, prizes to be awarded at later. The judges are Cpl. Trenton base commander Col. W. G. Poisley, Councillor M. Ted Parker, Rev. Michael Caswell of St George's, Councillor Walter Lyons of St. Peter's, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, Dr. John Boon, Robert Carleton, Mrs. James MacDonald, and Mrs. Eileen Fowler. Master of the Five-Watters Radio Association will act as parade marshal.

To date, a total of 101 cash or cheque donations to the parade fund have been received. Cost Organizers hope this amount will increase by the average received each year.

While the parade is under way, all parking meters along the route will be covered until the event concludes.

Brighten Up a Bit of those children in the parade received by Wednesday noon: Floats; Island Trenton Guards, Trenton Kiwanis Club, D and A Bowling Alley, St. Peter's Folk Mass Singers, Marmora Street Public School, Canadian Diabetic Association, Sixth Trenton Cub Pack, Trenton Department of Public Works, Trenton Lions Club, the "Trenton Rotary Club," Trenton Senior Cubs and Scouts, Canadian Flight Equipment, Trenton Kinsmen Club, Trenton Minor Baseball Association, Trenton Public Utilities Commission, Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate, Brighton Propane Gas, and Parents Without Partners.

Bands assembled in the parade are the Trenton Citizens Band, the Quinte Highland Band, CFB Trenton Pipe and Drum Band, the Pipe and Drum Band of Loc Brighton Legion, the Men of Note, the Belleville Lions Creek Band and the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps band of Belleville. Majorettes in the parade are the Prairie Edward High Steppers, Miss Majorettes from Belleville, and the Gail Chapman Majorettes, with their own drum corps.

Cahill Dumps CFL

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Cahill, deposed coach of Toronto Argonauts, called a news conference Wednesday to "make it crystal clear" that he has no desire to be coach or general manager of any Canadian Football League team.

Cahill was dumped by Argo owner John Bassett after the 1971 Eastern Football Conference champions finished last this year and missed the playoffs.

He said he called the conference to clarify his position following persisting rumors in Montreal that he was considering one or both of two Alouette jobs said to be available—those of coach Sam Etcheverry and general manager Jean J. Albrecht.

"I have not campaigned for the general manager or coaching job with Montreal Alouettes," said Cahill, "and I want to make it crystal clear that I don't plan to coach for Montreal or any other team in the Canadian Football League."

He added that he hoped "Sam and J.J. retain their places with Montreal indefinitely."

He explained that he has no interest in coaching elsewhere in the CFL because "after six years with the Argos I'd find it difficult to change allegiances."

Cahill said he was prepared for the ousting by Argos, which had been rumored for several weeks, "but it still came as a shock. . . . I still find it very difficult to accept."

His future remained clouded, but Cahill admitted he had talked to "some people down here (the United States) and I have an opportunity to go to a couple of staffs."

He did not elaborate what teams or what positions he had been considering in football, but said he had also been exploring some possibilities outside football.

Bullets Bomb Seattle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How do you stop a speeding bullet?

Seattle SuperSonics didn't have the answer Wednesday night and as a result, Baltimore Bullets took a 112-90 National Basketball Association victory behind speedy Elvin Hayes.

Hayes scored 23 points in a dazzling fast-break offense that powered the Bullets past the Sonics and back into first place in the Central Division.

In other NBA games, Boston Celtics dropped Portland Trail Blazers 126-107 and Houston Rockets crunched Golden State Warriors 132-104.

Led by Dave Cowens, the Celtics scored 40 points in the third period to take the win over Portland. Cowens scored 10 of his 33 points in that period and grabbed 10 rebounds to pace the Celtic slaughter.

Killy Returns to Slopes

DENVER (AP) — Jean Claude Killy, a 1968 Olympic grand slam skiing gold medalist from France, announced Wednesday his return to active professional competition.

Killy will make his debut this weekend in the Grand Prix season opener in Aspen, Colo., Nov. 24.

Killy, 29, who retired from active competition after his triple Olympic victories, said: "I am stronger now than I have ever been this early in any skiing season."

Killy and 150 other pros will be vying for more than $600,000 on the Grand Prix tour this season.

Keegan Gives Liverpool Win

LONDON (CP) — England forward Kevin Keegan scored in the last minute to give Liverpool a 1-0 victory over Leeds United in their Football League Cup fourth-round soccer replay at Leeds Wednesday night.

The match looked certain to go into extra time until Keegan headed the winner from a corner conceded by former England defender Jack Charlton. Liverpool will meet Tottenham Hotspur in the quarter-finals.

Chelsea moved into the semi-finals of the competition by whipping Third Division Notts County 3-1 with Peter Osgood scoring both for and against Chelsea. His second-half own goal gave Notts County a fleeting hope of springing an upset, but Steve Kember netted a clinching third goal for Chelsea.

International defender John Brownlie scored a 72nd-minute goal which earned Hibernian a 1-0 victory over Rangers and a place in the final of the Scottish League Cup against either Celtic or Aberdeen.

Sweden Says Pro Hockey Costly

STOCKHOLM (CP-AP) — Helge Bergland, president of the Swedish Hockey Federation, said Wednesday he does not believe in the future of a professional hockey league in Europe.

"I don't take the reports too seriously," he said.

"The costs will be too high. You must realize that a Swedish entry in the (proposed) six-club will cost at least $800,000 a year. That's why I don't think it is a threat to Swedish amateur hockey."

Plans were announced in September by Bruce Norris, owner of the National Hockey League Detroit Red Wings, and close associates to form a professional league in Europe.

Latest reports are that a pro league will have two Swedish teams and one each from England, Finland, Switzerland and West Germany. In addition, negotiations are reported going on in Moscow for a Russian entry, and Czechoslovakia might be included.

The Swedish federation formed a special committee to work with the pro project and study the future of Swedish hockey.

Bergland, a political figure in Sweden's Social Democratic party, not only said he refuses to take the pro circuit seriously but also gave the opinion that few Swedish players will turn professional with the NHL and World Hockey Association teams in North America.

"We don't have so many players of that calibre," he said. "We don't have to worry that our best players will leave Sweden."

Tommie Bergman, a defenceman, is with Detroit in the NHL this season. But of a dozen Swedes who received offers, only Ulf Sterner and Benny Johansson went to North America.

BC Won't Help Olympic Bid

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett said Wednesday it is "most unlikely" the British Columbia government will contribute financially to a plan to bring the 1976 winter Olympic games to the province. Mr. Barrett told reporters he has received no official representation from anyone connected with a Vancouver group making a bid to stage the winter games in B.C. and even if he had it would be unlikely that the government would get financially involved.

Bobick Still Amateur

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minneapolis Tribune says that United States Olympic boxing heavyweight Duane Bobick has not signed a long-term contract as a professional wrestler with Vern Gagne.

The Tribune quoted Gagne as saying he was only kidding when he told a Twin Cities newspaper that Bobick had signed a contract to become a pro wrestler. Gagne is a widely-known and wealthy professional wrestling figure.

The Tribune said Bobick is expected to sign a professional contract in a week to 10 days, but did not specify whether it would be for wrestling or boxing.

Bobick was the Olympic heavyweight favorite but was upset by Theofilo Stevenson of Cuba in the 1972 Summer Games at Munich.

Deer Hunters Face Big Odds

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

It's over for another year. The .308s are back in the gun racks. The aching leg muscles are back to normal and domestic relationships have almost reached that state.

Each year, thousands of hunters, bordercrs and bakers respond to that call of the wild, which the fraternity refers to simply as "The Hunt". To disinterested spectators it is known as the deer hunting season, while animal lovers and hunting "widows" have a few less printable epitaphs for the venture.

The question most often asked is, why? Why this Daniel Boone complex that hits seemingly sane, reasonably normal individuals in early November? Why voluntarily endure wet feet, frostbite and camp beans? Why leave a $20,000 split level for tarpaper shacks and outdoor privacy? Why not use your only wife for your favorite Walker? Why?

Maybe it's autumn sunshine or the swish of autumn leaves or a white blanket of early snow on black-green cedars. Maybe it's that prickly feeling you get along your backbone listening to the moan of hounds working a cold trail or the short roar of good dogs on a hot one. It could be the round of wind-blowing through miles of woods or the click of an ammunition clip in silence; camp coffee; tall cold ones around a woodstove, with tailor tales to match; no telephones and peace.

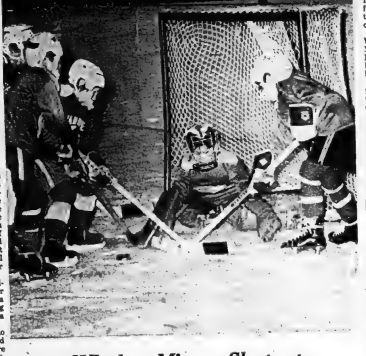
The reason certainly can't be an overwhelming chance of success. Early indications from the Department of Lands and Forests in Tweed show a success ration of 10.5 percent for hunters in last area.

Ron Baldwin of the department stresses that "this is only a preliminary figure. It's taken from our five check stations. The final one could be close to double that, but we can't determine it until we get our hunting camp reports and mail replies and some of those may not be available 'til next spring." Officials expect the final kill ratio to equal last year's of roughly 20 per cent.



While wet weather conditions may have meant fewer deer this season, Tweed area hunters were at least getting more trophies, along with a mixed game bag.

Of the 313 deer checked into stations at Eldorado and Northbrook, 48 per cent were bucks. This figure represented a significant increase over 1971 in the number of racks collected. Does accounted for 72 per cent of the total figure, while fawns were 20 per cent.

The "mixed bag" came from a major increase in the number of black bears shot. The check stations reported 26 blacks, roughly five times the number checked through the previous season. Five moose were also reported at Eldorado and Northbrook, with game officials estimating the total kill at about 40. Most of those were taken in the three Hastings townships north of Bancroft.

The slim one-in-ten, or even one-in-five chances of success point out one thing. Hunting isn't everyone's cup of tea and it has more than its share of critics, but at least it's one sport where playing the game counts for more than the final score.

Defence Proves Key to Loyalist Hockey Success

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

The Loyalist Lancers will have their weaponry polished and waiting to take on Ottawa's Algonquin College in an Ontario College Athletic Association hockey game Friday. The Lancers go into their fourth regular season game against Algonquin with a 3-0 record.

Bruce Cameron, the coach of the Loyalist team, attributes the success of the Lancers to their defence.

"The defence is really strong this year," said coach Cameron, "I think this is the secret to our 3-0 record. This year we beat Peterborough's Sir Sandford Fleming, our arch rivals, for the first time in five or six years."

The Lancer's defence consists of two pairs of burly players. Barry Titterson, who is in OCAA's eastern division's top nine with three goals and six assists, pairs up with Doug MacKenzie. Titterson tried out for the Senior A Belleville Quintes last year, while MacKenzie played for Bishop in the Quebec University Athletic Association.

Wally Brown, the captain of the Lancers, and Ross Howe make up the other pair of goalie guards. "Our defence," said Cameron, "has kept our shots on goal down to not over 35 in each of this year's games. They rush the puck well out of our end, and check the opposition forwards when they get to our blue line."

BRIAN HELMER

Cameron considers not only the defence but also back checking as the keys to the Lancers success so far this season. "If I'm not happy with their performance, I come down on them to get results," said the coach. "They've learned to backcheck hard and to take the breaks when they come and put the puck into the net."

REID MALLORY

The lack of penalties in Lancers' games does nothing but help them, according to Cameron. The Loyalist team is at the top of the six team league in lack of penalties. The Lancers have 38 minutes against them, as opposed to Cornwall's 47 who follow, and Peterborough at the bottom of the standing with 97 shorthanded minutes.

The praise of the defence and the excellent goal minding of Mike Caine and Brian Helmer, in no way detracts from the excellent efforts of the Lancers' forwards, according to Cameron.

The coach said, "The Dave Wright - Reid Mallory - Bill MacDonnell and the Dave Ferguson - Barry Remington - Barry Rountree lines have been doing excellent work."

Centre Mallory, who tallied plays for Reid's Dairy in the Quinte Hockey League, is the other Loyalist scorer on the league's top nine goal getters. With eight goals and two assists, he holds third place behind two Algonquin and a Cornwall player.

The Lancers' second line are all first year players. Both Barrys are from teams in Napanee, while Ferguson played with Picton's Junior B team last year after a season with Belleville Fairways. Both forwards and defencemen will be playing at Dick Ellis Rink under the Loyalist banner this Friday evening against Ottawa's Algonquin College, the only other undefeated team in the eastern division.

"We're not over-confident," said Cameron about the contest, "but we should make a strong showing. The game should be close."

Hull Back in Uniform

HOUSTON (CP) — Bobby Hull, the Golden Jet of Winnipeg Jets, will be back in uniform tonight, thanks to a court ruling in Chicago Wednesday.

If Hull and his lawyer have correctly interpreted the ruling by the Illinois Appellate Court, the order restraining him from playing in the World Hockey Association will not be enforced for the remainder of the season.

The restraining order was issued by Circuit Court Judge Francis Delaney in Chicago Monday. That kept Hull out of Tuesday night's game in Houston.

However, the order was appealed and over-ruled Wednesday.

Judge Delaney said he issued the order because the WHA hadn't posted a $2.5 million bond as ordered by a federal court last month.

The federal court in Philadelphia denied a claim by Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League that Hull belonged to them under the NHL's reserve clause. However, the court said that the WHA must post the $2.5 million bond to indemnify the NHL in case the decision was reversed in another court.

When the restraining order was issued, Hull said he'd play in Houston anyway. However, when he learned an appeal had been lodged he decided against it.

"I think our going according to law had a lot to do with winning the appeal," Hull said Wednesday night. "When we were told by the courts to do certain things, we did them. But it was tough."

Hull jumped from the Black Hawks to the Jets in July, apparently for a $2.75 million, long-term contract. He missed the first month of the WHA schedule awaiting a ruling on several lawsuits filed concerning his status and the status of other former NHL players.

He said Wednesday he was happy that he'd be able to play again, but said he did not think his legal battles with the Black Hawks were over.

William Wirtz, president of the Black Hawks, said when informed of the latest ruling: "What we want is the WHA to post the bond and Hull can play all he wants . . . but we are going to pursue all legal processes up to the Supreme Court."

Hull said: "I'm sure they (the Black Hawks and the NHL) will seek to find another loophole to stop me and the WHA, but they've got to be running out of angles.

"I think now it's going to be clear sailing ahead for the WHA."

Blazers Losing Fan War

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports fans allegedly love an underdog, but that apparently isn't the case in Philadelphia.

Fans in the City of Brotherly Love had a chance to cheer an underdog Wednesday night, but most chose not to do so.

The Blazers, winners of only three games in the struggling World Hockey Association, were playing the powerful Alberta Oilers, but only 4,191 fans showed up to watch.

Across town, the Flyers of the successful and established National Hockey League attracted 16,800 to a game with New York Islanders.

Both Philadelphia teams won and both came back in the third period to do so, but the Flyers made money at the gate while the Blazers undoubtedly lost it.

The Flyers scored four times in the last period to defeat the Islanders 5-3 while the Blazers, probably the highest-paid losers in the world, scored three times in the third period and Andre Lacroix scored in overtime for a 5-4 win over the Oilers.

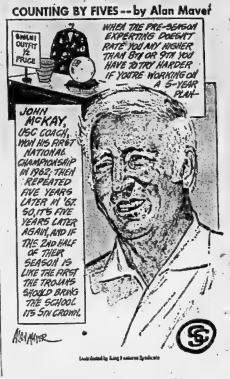
The Blazers remained last in the Eastern Division with eight points.

The Blazers signed Derek Sanderson and John McKenzie from Boston Bruins and Bernie Parent from Toronto Maple Leafs to big-money, long-term contracts. However, only McKenzie played Wednesday — the others are injured.



Alberta jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first period on Bill Hicke's eighth goal of the year. Donny Lawson tied it in the second, but Rusty Patenaude restored Alberta's lead.

In the exciting third period, Brian Conacher made it 2-1 for the Oilers, then Brian Campbell scored for Philadelphia, but Ron Walters put Alberta ahead 3-2 with less than five minutes left.

Then the Blazers got going. Lawson got his second of the game and Don Merriman tied it up at 17:59. The loss for the Oilers was their second in overtime in as many nights.

Ron Ward scored twice for New York in the win over the Whalers. The winner came from Bobby Sheehan this 15th goal of the season.

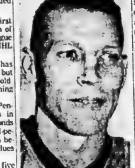
Penguins Tied at Top

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Penguins are long on alliteration with Schinkel and Schock, Polis and Pronovost; and high on a kid called McDonough.

They're also tied for first place in the Western Division of the National Hockey League and are holders of an NHL goal-scoring record.

The alliterative aspect has been there for a while, but being top of the heap and holding a record, that's something else.



Wednesday night, the Penguins rattled in five goals in two minutes and seven seconds during a seven-goal, third-period blitz as they came from behind to thrash St. Louis Blues 10-4.

The fastest previous five goals were scored in three minutes, 46 seconds by New York Rangers in 1943.

One of the five goals came from Al McDonough and it was his third of the night—the third time he's done that this year. He has 11 goals this season.

The outburst started at the 12 minute mark of the third period with Bryan Hextall scoring, then came goals by Jean Pronovost followed by McDonough, Ken Schinkel and Ron Schock.

The win put Pittsburgh in a tie, top, tied with Minnesota North Stars who downed Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 and Los Angeles Kings who battled Montreal Canadiens to a 3-3 tie. All have 23 points.

KEN SCHINKEL

In other games, Philadelphia Flyers downed New York Islanders 5-3, Detroit Red Wings beat Buffalo Sabres 6-2 and Chicago Black Hawks beat Vancouver 5-2.

The Western Division race is one of the tightest ever with only two points separating the top six clubs. Behind the top three comes Chicago and Philadelphia, each with 22 points, then Atlanta Flames with 21.

McDonough came to Pittsburgh from Los Angeles last year and while he scored only seven goals in 37 games, the club was convinced he could be a big scorer, as he was in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league with Ste. Catharines Black Hawks.

There was a flurry of fast goals in Philadelphia, too, with the Flyers scoring four in 10 minutes during the last period to overcome New York Islanders 5-3.

Down 3-1 after two periods, the Flyers got goals from Bill Barber, Gary Dornhoefer, Bill Clement and Bobby Clarke to take the decision.

Busiest man in the game—and probably in the league—was New York's goalie Bill Smith who faced 60 Philadelphia shots—19 in the first and third periods and 22 in the second. Doug Favell faced only 24 in the Philadelphia net.

The win kept the Flyers in the thick of things in the West while the Islanders remained in the East basement.

'Contain Ealey'--Gotta

OTTAWA (CP) — "Contain Ealey" was the message Ottawa coaches drummed into their Rough Riders last week as the players got ready for the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference finals against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

That mission accomplished to the tune of a 19-7 victory, the message this week is "that 12-point lead doesn't mean a thing."

Twice within the last dozen years or so an Ottawa team has gone to Hamilton with 12 and 17 point leads only to get swamped by Tiger-Cats and bounced from the Grey Cup game. That was in 1960 and 1964.

Coach Jack Gotta didn't even wait until last Saturday's game was over before striding back and forth in front of his players' bench muttering, "Those 12 points aren't enough."

Gotta wanted 22 if he could get them, he explained later. Playing on the Hamilton field this Sunday and leading by 15 points was like starting the game even-steven.

Gotta also remembered going into Calgary with Saskatchewan Roughriders trailing the Stampeders 35-9 only to win the 1963 Western semi-final 48-47 by outscoring the Stamps 39-12 in the second game.

The Rider defence was awesome at times Saturday and quarterback Rick Cassata enjoyed perhaps his best day in two years as a Rider.

"If we don't come on in Hamilton just where we left off here, those points won't be nearly enough," echoed assistant coach George Brancato this week.

"Because you know those Hamilton guys will be ready to play."

Western League To Meet Soviets

SEATTLE (AP) — A four-game series between the Soviet Union's national champions and Western Hockey League teams was announced Wednesday by Bill MacFarland, WHL president.

The first game with Seattle Totems is scheduled here Christmas night. The Soviets will play Phoenix Dec. 27, then participate in the world championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., and Minneapolis, Minn.

The Soviet team will meet San Diego Jan. 3 and wind up the WHL series against Portland Dec. 31.

"This won't be an all-star team," MacFarland said. "But it will be the best of their national teams."

The Riders were to hold their final practice of the week in Ottawa today. The frozen practice field was given poor footing and Gotta has decided to pack up and go to Hamilton Friday, a day ahead of schedule, to work out on the artificial turf at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

There has been some critics of Cassata for attempting a long pass late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game. It was intercepted and paved the way for Hamilton's only touchdown.

Gotta doesn't join in the criticism. He said Cassata thought Hugh Oldham was in the clear and saw the chance for another Ottawa touchdown.

The final game of the conference two-game, total-point series is scheduled for 2 p.m. EST Sunday with the winner to advance to the Grey Cup national championship against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Hamilton Sun. Dec. 3.

The game will be televised on CTV.

Lothridge Tunes In

MIAMI (AP) — Billy Lothridge was switching television channels between the Miami-New York Jets and Dallas-Philadelphia games Sunday when an unfurry thing happened to Dolphin punter Larry Seiple that brought Lothridge out of retirement.

"I saw Seiple get hit," Lothridge said Wednesday after he arrived to replace the Miami kicker who was sidelined indefinitely with damaged knee ligaments. "It never entered my mind that I'd be here on Wednesday, even when they carried him off."

But early Wednesday, with an unseasonably cool 60-degree wind at his back, Lothridge was booing 60 yarders at a Miami Dolphins' workout.

Lothridge, a kicking specialist, punted 328 times in eight professional football seasons for an average of 40.8 yards before being cut by Atlanta Falcons last September.

Don Shula, coach of the only undefeated team in the National Football League this season, called Lothridge Monday and offered him Seiple's job.

Lothridge, 30, has also played with Dallas and Los Angeles.

Goring Moves Up

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens tailed to pick up any points in Canadiens' 3-3 tie with Los Angeles Kings Wednesday night but remained in first place in National Hockey League scoring with 21 points, one more than Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, who did not play.

However, Butch Goring of Los Angeles picked up two assists to move into third place, just ahead of team-mate Ralph Backstrom, and Rangers' Rod Gilbert. Gerring now has 13 goals and 16 assists for 29 points.

Palmer's Clubs Help Rookie

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C.) (AP) — Australian David Graham, a rookie on the American pro golf tour, parlayed the trade of a putter to Arnold Palmer into $120,000 this season.

"I'd won my player's card last year then went back to Australia for three tournaments and was just playing awful," the 26-year-old Aussie recalled today before teeing off in the first round of the $125,000 Heritage Classic.

"Coming back on the plane, I was sitting with Jack Nicklaus and he asked if he could buy me in any way. Awfully nice of him. He didn't have to do that."

VISITED HOME

Graham said he later visited Nicklaus' home in Lost Tree Village, Fla., "and he took me into his club room and told me to take any clubs I wanted."

"I guess I picked out 15 or 18 clubs and played with them most of the early part of the year.

"But the thing was that they're too short for me and too much upright. Jack uses awfully short clubs. So I was still playing bad.

"I was on the practice tee with Arnold at the U.S. Open in Pebble Beach and he saw a putter in my bag that he liked. He asked me about it. I told him it was the one I was using but I'd trade it to him. He wanted it. I now what I wanted for it.

"I told him I'd take a matched set of his clubs.

"He said that was a pretty strong trade and I told him I was giving him a putter I was using on the tour. We went to a car and the clubs have been in the trunk. He dug out a set of matched clubs and told me to try them.

"They were just right.

"Since then I've won close to $20,000 using them."

Graham, a former World Cup champion, used Jose clubs—and Palmer's regular tour caddy—to win the Carefree Classic.

ROME (Reuter) — Bob Lutz of the United States beat top seeded John Newcombe of Australia Wednesday night in the first round of the $30,000 World Championship Tennis winter final. Arthur Ashe of the U.S. plays Nikkie Pilic of Yugoslavia, and Tom Okker of the Netherlands plays American Marty Riessen in today's other first-round matches in the eight-man playoff.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, NOV. 24

Aries (March 21-April 19): However you manage it, the easiest course you can find is the best under present circumstances. Social activity comes to a high.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing contributes directly to our progress through a complex low-key day. Find patience for a philosophic mood.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do no more than you must on serious business. Where you've kept something secret, pops out quite easily.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The questions you ask reveal mainly flaws in needs for things you could ready reach. Let people find their own direction.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Peacekeeping turns out to be a valuable talent among your regular associates. You have the knack—use it!

Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 22): However you manage it, the easiest course you can find is the best under present circumstances. Social activity comes to a high.

Arteritis Means Inflamed Artery

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain artery-itis? My doctor says it is different from arthritis. In what way? Is there a cure? I'm 60 and have had this trouble for 11 years. The arteries are affected on my left temple and above my eye.

It's arteritis—and distinctly not arthritis, arthritis being an affliction involving joints, while arteritis involves arteries.

Best description of it would be inflammation of the arteries, and yours evidently is the form of it known as temporal arteritis, with arteries around the temple being primarily involved.

Technically, arteritis is one of the group of ailments known as collagen diseases, which perhaps isn't of much help to you. The collagen diseases involve the connective or supporting tissues of the body. Frankly, we don't know nearly as much about the collagen diseases as we would like to know or as we need to know. In fact, the cause of the collagen diseases is not known—including arteritis.

So, unfortunately, what we know is that these diseases exist, and we know pragmatically what to do. The cortisone type can lessen the discomfort and reduce the tendency to recur. Such treatment has to be on a long-term basis.

In passing, arteritis can involve such symptoms as loss of weight, rheumatic-type pain, and fever, in view of the current state of knowledge—no lack of knowledge—the best advice I can offer, in fact the only advice I can suggest, is prolonged use of cortisone or its derivatives, and while you didn't say, I would assume that your doctor already has been doing this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are the following true or false?

1. One should drink water before having orange juice, others wise the orange, being an acid drink, will harm the stomach.

2. No one should drink water or other liquids at dinner or any other heavy meal. The stomach needs liquids, can digest foods better without the liquids.

Neither one makes any sense.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What could make a feeling like something rising up in the centre of the chest? It isn't painful but makes me weak and takes my breath if I don't do something. I have learned that if I start to inhale deeply the moment this starts I can whip it off.

This feeling doesn't last long even if I don't try breathing deeply. Does this have to do with the heart? Is it a warning of heart disease?

I'm not about to try to say whether your symptoms do or do not indicate heart trouble. They could—because it is well known that the discomfort of angina pectoris can be relieved sometimes by taking a deep breath and holding it for a moment.

However, other things (including some sort of nervous reaction) might also bring out what you describe.

My advice, therefore, is to have your doctor check you thoroughly, with an electrocardiogram included. It's always better to find out what is troubling you instead of merely speculating about what it might have learned that if I start to be.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A Y D L E B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening Lead — king of hearts.

The problem of entries affects the play of many hands. To be in the right place at the right time is highly important, and a declarer who fails to pay attention to this is bound to come a cropper occasionally.

Here is a hand where declarer might easily go wrong — and in fact did. South got to five diamonds and West led a heart.

Declarer won, drew trumps, played a spade to the king, and continued with a spade to the jack. The finesse succeeded, but declarer still went down one. He could not repeat the finesse, for lack of a further entry to dummy, and he eventually lost two clubs and a spade.

South would have made the hand had he played a low spade from dummy at trick two and finessed. After drawing trumps, he could then have returned to dummy with a spade to repeat the finesse. His only losers would have been two clubs.

The hand highlights the importance of planning the play. The crucial decision comes very early — before declarer wakes up later to find he is an entry short of fulfilling the contract.

The only problem from the start is to avoid a spade loser, and this should dominate declarer's thinking from trick one on. How to accomplish this aim is the best manner possible is something that must be solved at once — it cannot be postponed until after trumps are drawn.

It is clearly best to assume that East has the queen of spades. To play West for the queen and finesse through him will be successful only if the spades are divided 3-3. This is too much to hope for.

Once the assumption is made that East has the queen, it becomes obvious that a first-round finesse should be taken at trick two to guard against the possibility of East's having four or more spades.

Tomorrow: The opening lead.

Alberta 65ers Exempt From Education Tax

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Alberta legislature prorogued Wednesday on a promise by Premier Peter Lougheed that in 1973 his Progressive Conservative government will revise its financial support to municipalities, improve the financing of school and give Alberta residents a bigger share of the profits from natural resources development.

The first session of the 17th legislature, first to sit in the fall, met for 29 days and 19 nights, passed 25 bills and heard that when it meets again the Social Credit opposition will have a new leader to replace Harry Strom.

In Alberta, a Bill of Rights and the Individual Rights Protection Act were among the 25 bills to receive royal assent.

The Bill of Rights is intended to underline the federal Bill of Rights in guaranteeing basic freedoms for Albertans, while the Individual Rights Act deals with more specific areas of human rights such as religion and unemployment.

Also introduced, and to be acted upon next year, was a proposal by Premier Lougheed for a two-price system for natural gas produced in the province. This would add $200 million to the provincial revenues, which in 1971 were $220 million from the sale of exported natural gas. Alberta consumers would benefit through a system of rebates paid by the province.

The fall legislature also removed the education tax from the property of persons 65 and older, gave elderly renters a $50 a year grant, provided low-interest loans for farmers and established a $50 million fund from which small towns and municipalities can borrow up to $500,000.

Alberta legislators also gave themselves pay raises.

Effective in the new year the premier's income, including increased tax-free expense allowances, will rise to $40,500 from $35,300; the opposition leader, to $35,500 from $19,800; ministers without portfolio, to $35,300 from $22,200; ministers without portfolio, to $29,500 from $16,200 and members to $13,500 from $7,200.

Students Delay Strike

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A planned strike by about 3,000 students, in a dispute with the administration of Memorial University, has been postponed for 24 hours.

Representatives of the students and the university's board of regents agreed Wednesday night to discuss the dispute at a meeting later today.

The university announced that all classes were cancelled until noon.

Between 3,000 and 3,500 of the university's 6,954 full-time students decided Wednesday to begin a strike at 7:30 a.m., today and set up picket lines at all buildings.

Spokesmen said the strike was intended to bring the stalemated dispute to a crisis.

The dispute began Nov. 14 after Lord Taylor, university president, announced a board decision to end compulsory payment of union fees by Dec. 31.

The fees were $8 a semester for each student. The university runs three semesters a year.

Municipalities Major Force

OTTAWA (CP) — The municipalities emerged from 1972, the municipalities have gained political muscle from the first tri-level conference in Toronto this week.

With a second round of talks with the federal and provincial governments planned before the end of 1973, the municipalities have themselves as a national political force.

And it could be difficult for the provincial and federal governments to push the municipal governments back into their old subservient role.

The municipalities have important backing from the federal government for continuing national talks on broad urban problems.

The federal government views such national discussions as essential to good urban planning. It wants to tie its programs to urban plans developed by the provinces and municipalities.

The province caught a glimpse this week of what the municipalities can achieve when they are united.

But both the senior levels of government could find they have a tiger by the tail when they come to future national tri-level talks.

The main municipal beef is financial and neither the federal nor provincial governments want to begin talks on finances just yet.

No Euromart Pact With Canada Near

OTTAWA (CP) — A senior official of the European Economic Community said Wednesday there is no immediate prospect of a trade agreement between the EEC and Canada.

Theo Hijzen of the Netherlands, director-general of external relations for the EEC, stressed that the EEC seeks good [illegible] expanded trade with Canada.

But an agreement with Canada "is not for today."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in a speech Saturday Canada is getting a good response from EEC officials to its proposal for a trade agreement.

"There is no question that the dialogue is well and truly underway," Mr. Sharp said, though "we had to rap firmly, but politely on the table to get their attention."

With the EEC expanding—Britain joins Jan. 1—Canada has been stepping up its two-year campaign to make clear its stake in EEC measures that might cut off the European market from Canadian exports.

Latest government figures show Canada sold $895.7 million in goods to the six EEC countries between January and October this year, down 2.7 per cent from the same 10 months last year.

Exports to Britain from January to October this year fell 5.5 per cent from last year, to $1,009.8 million.

Vote Plans Challenged

KINGSTON (CP) — Municipal election procedures in Kingston Township will be challenged Friday in a hearing before a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court at Toronto.

Dr. John V. Milligan, a Queen's University professor and resident of the municipality of 40,000 west of the city of Kingston, filed an application for a judicial review of procedures followed by returning officer Douglas Gordon in preparing for the Dec. 4 election.

Hospital, College Expansion Curbed

Potter Aims At Efficiency

TORONTO (CP) — Sharp financial restraints were imposed on Ontario hospitals and institutions of higher learning Thursday.

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter told the legislature active-treatment hospital beds will be limited to an eventual four per 1,000 of population and hospitals' operating budgets will be held to a maximum increase of five per cent in the coming fiscal year.

Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, said the province will issue no grants for new campus construction and indicated that the freeze will continue for some years.

Both ministers said they were reasoning priorities in the light of rising costs. Expenditures on health and education combined amounted to more than 60 per cent of Ontario 1972-73 budget.

A day earlier Premier William Davis had announced plans to spend $1.3 billion in the next 10 years in an ambitious program to modernize the province.

Loyalist Not Affected

Construction of building D at Loyalist College, now under construction, will not be affected by the government freeze on further construction for higher education, college officials hope. By their interpretation of the announcement, unfinished buildings will be completed, but future construction starts are banned. However, the college has received no official word of the status of its new building.

The reckon I have 12 days to live," he told the court.

The case against the Englishborn Machleidan hinges on the two stretches of an interview he gave last Saturday only hours before his arrest—to a reporter of the state radio and television network (RTE).

RTE Director-General Tom Hardiman was instructed by the Irish Government to bring the tape to the hearing today.

Throughout the trial, the journalist Kelly also was held he must give evidence today.

Mr. McNie said post-secondary institutions will continue to receive provincial government grants for construction projects already under way but that no new projects will be subsidized.

He said the pause will provide the government and the institutions an opportunity to study enrolment trends "and to examine existing inventories of space with a view to more intensive utilization and generally to reconsider their plans for future development."

Banker's Family Seized

MONTREAL (CP) — A Bank Canadian National manager's family was bound and gagged Thursday night by two masked men who failed in an attempt to extort $100,000 from him.

Police said two men forced their way into the home of Roland Bernard at about 7:45 p.m. when one of his young children answered the doorbell.

Mrs. Bernard, her nine-year-old daughter, Johanne, and seven-year-old son Alain, were bound, gagged and blindfolded by the men.

Then one of the intruders called Mr. Bernard at his office and told him his family was being held hostage and no harm would befall them if he obeyed instructions, a police spokesman said.

The extortionist asked the bank manager for $100,000 or as much as he could collect right away and told him to take it to a nearby telephone booth.

While Mr. Bernard waited at the telephone booth, the two men apparently decided to cancel the operation and left.

Lewis Says Revelations Are Coming

HAMILTON (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, says members of his party plan to make public some extraordinary revelations next week about the operation of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board.

Mr. Lewis, speaking Thursday night to an NDP meeting here, said the disclosure will be made in the legislature by NDP members and would concern discrimination against injured workmen.

Labor Minister Fern Guindon said in the legislature Tuesday that he had confidence in Bruce Legge, board chairman.

He said that most of the recommendations of a legislature committee inquiry into the operations of the board had been implemented.

Mr. Lewis, however, accused Mr. Guindon of dealing only with administrative "trivia."

Fascism Said Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — Romano Mussolini, the youngest son of the late Benito Mussolini, Italy's Fascist ruler of the Second World War, says Italy today is returning to much of his father's political philosophy. Mussolini, 43, a jazz pianist, said in an interview that he has "no political ambitions" but likes politics and thinks "there are many who like to return to some part of fascism."

Safety Code Violated

MONTREAL (CP) — A report released Thursday on the death of seven men at a mineral site in northeastern Quebec said the employer of the men had committed 16 violations of provincial safety standards last month. The report was prepared by the Construction Industry Commission. The seven men died last Friday when they fell 75 feet to the ground after a scaffold they were working on collapsed at the Quebec Cartier Mining Site at Mount Wright, 450 miles north of Quebec City.

Bread Price May Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Much of Ontario's bread is expected to rise in price by two cents a loaf, industry spokesman say. General Bakeries have raised the wholesale price of a 21-ounce loaf by 1.6 cents. General's president, Joseph C. Conrad, said today he expects retail outlets will pass that along as a two-cent increase.

Mutiny Quelled

PARIS (AP) — Three North Vietnamese battalions rebelled against the Communist leadership in South Vietnam early this month and were defeated by loyalists after two days of fighting, the newspaper Le Monde reported today. A dispatch from its Saigon correspondent Jean-Claude Pomonti said the rebels captured the jungle headquarters of the South Vietnamese Communists but the leaders of the provisional revolutionary government in the Viet Cong — managed to escape.

Oppose Use of Poison

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Nature Federation wants the Quebec government to make clear whether it will allow poisoning of wolves and coyotes since the apparent failure of a government-sponsored shooting and trapping wolf-control program. The federation says it is "unequivocally opposed" to the use of poisons against wildlife.

Clumsy Thief Runs Over Self

BANWELL, England (Reuters) — British chimney-sweep Chief turned up in court Wednesday after running over himself in the execution of his "art."

Cyril Dodgish was quietly dragging a sports car into the road from a driveway in this south-west England town when it ran over his foot.

To make matters worse, the car then stuck and pinned him to the spot.

Cyril Dodgish, the car's owner, was eating dinner at the time, unaware of what was happening, until a persistent sounding of a car horn brought him outside.

A court Thursday fined Dodgish the equivalent of $72.

IRA Chief Faces Test In Court

DUBLIN (Reuter) — The Irish government faces today a crucial test in its mounting campaign to crush the underground republican guerrilla army fighting British rule in Northern Ireland.

At a special criminal court here, three judges will be asked to decide if Sean MacStiofain, reputed chief of staff of the militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, can be formally indicted as a member of the outlawed organization.

MacStiofain, 41, is reported to be in rapidly declining health and his lawyer, who visited him Thursday, said he was suffering from severe kidney pains and had lost 13 pounds since his arrest Sunday.

On Tuesday, MacStiofain said he had refused all food and drink and would continue to do so till he was freed—or until he died.

Truce Caution Reasonable

Canada Said Justified In Wanting Firm Terms

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says that Canada is justified in pressing ahead on the terms of reference before accepting membership in the proposed supervisory exception commission for Vitnam.

"Canada is showing justifiable reserve in engaging itself in the Vietnam supervisory task, along with Indonesia, Hungary and Poland, before clear and effective ground rules can be defined and accepted by all parties involved," The Times says in an editorial.

"The immediate need," The Times concludes, "is for U.S. negotiator Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to "pin down in their secret Paris talks the supervisory commission's scope and power "so that Canada and other reluctant members can be assured a reasonable chance of effective success."

After that, The Times says, the more parties ready to play a role in post-war Vietnam, the better for all.

The Times notes that Hungary and Poland were nominated as the so-called pro-Hanoi representatives.

"In fact, they are expected to follow Moscow's guidance. It may be hoped that this will not lead them into the largely obstructionist position Poland took through the long and futile years of the International Control Commission.

"Canada's reserve grows from its sour experience with Poland and India in that hapless agency. The external affairs minister, Mitchell Sharp, is rightly insisting that the commission adopt a workable report on the procedures and freedom of movement. Canada also wants explicit assurance that the fortification competition is acceptable to all sides in Vietnam."

Indonesia's position is crucial, The Times says.

"Hanoi propaganda has long emphasized that Indonesia leans toward the American position in the Vietnam conflict, ever since the Sukarno days. Indonesia also has maintained diplomatic relations with North Vietnam.

"... Experienced in policing insurgency threats in remote wilds, the Indonesian observation force could be far more efficient in parts of Vietnam than, say, the Poles. Indonesia's selection seems well devised as a direct substitute for India, which did not distinguish itself on the ICC."

Kissinger and Tho Hold Surprise Talk

PARIS (CP) — United States presidential envoy Henry Kissinger and Hanoi emissary Le Duc Tho talked for one hour today in a surprise meeting held after the two sides said that no talks were scheduled.

A television crew of the Columbia Broadcasting System tracked Kissinger to the secret meeting place in Chouisy-le-Roi not far from the North Vietnamese delegation headquarters.

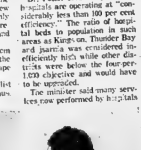
Kissinger told a CBS reporter that he planned to meet Tho again Saturday.

The North Vietnamese delegation earlier announced that there would be no meeting today. Canadian and American sources tacitly confirmed the announcement. It appeared that the two delegations were "trying to throw reporters and photographers off the track after the earlier meeting place at Gif sur-Yvette was discovered—also by a CBS television crew.

Agence Presse Presse, citing "reliable sources," said the talks had run into "serious difficulties" but there was no confirmation of this report from either side.

Reuters news agency in a Saigon dispatch quoted a high South Vietnamese government official as saying that Kissinger has told South Vietnamese representatives in Paris that the first four days of secret negotiations with Tho had brought no progress toward a peace settlement.

The official, who asked not to be named, said he based his information on reports from the South Vietnamese team in Paris who had heard from Kissinger after each of his sessions with Tho.



In the talks between Mr. Tho and Dr. Kissinger this time our American allies, immediately report to our representatives," he told South Vietnamese reporters.

Raids Heavy

SAIGON (AP) — United States B-52s blasted supply targets for the third consecutive day in their heaviest raids of the war in North Vietnam, the U.S. command said today.

Meanwhile, a navy fighter-bomber, disabled in a landing mishap, became the ninth U.S. aircraft lost in Southeast Asia in the last five days.

The command said 11 missions by the Stratofortresses each with three planets, struck at military supply concentrations near the coastal cities of Vinh and Dong Hoi in the 24 hours ending at noon today.

Barrett Faces Flood of Nationalization Demands

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia New Democratic Party opens a three-day annual convention here today, giving rank-and-file members their first chance to assess the performance of Premier Dave Barrett since the NDP was the tensive discussion appears to be Aug. 30 provincial election.

The hottest topic slated for in public ownership. Constituency associations and union locals have bombed the cabinet with agenda with more than 400 resolutions, many of them recommending large scale government intervention in the private sector of the economy.

The true measure of Mr. Barrett's authority within the party could be how convention organizers handle a welter of potentially troublesome resolutions on the expropriation of private industry that would, if approved, put the NDP much further out on the public ownership limb than the government's present commitments take it.

At the moment, Mr. Barrett's only firm commitment on the issue in his election promise that his administration will take over the B.C. Telephone Co. He has also indicated a willingness to consider expropriating gold mine properties in Cassiar Ltd., in the area of natural resources, and Westcoast Transmission, in petroleum.

The Skeena Building Association has submitted a resolution that urges public ownership of all companies involved in "the production and distribution of natural gas and petroleum products."

Mr. Barrett has said that his government "doesn't have an absolute commitment on Westcoast Transmission," but party officials say that commitment would come much closer if the Skeena resolution is approved, even though it doesn't mention Westcoast by name.

Another company that is mentioned by name is MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's biggest forest products company. A resolution from Vancouver Centre says MacMillan Bloedel "and other leading forest monopolies" should be nationalized and operated "under workers' control."

Scott Quizzed on Conflict Charge

Mayor Russell Scott charged last night that the interest of conflict-of-interest allegations against him in city council earlier this year was to "dump" him from office.

He also said he did not reply to the original charges because the city councillor who levelled them was running for a political party nomination.

Neither was he sure any reply at the time of the allegations in April would have been given full newspaper coverage.

The mayor made the statements on a Radio Station CJBQ open-line program for candidates in the current municipal campaign.

The conflict - of - interest issue was first broached in April by Alderman Herman Souther, then managing editor of The Intelligencer, on a motion seconded by Ald. Roland Jeffrey, now challenging Mayor Scott's bid for a third mayoralty term. It centred on drainage in north Belleville of land owned by Sanitary Developments, a company in which the mayor has a share.

(The mayor gave first a full report on his stand on the issue in the weekly Belleville Advertiser.)

During the broadcast he was asked why he took 183 days to make a full statement on the charges.

"First of all," said Mayor Scott, "I knew that the two aldermen involved in this had political ambitions. I had known it for some time. I knew what they were going to do back and forth conversation. If I had been . . . sitting there as an alderman then it would have been a different matter."

To preserve the dignity of office was one of a mayor's responsibilities.

"I think in other things is that I knew — and as I still know — that I was morally and legally clear, and there fore the hat didn't fit me, so to speak."

The mayor said he "wanted to be sure" any reply to the charges the time they were made "would be printed as I said it at the time".

"Now things have changed

He said he told Ald. Souther the matter was "covered completely" by section 38 of the Ontario Municipal Act and "if he'd had advice . . ." (it was) very poor advice."

He also told a caller that when the issue first arose in council he did not reply fully in order to retain "the dignity of the council, chamber.

"I was sitting as chairman and as mayor and this was not the time for me to come back and forth conversation. If I had been . . . sitting there as an alderman then it would have been a different matter."

To preserve the dignity of office was one of a mayor's responsibilities.

"I think in other things is that I knew — and as I still know — that I was morally and legally clear, and there fore the hat didn't fit me, so to speak."

The mayor said he "wanted to be sure" any reply to the charges the time they were made "would be printed as I said it at the time".

"Now things have changed completely, I have nothing against the employees of the paper, the owners or anything else.

"But I was not assured that it might be put in absolutely as I had said it, and that it would come out exactly the same as it had been reported."

Sanctuary Developments has about 37 acres of land west of North Front St.

Mayor Scott said a sewer involving drainage of 700 acres in north Belleville — including the Sanctuary holding — has not been constructed.

He said he signed an agreement with the city to allow spilling of drainage water over Sanctuary land some years ago. This apparently was a reference to the flooding of nearby land during redevelopment of North Front St.

The agreement was also suggested by the provincial highways department and was necessary in the street's development, the mayor indicated.

Best of the Brood

Frank Waite, of 46 Ponton Street, and his birds monopolized competitions at Toronto's Royal Winter Fair last week. Here, Mr. Waite holds one of his trophies and the Fantail pigeon chosen as Best Black in the Show. Mr. Waite also won Best White in the Show.

Waites' Pigeons Sweep the 'Royal'

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

One day, a few years ago, Mrs. Frank Waite saw not one but two doors in the side of her garage.

Puzzled over the new door, she talked it over with her husband, who explained for the past three weeks he had spent $1,000 building a pigeon coop.

Since then Mr. Waite, with his son Ted, have fostered a hobby bringing them personal and national prominence in fantail pigeon breeding.

Mrs. Waite, quite keen on pigeons as her husband and son, paid little attention to the garage until the door caught her attention.

"She's good about it," said Ted. "She never says any thing."

Mr. Waite and son left for the Royal Winter Fair lately and when they returned they brought with them trophies and a host of ribbons.

The Waite birds took seven first place ribbons, eight second and five third, "Pat" trophy for the Best Young White Fantail and Best Black Fantail.

"When I first started out in the mid '50s I was using inexpensive birds, costing about $5 each," said Mr. Waite. "Getting nowhere, I decided to buy some good birds to better my competition chances."

His decision to import superior birds came at the same time he decided to move his flocks from the yard shed to a large section in the garage.

Mr. Waite and his son now take care of more than 100 birds.

The Waites have had set backs in their hobby. Pigeons can shred illness and often the coup and "some of our best birds were lost," said Ted Waite.

Another time a weasel got into the pen, killing some birds. Ted still has the weasel mounted on a piece of wood.

You have to go onto this hobby for the pride and satisfaction in rearing birds," said Mr. Waite. "There is no money in it."

Total prize money for Mr. Waite's winter fair showing only barely exceeded $100.

After the initial investment in the cages, and the time for care, the cost of feeding the birds is minimal. All 106 birds can be fed for $2 a week.

For Mr. Waite, one of the few breeders in the area, the Royal Winter Fair was the final icing on the cake.

"That's where you sort the good ones from the bad ones," he said.

More than 60 birds were at the fair, compared to 16 entered in Belleville and Kingston competitions.

Mr. Waite did well. Breeders from other cities will be calling him, asking for birds, attempting to draw from his knowledge, he said.

"If nothing else, the birds keep Ted and me out of trouble," said Mr. Waite.

Hydro Hike Not Likely

TRENTON (Staff) — Once again the Trenton Public Utilities Commission has gone on record claiming little likelihood of rate increases to Trenton utility customers.

A letter from Ontario Hydro, tabled at the Thursday meeting of the PUC reminded commissioners of the eight per cent increase in electrical costs to utilities in the province as of 1973.

Commission chairman Charles Hilton reminded fellow commissioners of an Oct. 19 statement by manager Douglas Manline. Mr. Manline at that time said in light of better than expected revenue receipts and lower costs than those budgeted for, rates should remain at their present level.

According to Mr. Hilton, a $55,000 winter works project grant has contributed to this healthy financial picture.

However, adding a note of caution, the PUC chairman said Ontario Hydro has the final say in such matters, and he doesn't want to guarantee that there will be no increase.

Trying School System

Prince Edward New Pilot

BLOOMFIELD—The Prince Edward County board of education has voted to work in conjunction with a government task force in a program allowing trustees to obtain for their communities "the greatest benefit for every dollar spent through the optimum use of available educational resources."

The Prince Edward school board will become one of 11 in Ontario to participate in ERAS (Education Resources Allocation System) through a pilot project to be developed over a three-year period.

Dr. Edward Ahn and Roy Stoness, members of the ERAS task force formed in 1971, outlined the program's objectives to trustees.

Three major activities, planning, program and evaluation are covered by the project.

James Plomer, South Marysburgh trustee and chairman of the board of education, said trustees were "very impressed with the purpose of this and with the calibre of the people involved." He added that it is time for a reappraisal of "what we are doing and can we do better."

He suggested Ontario has one of the best education systems in Canada and an ERAS program of five or six years will advance this lead in the educational field.

Mr. Stoness explained ERAS demands a school jurisdiction to formulate goals, objectives and learner skills. Curricular programs are designed to achieve stated objectives and the feasible alternatives are analyzed more systematically.

Staff members are provided with better planning information and resources and costs can be corr ared with accomplishments of programs. Teacher involvement is increased in planning and decision making and direct instructional costs are identified in a program budget. Program priorities and educational values are specified and innovative programs, teaching and evaluation criteria promoted. ERAS increases public understanding of and support for the school.

The program does have limitations, since difficulty will be experienced in stating specific objectives of a school system in operational terms. Many educational activities cannot be "unambiguously defined and quantified."

Costs are difficult to estimate and multi - year objectives are likely to be highly inaccurate. Program effectiveness is difficult to evaluate and implementation of a resource system may be costly in terms of both physical and human resources. "Will the ends justify the means?"

Community residents also school system personnel will be involved by the ERAS project and taxpayers can explain what they feel are the strengths and weaknesses of the school system from their point of view.

Community residents also will participate in assessing the direction which the school system would pursue as represented by the goal statements.

Carl Reid, local co-ordinator for the ERAS project said local participation will ensure ideas are not "something handed down from the top to the people" but something brought up from the bottom. Advertisements will be placed in newspapers for committee members.

Mr. Reid noted, "At least if someone with a hot feeling thinks he has something to contribute he will have a chance to participate."

"We want it to come from the grass roots," he observed.

Ray Stoness said a number of meetings will be held in Prince Edward between the ERAS group and principals and federations. Because of the county's small size emphasis in the community will be on an inter-active in people.

Mr. Reid said nothing has been determined definitely concerning the cost of the ERAS project but his salary is a matter for the task force, not the local school board.

Mr. Stoness and Drs. Ahn will be involved with the ERAS project in the county from six to eight days each month and it is expected meetings will begin in January followed by a "proliferation of activities."

Two other school boards awaiting board approval for participation in the ERAS program are the Perth County board of education and the Windsor separate school board. No formal approval has been issued in connection with either.

Although several schools in North America have developed a number of activities related to ERAS there is apparently no single area where the full approach of the project is underway.

The present development of the ERAS project should mark a first.

Teacher involvement it to play a major role in ERAS since the project's success hinges on feachey and principal participation.

Store Shell Cleaned Up

A Front Street eyesore that has been the source of citizen criticism for many months, the burned out Spider Furniture Store just south of the Belle Theatre, is being cleaned up.

Wrecking equipment moved onto the site this morning to raze the burned out structure which has been boarded up since the fire more than two years ago.

Mr. Rollins said today that he had no immediate plans for the site but was cleaning it up to help improve the appearance of the city's main downtown thoroughfare.

OPP Investigates Welfare Frauds

Investigations into suspected welfare frauds totalling $41,000 are underway in seven Ontario communities, including Belleville.

Provincial police announced Tuesday that its commercialcrimes squad are supervising the investigation following a request by the ministry of community and social services. The other municipalities are Toronto, Thunder Bay, Kirkland Lake, Ottawa, Windsor and Owen Sound.

In Belleville, a case involving an alleged conspiracy fraud will be heard in Provincial Court within the next week, Frank Noble, regional administrator for the ministry, said today the Belleville family involved has been under investigation for some time.

He said in many cases the welfare cases were confined to local representatives visiting the family became suspicious about the family's right to claim welfare. The ministry called in the OPP fraud section which then investigated the matter. Neither the ministry nor the OPP would reveal the amount of money involved.

Mr. Noble said other cases may be revealed in the future.

In their release, the OPP said the processing of suspected frauds would be on a continuous basis once files were turned over by the ministry's Family Benefits Branch. The anti-rackets branch will be responsible for investigations and co-ordinating the efforts of local police forces.

High Pressure Firefighting

As CFB Trenton fireman Corporal Gerry Tremblin trains foam - belching nozzle, Corporal Jim Wessels operates one of the four new $70,000 base fire engine pumpers. The special 1cim now used exclusively at the base, is manufactured by the 3 M Company in the U.S. and sold at a cost of about $9 a gallon. The new chemical extinguishes flames 50 per cent faster than the material previously used.

Truck Traffic A Concern

TRENTON (Staff) — Rerouting of large trucks to less populated streets in Trenton was a matter of concern of one telephone caller who questioned Mayor Duncan McDonald on CJBQ Radio's open line show Wednesday night.

Mayor McDonald promised to look into the possibility of providing a clearly marked truck route in the town.

The caller mentioned the number of accidents at the Station Street CP Rail underpass, claiming the narrow route made it difficult for trucks to manoeuvre their large vehicles. The caller also suggested a maximum clearance of 11 feet be provided along treed streets, citing the West Street area in particular. He said low hanging trees were hazardous to truckers.

Although unable to contme with his statement or questions because of conclusion of the radio show, a caller who phoned in immediately after the first man strongly objected to trucks being allowed in residential districts at all.

Mayor McDonald said he could sympathize, but pointed out Trenton industry is not located in one sector, rather it is spread out over the town.

He said it is necessary for industry, to have large trucks travel certain residential streets.

The incumbent mayor said the town is at present examining alternate routes that would cut down on the number of trucks moving through built-up areas. The caller said he appreciated council's concern, defining a residential district as one that is "treelined, without trucks".

Garbage Disposal Study Proceeds

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors Tuesday referred a proposal for an area study by the Solid Waste Disposal and Shade's Committee to the county government committee, for further study.

Picton reeve Albert Piroth was the sole opposer of county council's motion and declared council is wasting $4,400 of the taxpayers' money by failure to take advantage of an area study as a lower cost.

Prince Edward presently is proceeding with a county study expected to cost $20,000.

K. A. Childs, supervisor for the ministry of the environment, attended the October meeting of the Solid Waste Disposal and Shade Committee in Belleville and said the cost on a per capita basis of a joint survey would reduce the county's share of costs "considerably."

He observed the Prince Edward County study will receive a 25 per cent subsidy lowering the cost to $10,000. If the southern part of instances agrees to this survey, the cost for that area would be approximately $20,000. A fifty per cent subsidy would reduce this figure to $15,000.

If Prince Edward and the southern area of Hastings consent to a joint survey, the cost would be $50,000. The cost on a per capita basis of joint study would reduce Prince Edward's share markedly.

In a letter to Belleville city clerk Adam Slusher this month, Mr. Childs stated the cost of a study for South Hastings County would be $30,000 and, based on a 50 per cent subsidy, the net cost would be $15.000. The per capita cost, based on all the municipalities in South Hastings participating, would be 22 cents. Based only on the municipalities 'now willing to participate, the per capita cost would be 17cents. Among the municipalities interested in taking part in the survey are Belleville, Trenton, Thorlow and Hungerford township.

In Prince Edward, the study under way will cost $20,000 and has a net per capita cost after subsidy of an estimated 50 cents.

Mr. Childs noted, "In the event the two studies were combined, the total cost would be $50,000 with a net cost to the municipalities of $25,000 and, based on total participation, i.e. all of Prince Edward County plus all of the municipalities in South Hastings, we estimate that the per capita cost would be in the order of 28 cents."

Wellington reeve Douglas Marvin did not favor the combined study since he did not feel the survey under way should be halted. The survey results are expected in 1973 and should provide a solution to the waste disposal problems now facing Wellington.

Picton reeve Albert Piroth said participation in an area study would not delay the present study "one iota" and added it would not mean Belleville would become the county's dump site or vice versa.

George Vincent, reeve of Hallowell said he is "a little weary" of government experts who tell council what projects will cost. Frequently the estimates rise.

He said he did not want Prince Edward to be chosen as a garbage centre for the area.

Reeve Vincent suggested certain statements in Mr. Childs' letter indicate there is doubt concerning the final cost of the study. He referred to the remark that "obviously the per capita cost is going to vary depending upon the final cost of the study and the extent of participation by the municipalities".

He moved to refer the report of the committee to council's county governments committee for further examination.

Health Costs

While the rising cost of medical health continues to occupy a prime position in Government thinking — especially in the mind of Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter — solutions to the problem seem to be as remote as ever.

Dr. Potter, in the latest of a series of speeches on the theme, may have thought he had an explanation, at least, for the problem when he sought to lay the blame on "excessive demands by some of the public and over-servicing by some of the physicians," not to mention "the additional cost of emergency treatments of hospitals, flooded with everything but the emergencies for which they were intended. . ."

And there was this blast (Dr. Potter was speaking to an Ontario Medical Association district meeting in Toronto): "We are now dealing with a generation that includes many unfit, self-indulgent patients with self-inflicted diseases that they charge to the public purse. . ."

"Many believe . . . they have a right to drunkenness and drugs, obesity and abortions, sterility and physical unfitness, and they fully expect to lay the cost of all this on the taxpayer."

Yes indeed they do, for do these afflictions not constitute sickness as with any other to which man may fall heir in this mortal life. How do you draw the line? You can't of course. It is like trying to tell the young people: don't smoke that cigaret — you will kill yourself, in time . . . or don't drink alcohol or take drugs . . . or don't drive that car over 60 m.p.h. (hospital emergencies are all too familiar with the consequences of wild, abandoned driving by the young). Or try to tell the obese person not to eat so much.

We may try — and we do — to warn of these things, but as The Pope noted the other day, there is a very real spirit of deviltment abroad in our world and to rail against it, alas, is akin to baying at the moon.

Again, these people — the addicts and the reckless drivers and all the rest — presumably have their health insurance and are as entitled as anyone else to the ministrations of doctors and nurses.

Yet all the while, as Dr. Potter warns, the whole thing is proliferating. Unhappily that is the way of the world, as the economists and politicians who cannot curb inflation will tell you. Up up and away as the song goes and Professor Parkinson, who is still around as far as we know, might have some thoughts on the subject too. Yes, as work expands to fill the time required for its completion, so too do the numbers of people seeking medical attention.

Dr. Potter seems to be clutching at straws when he says an answer may be to provide a basic high standard of necessary care for everyone "and allow the public to deal directly with the physician for the deluxe service." Again, where do you draw the line?

Tax Origins

The bane of most working people's existence — income tax — except in a few favored places such as, if we recall correctly, Bermuda, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man . . . where did it begin? How exactly did it come about? As we know it today, that is, for after all taxes in one form or another have been with us since early times.

With none other than Sir Robert Peel, the second baronet of a family whose fortunes were founded in cotton manufacturing in Lancashire in the early days of the Industrial Revolution.

The second Sir Robert was a politician and a man of many parts. He founded the London Metropolitan police force, hence the nickname for the British policeman, "bobby" or "peeler," He also repealed the Corn Laws and founded the British Conservative party. These moves he made in addition to establishing the first income tax, at seven pence in the pound.

Actress-comedienne Beatrice Lillie, who was born in Toronto and attended private school here in Belleville, mentions these accomplishments of her late husband's forebear in her autobiography, "Every Other Inch a Lady." She expresses her regrets over the income tax edict — as well she might!

Castro May Clamp Down on Hijackers

Washington's Relations with Cuba Thaw Slightly

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — While President Nixon has opened new paths of amity to China and the Soviet Union, and even East Germany is no longer to be treated as an international leper, United States policy as applied to Fidel Castro and Cuba have remained locked in unbending mutual hostility.

In the "generation of peace" that Nixon has proclaimed as his objective, Cuba was apparently destined to be indefinitely excluded. The president reiterated his dour outlook on U.S. policy toward Cuba barely a week ago, volunteering the view that he could see no possibility of change.

There has been both surprise and intense interest, therefore, in the tentative first steps now being taken in Washington and Havana toward a renewed dialogue on the tangled question of air piracy.

Substantial obstacles remain to be overcome before the two countries reach the sort of "threat agreement" which Hanoi and Washington have been trying to negotiate as a means of ending the constant flight of aircraft hijackers to Cuba.

More than 100 American hijackers have gone to Cuba in pirated planes, either singly or in groups. But attempts to negotiate an anti-hijack agreement through intermediaries in 1970 and again in 1971 were unsuccessful.

Behind the outward show of enthusiasm by state department spokesmen toward Havana's readiness to renounce concessions, there lies considerable skepticism and caution among U.S. officials about the prospects for agreement.

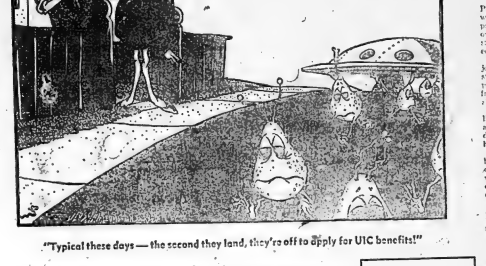
And both the White House and the state department have emphasized that, as far as the U.S. is concerned, hijacking of American planes is the only subject to be discussed with Castro's government.

Nevertheless, both American and foreign observers here see the hijacking question as a potential opening to a wider exchange that could eventually result in the end of isolation for the weakest and most obscure of Communist states.

From both sides of the current impasse, there are pressures for change.

The U.S. is having increasing difficulty holding fellow members of the Organization of American States to its policy of strict sanctions.

Mexico, Chile and Peru already have diplomatic relations with Havana, and Jamaica, Trinidad and several other Caribbean and South American states are committed to such relations or are leaning toward them. Canada, a newly-admitted OAS observer nation, has never broken relations with Cuba.



As in the case of China's membership in the United Nations, the U.S. now is in danger of being among the last nations to abandon an untenable policy.

There is also a widespread belief here that Fidel Castro, too, is reported to see a new era and that hijacking offers a face-saving export valve.

Diplomatic sources believe that some of the most recent hijackers, whose claim to political refuge in Cuba has been exceptionally slight, have exhausted Castro's patience with the game.

The possibility that the Soviet Union may be putting pressure on Castro has been raised as well. Moscow has been spending an estimated $400 million a year to keep Cuba armed and afloat, and the Soviets might welcome an end to the U.S. blockade and a reduction in the Cuban burden.

Whether President Nixon is prepared to go further than an anti-hijack agreement, however, is questionable. In the case of China, he had telegraphed his intentions in public statements years beforehand. In Cuba's case, he has given no indication privately or publicly that he is ready to bend.

"Typical these days — the second they land, they're off to apply for UIC benefits!"

Municipal Election Brings Allegation Of Threats to Some Candidates

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Mayor Scott was responsible for suggesting and promoting Belleville as the "Friendly City".

As the election campaign kick-ups, indications are that Belleville is anything but a "Friendly City". A peek into the murky undercurrents of the local scene provides food for thought.

His potato number one is the conflict of interest charges against incumbent Mayor Scott, ignoring the fact the charges were made in the council chamber and should have been answered in the same place, the mayor's rebuttal came after 113 days in the form of an irrelevant diatribe in the columns of a newspaper.

The Chief Magistrate summed up the reasons for the delay by claiming he did not want to be blamed for the defeat of Alderman Soutter in the federal nomination convention. If the voters buy this, they will buy anything.

At least two newcomers to the aldermanic race have received visits from an organization regarding whom they intend to support for mayor. The impression left was unless they promised to publicly support a specific candidate for the office of mayor they could expect no support from the organization and active opposition to their candidacy for alderman. A "Friendly City"?

One candidate writes the names of people who tell him they are not going to support him in a little black book. He needs sympathy not votes.

A well-known local man has been threatened that unless he retracted statements he had made about the Mayor he would be beaten up. A "Friendly City"? I am glad to say he has reported the incident to the police.

I have received a number of calls from individuals asking in ways with no remain anonymous, whether I have not been in the city long enough to criticize the mayor and Council. Should I keep my mouth shut? Are citizens denied the right of free and fearless criticism of the conduct and performance of their elected officials? Is there no protection for the community's civil rights? Or should I, like the ostrich, bury my head in the sand and pretend that all is well?

Every candidate is allowing access to his mail except Mrs. Allin. It is now the only way left to get at the truth. Is there a reason why Mr. Bowerman should handle the mail of candidates during the campaign? Is there no protection for the community's civil rights without fear of intimidation or coercion

Credit Reporting Gets Once-over

TORONTO (CP) — A citizen will be able to strike back at credit-reporting agencies that misrepresent him, according to a bill introduced Thursday in the Ontario legislature.

John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said, "under this bill, there will be no secret information and sources will be open to inspection so that information can be evaluated."

But, more important, the minister said, "the consumer will be able to answer back effectively when ill-founded statements have been made against him."

A citizen also will have the right to know who is providing information about him. Independent credit reporting agencies must be registered with the ministry and be responsible for collecting, storing and using personal information it receives.

The legislation also:

—Precludes the use of information more than seven years old, including criminal convictions, or bankruptcies more than 14 years old.

—Precludes information on race, creed, color, ancestry, ethnic origins, or political affiliation.

The bill provides a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a $2,000 fine for an agency official who knowingly contravenes the act and fines of up to $25,000 for companies involved.

Davis Friends Can Fly

TORONTO (CP)— A private citizen can only travel on a provincial government aircraft for compassionate reasons or if he's a friend of a cabinet minister or the premier.

The policy was made plain in the legislature Thursday by Resources Minister Leo Bernier, replying to a question asked Tuesday by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park).

Mr. Bernier said William Kelly, treasurer of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, flew in a government plane on several occasions this year to Port Severn, 40 miles north of Barrie or Georgian Bay.

Mr. Davis said he frequently invited Mr. Kelly to accompany him on these flights. He said Mr. Kelly was an old friend and an adviser.

Globe Reporter Still in Contempt

TORONTO (CP) — Speaker Allan Reuter affirmed again Thursday that the Toronto Globe and Mail reporter Jonathan Manthorpe were in contempt of the Ontario legislature, whether it be a committee report, a statement of policy by a minister of account or whatever," Mr. Reuter said.

The Globe and Mail carried a report earlier this year of some of the findings of a legislative committee investigation into the Workmen's Compensation Board before the report was tabled in the house.

At the start of this session opposition party members were critical of the rule, saying that whoever leaked the information was in contempt, not the reporter or the newspaper.

But Mr. Reuter said Thursday, "In all jurisdictions it has always been recognized that a breach is committed not only by the informant, but by the reporter and by the publisher.

"However, if the present members of this assembly do not with to insist upon this privilege, that of course is their decision. And the remedy is simple. They need only refrain from taking action in any given case."

Aggression Urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — President Des Newman of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said Thursday municipal governments must adopt a more aggressive role in negotiations with senior government levels over problems confronting today's society.

Mr. Newman, mayor of Whitby, Ont., told the annual convention of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities that it is no longer acceptable for local governments to allow the federal and provincial governments to make their decisions for them.

"Local governments are closest to the people and . . . have a tremendous role to play . . . the keystone of democracy.

He said that, collectively, municipal governments spend 35 per cent of the money spent by all levels of government and have become the largest employer in Canada.

Ontario Plans Embassy

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario still plans to set up an office within the Canadian embassy in Washington but wJh whom and when still hasn't been decided.

Premier William Davis told the legislature Thursday that he expects to have further discussions with the external affairs department after Prime Minister Trudeau announces his cabinet next week.

Turkey Influences Inmates

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — As a gesture of the United States Thanksgiving holiday spirit, Mayor Sam Massell offered 43 convicts in the city prison farm release before their sentences were up. But a number of the prisoners rejected the reprieves.

"Some of them just absolutely refused to go," prison director J. D. Hudson said.

Officials indicated part of the reason could have been the turkey dinner planned for prisoners.

Children's Books Irk Sex-Biased Feminists

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — What the feminists dislike about most children's books and textbooks is that they show women and girls in unexciting, passive roles.

Females get lost and are rescued by males. Women are busy slaves who don't do much of anything. Often women are not there at all. A United States study of 18 grade 1 and 2 children's books found only two girls were active and that, among them all, there were 23 pictures of women and about 270 of men.

What feminists are doing about children's books is their sort of study to prove their point. They are also making speeches, preparing bibliographies of books they consider non-sexist. They are writing books and publishing them.

In Ontario, they have made consult with that the provincial department of education is setting up a committee to look at sex bias in texts as part of a general study of prejudice.

Liz Jackson, of the Children's Liberation Movement in Ancaster, Ont., said the aim is not to censor or curtail children's reading, but to be sure books are available that are non sexist.

"We feel children's books as they now are present a stereotyped picture.

"In a study I did, men's roles were varied and interesting. They were kings, rocketeers, bee keepers, farmers. Women were housewives. They're usually bored women, shown dusting or yelling at the kids. They're also shown doing the things real housewives do, volunteer work, having fun with the kids, taking them on trips, or even reading a book.

"Girls are shown . . . in passive, dependent roles. This passiveness makes children less likely to achieve in school. Girls do better at first, but as time goes on, the fall behind.

"Boys reading these books must feel a pressure to be brave all the time.

"We would like to see a good bunch of books that can give the other point of view, too, for good role models."

National President Visits University Women's Club

Mrs. J. L. Black, president of the Canadian Federation of University Women, urged members of the Belleville and District Club to encourage young people to have an awareness of issues and take an interest in the political situation.

Mrs. Black, who was introduced by Miss Muriel Gibson, described herself as a herring choker from New Brunswick; who was visiting university alumnae across Canada in person to let them know that the Federation office in Sackville was more than just a post box. It was made up of women with personal lives and wide human interests. She also said study groups set up by the individual clubs indicated interest and through these study groups members improved the quality of living in their area.

Mrs. Black stated that the CFUW has taken a broader participation in affairs through Child Care Centres and Pollution studies, and reports on these studies were available for members to see.

Law reform, an increasingly important concern of CFUW was also mentioned. The guest speaker urged women to realize their influence in important matters.

Miss L. Handford, the vice-president of the Eastern Ontario Region, who accompanied Mrs. Black, was then introduced. She advised the group that the government wants the women to prepare a brief on the Legislature entitled "what would you expect your Member of Parliament to do for you and what would you expect your member of Parliament to do for the constituency."

The visitors were thanked by Mrs. R. J. Morden and the members then organized a study group to work on the Legislature Report.

Ann Landers
Casual Calls Unnecessary To Distressed Families

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your advice to "Pittsburgh" who asked what to do when a friend's child gets in trouble with narcotics. You said it would be an act of kindness to remain silent unless the parents bring up the subject.

I believe you are wrong. Most friends should telephone the distraught parents immediately and say, "We just heard about your trouble. What can we do to help?" During such a crisis parents are in a state of shock and they need friends.

I learned when our own daughter made the front page, what it means to have people feign ignorance. Now that the problem is behind us it leaves me cold when people come up and say they felt so sorry for us when we were having "the trouble" and want to know how it came out. I feel like saying, "Where were you when we needed you?—Lived Through It

Dear Voice: I have checked with others who also "Lived Through It" and the consensus is the same. Close friends are expected to call—as they would if they heard of an accident or a death in the family. But acquaintances and casual neighbors who do so are considered nosey and their calls are not appreciated.

Dear Ann Landers: All I want is fair hearing. If you care to comment or offer some advice, I'd consider it a bonus. Here is the situation:

I am a meter reader for the electric company. The fellows I work with are all decent family men who work a lot harder than most people think.

Recently one of the men had to spray a cantankerous German shepherd with the nasty stance we carry to protect ourselves on the job. The owner of that dog was furious and wrote a nasty letter to the local newspaper. It caused a terrific amount of trouble and had feelings running high.

I have animals. I have always had a pet. But I've had to spray dogs, too. The public has no concept of the number of vicious dogs the postmaster will bring to a living. No one wants to spray a dog. But it's a lot easier to wash a dog's face than to lose a piece of flesh out of your leg. The spray does not cause the dog any pain, and there are no after effects. All it does is stun the animal momentarily and frighten him away.—Thank you, Ann, for letting me have my say.—Friend Of The Unjustly Maligned

Dear Friend: You didn't say what the spray was but I assume it was not Mace. This is undoubtedly the cause of the misunderstanding. Some sprays can damage the eyes. The point that should have been emphasized when the accused wrote his response to the local newspaper was that the spray he used was harmless.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was in high school I was an easy mark for every boy who took me out. It got around that I was a first date cinch and although I realize now I was a sick girl, the word for me in those days was "tramp" and I earned it.

In my second year of high school I got pregnant, had no idea who the father was and my folks sent me to a home run by Catholic charities. I gave up my baby for adoption.

When I returned home I went to another school, turned over a new leaf and graduated with honors. I went to secretarial school, got a good job and am now engaged to marry a wonderful man whose young wife died in an accident. The question is, should I tell him about my past? You've always said a girl should keep her mouth shut about past indiscretions. Does this advice hold for me?—L.V.H.

Dear L.V.H.: An out of wedlock child is more than "indiscretion." Tell your fiance about the unfortunate part of your life in confidence.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN COSWELL

What makes a person hate animals?

MAINLY it is a sense of insecurity. A man, say, who would mistreat a dog may think the dog is getting attention that should be directed to him. The man may realize that the dog is able to act warm and friendly—something the man could never do because of his fear of being rejected. Through his overt animosity toward the dog—and all animals—the man tries to hide the low regard he has for himself.

Should a child curb his daydreaming?

NO, not unless he daydreams so much that he fails to develop a grasp of reality. Besides, the child may be hard at play, while at the same time he visualizes himself in some fancied situation. The parent who is annoyed because his loud yells fail to move the child may be competing with the youngster's heroic image of himself in reveries that may formulate his future drives for ambition and accomplishment.

Is a fault-finding wife unhappy?

NOT usually, although there are exceptions, of course. Generally, however, when a wife finds fault with her husband without raising a lot of resentment, she may be starting to have doubts about herself. She may be seizing on faults she used to overlook just to see if her husband loves her enough to understand that she is not picking on him so much as she is testing how she stands with him.

Successful Living
Take Your Problems One Hour At a Time

By DORIS CLARK

We have a lifetime in which to solve the problems ahead. There will be burdens and cares and worries, but if we will be patient, the years will spread them thin — so thin that it will be easy to carry them if we carry them only as they are met.

All man is asked to do is bear the load of this one hour solve the problems of this one hour, walk ahead as he should walk ahead in this one hour.

Strength sufficient until today is all the strength needed, for if we solve the problems of each hour, we are solving the problems of the whole life.

In the end there will be success. — Paul Speither, in Farmer's Almanac 1973

Dear Doris: Please send me your leaflet on how to stop smoking. This is for a young lady who wants to quit.

She would also love to quit drinking. I sure feel sorry for her. If you have anything for an alcoholic, please send it. I write to her and pray for her daily, for I know that God loves her too. — Worried Friend.

Dear Worried Friend: Let's hope the ideas in my leaflet will point her in the right direction before boxes or booze give up their fight for enough air and oxygen to keep them healthy.

About the drinking, your friend can get help if she actually faces the fact that, with her, alcohol is noxious. Once she does, and will take the step to join Alcoholics Anonymous, she is on her way to practical help.

But when drinking and smoking become ingrained individuals, one simply must try to unearth the cause. It may be that if she were getting more satisfaction in life, she would not be so desperate for escape.

Dear Doris: Suggest to your readers that a wealth of children's stories, games and puzzles can be found in the older editions of The Books of Knowledge. The editions of the 20's and 30's were the finest ones. They can often be found at the Salvation Army Thrift Stores, very cheaply.

Another good set is the 10-volume Children's Classics, published for years by the Collier Company and generally available at any good second-hand shop.

It is strange that many people (especially older readers) bemoan the fact that the "old favorites" are not being published any longer. They should contact a used book store. We have a wall of old favorites that includes R. M. Ballantyne, Ralph Connor, Marie Corelli, J. O. Curwood, Joseph C. Lincoln, Nellie McClung, Gilbert Parker and others.

Almost any used book shop in Canada can supply books by both if not all the old favorite authors at reasonable prices.

We usually have between five and 15 Canadian readers and about the same number of Alexandra readers on hand at any time. — Book Cellar, Regina.

Dear Book Cellar: Thank you. You are doing us all a great service.

(Please make letters to Doris (in care of this newspaper) as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

W.I. Watches New Canadians

MADOC W.I

Mrs. Wilfrid Forestell, was hostess for the November meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute held last Friday afternoon. Eighteen members were present.

The first day of the area convention held recently in Peterborough was reported by Miss Loreen Connor. Miss Connor summarized the response of several branches in the roll call "Vision with Action." There was special reference to new Canadians and what the W.I. can do for them. One speaker emphasized that now there are no nations, just individuals. More members are wanted in Asian and African countries. At present there are 80,000 members in the W.I. Members were warned that all should get used to the Metric System which is coming into effect in 1975. As a starter, it was noted that there are 500 grams in one pound. In order to widen friendship and interests, Ontario Institutes have been "twinned" with Newfoundland Institutes, and members are urged to get a pen pal and begin an interesting correspondence and exchange of ideas.

Mrs. Forestell then consid ered two topics in Agriculture — Corn and Clubs! Corn is replacing hay and grain. New varieties with greater yield and earlier maturity have been developed. Grain corn ripens on the stalks and so has to stand longer in the fields. It was with considerable pride that Mrs. Forsecill stated that the record crop for 1971 of 124.5 bushels per acre was raised on a neighboring farm just north of Madoc!

In the Club Department are Calf, Swine and Homemaking Clubs for juniors. The members learn how to conduct a meeting properly. They must keep a record book, whether they are caring for a calf or a pig or learning how to entertain or to decorate a bed room. And they must compete against clubs in Eastern Ontario at the Ottawa Fall Exhibition.

CLUB 4-H NOTES
CROOKSTON 4H CLUB

Crookston 4-H Homemaking Club held a tea party recently in the basement of the United Church.

The members' books and reference files were on display for the judges and guest mothers.

Each member participated in preparing and serving the tea. The last meeting on this project was held on Tuesday, November 16, at the home of Mrs. Francis.

At this final meeting, the members finished up their reference files and record books. Presentations were also made for Achievement Day which is to be held December 9.

Some Cautious On Transit Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nobody told Premier Wilhem Davis to keep his money.

But caution tempered the enthusiasm of some Ontario municipal officials at the premier's announcement that his government will invest $13 billion in subsidies for improved public transit facilities.

The premier's proposal Tuesday of an elevated monorail or air-cushioned service for the largest cities in the province brought a gentle suggestion from Albert Campbell, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto council, that he come down to earth.

While the premier noted that construction of an elevated line would cost $13.4 million a mile as compared with $40 million a mile for a subway, Mr. Campbell said Metro would prefer a surface route, which can double the capacity of the overhead trains' 20,000 passengers an hour.

But Mr. Campbell hailed the premier's over-all plan as "very imaginative" and said the promised provincial subsidy of 75 per cent of costs of equipment, supporting services and public transit studies will forestall any fare increase by the Toronto Transit Commission in the immediate future.

Hamilton and Ottawa, promised a smaller version of the elevated system, were happy with the proposal.

A spokesman for the Hamilton Street Railway Co. said it is in well with the city's plans and particularly hailed the prospect of a private right-of-way — "something we haven't had since they ripped the wagons to drive over the street-car tracks."

Mayor Pierre Benoit said all elected Ottawa representatives talked to me "overwhelmingly enthusiastic" about the provincial plan.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's the most important announcement affecting Ottawa to come out of Toronto in the last 10 years," he said.

Ald. Albert H. Weeks, chairman of the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway, Light and Power Co. Ltd., and Ald. W. and A.J. said any added assistance from the province will be "gratefully received."

The railway had hoped to replace its entire fleet of buses over the next 10 to 12 years. Mr. Weeks said the new program may accelerate the replacement schedule and enable the railway to look into the possibility of a dial-a-bus system, which had previously been turned down because of the capital cost of new equipment required.

Mayor Jane Bigelow of London said the city will accept the premier's invitation to submit transit development proposals when a current study by London Transportation Commission officials is completed.

The premier's plan was received with mixed feelings by Kingston officials. Dr. Robert Hay, chairman of the public utilities commission, said the city badly needs new buses but Ald. Kenneth Keyes expressed concern that the money for public transit might be diverted from subsidies for road improvements and maintenance.

Enthusiasm was restrained in St. Catharines, where City Treasurer Larry Tufford said a provincial subsidy had been promised for 1971 and 1972 but they still haven't ironed out the rules under which we'll get it.

Four Lands Control World Water Supply

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and four other countries hold control over the world's fresh water supply for the future, a world authority on water geography said Thursday.

Dr. Thadeo Wilgat, chief of the institute of hydrography at the University Marie Curie Sklodowska in Lublin, Poland, said intelligent policies are crucial if the world is to have sufficient fresh water by the year 2000.

Canada, the Soviet Union, China, Brazil and Zaire (formerly Belgian Congo) are the nations which will determine the world's supply, he said.

How they manage water resources will to a large degree determine how future nations will enjoy this basic necessity.

Dr. Wilgat—made the comments in an address in French at the University of Ottawa during the second of the Vanier Memorial lectures.

Canada would be the logical supplier of fresh water for the United States, he said. Russia would have to do the same for Europe and parts of Asia.

Human Rabies Feared

BRANTFORD (CP) — "This community will be lucky if it does not have a case of human rabies," Dr. W. E. Page, medical officer of health for Brant County said Thursday.

Although 48 people have been treated, Dr. Page said he is not sure whether everybody needing care has been identified.

A rabid dog was one of six pups given away at the Burford fair Oct. 8. All told, 71 people who were bitten, licked or scratched by the rabid dog or were treated, as were 11 other people who were in contact with it other pups in the litter.

A search located four of the other pups in the litter but the fifth dog hasn't been found although health authorities believe they know who took it from the fair—a Danny Smith of Toledo, Ohio. The dog was taken to Six Nations Indian Reserve and may have been taken into the United States since that time.

The six pups, born on a farm, have been declared free of rabies.

Flares Are Seen In Hunt for Sub

OSLO (Reuter) — Helicopters are investigating the sighting of green and yellow flares in a narrow fjord where more than 30 Norwegian navy ships are hunting for a foreign submarine, police said.

The defence command confirmed Thursday night that the flares had been observed in a branch of the Sognefjord, north of Bergen.

Norwegian planes and navy ships have been searching the fjord for the submarine—perhaps Russian—for 14 days.

The helicopters were concentrating their search on a rugged area, where mountains plunge steeply into the water, in a southern branch of the Sognefjord.

But little credence was attached to a report that a large, dark object was seen for several minutes on the surface Thursday night in another branch of the fjord before it disappeared from sight.

The search was continuing despite reports from the area that water of finding the mysterious submarine were diminishing.

The defence command said in a statement that a sonar contact in a branch opposite where the flares had been observed, did not involve a submarine.

The command gave no explanation of the report that the Norwegian frigate Trondheim had made a sonar contact with a glimmering object for about 60 minutes and that it had fired a homing device to force it to the surface.

Planes and naval vessels now have spread their area of operation over a wider area after most of them had concentrated in the Sognefjord, a narrow branch to the north, where sonar contact was made Tuesday.

Local residents have been upset by the detonation of depth charges and the unusual sight of so many navy ships practically at their doorsteps.

Johan Kleppe, the Norwegian defence minister, told parliament Thursday that military measures were being taken to force a possible submarine to surface so that it could be identified.

Political observers said, however, that it was unlikely that the government would order ships to sink a foreign submarine.

Get Girl or Be Jailed Is Choice Given Thief

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A judge who describes himself as "a romantic Italian" has ordered a 20-year-old Pennsylvania man to find himself a girlfriend or risk going to prison for five years for grand larceny.

Criminal Court Judge Alberto C. Sepe told Owen Bennett of Philadelphia Wednesday that if he wants to remain out of jail he must live with his family and find a girl.

"You need a lot of love and the best way to get that is from a girlfriend," Sepe said.

Psychiatrists testified Bennett was "mentally detached" because he had been figured during most of his youth.

Wife Bennett's mother and sister, who flew from Philadelphia for the hearing, said nearby. Sepe ordered the trio to "get close to one another—become a real family."

Then looking at Bennett's attractive, dark-haired sister, Roberta, who was wearing hot pants, the judge told the girl: "If you've got any friends as good looking as you, see if you can fix him up."

"I will, I will," the girl replied as she and her mother and brother left the courtroom.

Portugal Rejects UN Resolution

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal rejected Thursday the unanimous UN Security Council resolution on its African territories and said the council was not competent to discuss the internal affairs of member states.

A foreign ministry communique issued here said Portugal could not abandon its territories and overseas peoples injustice and irreparable harm to the overwhelming majority of the population.

The Security Council resolution Wednesday called on Portugal to begin negotiations aimed at the exercise of the right of self - determination and independence in its African territories and cease military operations in Angola, Guinea and Mozambique.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1972

Winter Carnival Planned

TRENTON (Staff) — For the first time in recent years Trenton will be holding a winter carnival, as yet unnamed.

Major J. A. MacDougall, organizer of the carnival, sponsored by CFB Trenton, announced the colorful event will probably take place in the first week of February. The shindig will tentatively last a full seven days.

Major MacDougall said a contest will be held to select a carnival name and mascot. Prizes will be awarded to the winning entrants who are asked to include a suitable name for the carnival and a related cartoon - style mascot drawing, similar to Belleville's use of the Arctic snow owl Ookpik.

Plans at present indicate the carnival will be run on a provincial basis, with a team from each military region competing in various sports events for a suitable trophy. Sports being considered are skating, hockey, bowling, curling, volleyball and numerous novelty sports. In addition there will be a contest for parade entries, ice sculpture and moustache growing.

Prevention Is Lung Cancer Cure

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The fight against lung cancer has moved into the kindergarten.

Ontario public schools, seeking to halt a smoking trend among young children, now request that Ontario Cancer Society demonstrations be given at the kindergarten level. A recent research paper revealed that smoking was not unknown even to five-year - olds beginning school.

The startling news was revealed during Thursday's five-member panel discussion about cancer, the fourth presentation in Belleville General Hospital's Rehabilitation Week.

The panel was made up of Dr. J. S. Lott, head of the therapeutic radiology department at Queen's University and director of the Ontario Cancer Foundation's Kingston Clinic; Margaret Bolster nurse and chief technician at the clinic; Mrs. Jane Parker, clinic social worker; Harry Rowlands, executive director of the Ontario Cancer Society; and Grace Johnston, chairman of the society's service to patients committee.

Miss Bolster told about a recent experience she had while visiting a public school near Kingston. A boy in Grade 3 was known to be smoking and the principal wham ted him about the dangers of smoking.

"We don't toot our horn loudly enough," he said in support of teachers.

Dean of faculties at Queen's University had asserted him in recent interviews, Mr. Smith said, that the students they were receiving now were better than any in the past.

"As a trustee I have always emphasized teamwork and that we have on the Hastings county board," he said.

Mr. Thrush said that, although education was now big business, it was difficult for him to put a dollars and cents value on education.

"The many and frequent changes coming in the future must not subvert the humanizing effects of education," he said.

He added that he was concerned with the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic and he introduced the results of an American survey that said the size of the pupil teacher ratio was not a vital factor in quality education.

constrations shown to even younger students.

"The boy wouldn't go to school unless he had a cigarette with his breakfast," said Miss Bolster: "The principal considered his death well to stop the boy from spending his lunch hour looking for butts."

Such stories are discouraging to most people but particularly to cancer researchers who point out that only five per cent of lung cancer patients survive. As Mr. Rollins stated, "Lung cancer is very difficult to determine early and if you don't catch it early, you don't cure it."

Dr. Lott said he is convinced a connection exists between lung cancer and cigarette smoking. The link is even more regrettable because medical technology has not kept pace with that of cancer.

"In the past 25 years," he said, "we haven't really made any dents in the mortality rate of lung cancer patients. This is because there haven't been any real advances in treatment programs and it's a disease of increasing incidence.

"The only conclusion — unless some sort of miracle drug or agent comes along, and there doesn't appear to be one on the horizon at the present time — is that to defeat lung cancer, we must prevent it from developing. Prevention is the name of the game in lung cancer."

The five per cent survival rate is alarmingly low, especially when compared to the average for other types of cancer — 30 to 60 per cent over all and 75 the rate when closer to 25 per cent.

Cancer of the lungs was not the only topic of discussion. More encouraging reports were revealed about cancer of the cervix and uterus, where early detection by the Pap smear test has reduced the death rate 30 per cent in the past 20 years.

Leukemia, too, is becoming more manageable as chemotherapy, or treatment by drugs, expands our knowledge. Among children, blood cancer used to mean a life expectancy of less than three months but today, even patients with acute leukemia are kept alive for three years and many for longer periods.

"This work represents a real hope," said Dr. Lott, "something we can hold out to the parents of a sick child."

Many other subjects were touched upon as the audience was invited to ask questions. One dealt with the five-year probationary period usually considered necessary before a cure is pronounced.

Miss Bolster said no-one could ever be certain they were over their disease but the likelihood increases as time goes on. Dr. Lott stated that for practical purposes, three years without recurrence meant a cure. Cervix cancer but in the case of breast cancer, flare-ups 20 years later were not unheard-of, although five years is a good average.

All five panel members urged persons who suspect they may have cancer to see their doctors immediately. Early treatment is still the best method of control, they said.

Lung Problems Complete Week

Belleville General Hospital's Rehabilitation Week concludes tonight with a public discussion about respiratory diseases.

A panel of experts, headed by Dr. D. A. MacIntosh, head of BGH's department of medicine, will analyze the team approach to rehabilitation of the respiratory patient. In addition, members of the Prince Edward - Hastings Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association will be on hand to answer questions and explain their work.

Cancer - - How to Fight It

Few at Trustee Meeting

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

It was a cosy little family gathering, the inert - like candidates meeting held by Harry J. Clarke Home and School Association last night. Almost 35 people turned out to hear the six candidates for the five Belleville seats on the Hastings County Board of Education outline their platforms.

As newcomer Donald Thrush put it: "The last board didn't leave too many planks lying around with which to build a platform."

The lack of issues was emphasized by moderator Lee Bourard.

"For the last few months I've been so involved with affairs politique that I'll give you one last chance. Would one of you like to withdraw?" he asked.

The four incumbent trustees and the two newcomers — OSD teacher Michael Roberts and auditor Donald Thrush — hung in, prompting Mr. Bourard to remark that "the first person to say he is a watchdog of the taxpayers' dollar will be muzzled."

The candidates, in alphabetical order, presented their platforms.

"If the public wanted to save money there would be no education," he said. "We are elected to spend the educational dollar as wisely as possible."

Mr. Clarke said the absence of significant problems and issues was the result of the board's two-year term of consolidation of its original goals — satisfied, secure teachers and involvement of teachers, parents and administration in education.

Everett Fairman, an elementary school principal for 23 years before she became a trustee four years ago, reminded his listeners that it was the school board that had saved the taxpayer of Belleville three mills on the dollar this year.

Mr. Fairman said two of his reasons for originally becoming a trustee had been realized — better school libraries and a bridging of the gap between elementary and secondary schools, so that both will ultimately receive an equal amount.

Macdonald Smith, 20-year veteran of school boards, large and small, presented a defence of today's education.

"We don't toot our horn loudly enough," he said in support of teachers.

Dean of faculties at Queen's University had asserted him in recent interviews, Mr. Smith said, that the students they were receiving now were better than any in the past.

"As a trustee I have always emphasized teamwork and that we have on the Hastings county board," he said.

Mr. Thrush said that, although education was now big business, it was difficult for him to put a dollars and cents value on education.

"The many and frequent changes coming in the future must not subvert the humanizing effects of education," he said.

He added that he was concerned with the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic and he introduced the results of an American survey that said the size of the pupil teacher ratio was not a vital factor in quality education.

"We have established an enviable reputation in this part of the province," he said of the board.

Trustee Miriam Graham said the Hastings county board had solved economic and managerial problems that still afflict many boards across the province. She mentioned the associate school group concept — a grouping of a secondary school and its feeder elementary schools — as an organizational system "closely watched by other counties".

Her lack of issues was emphasized by moderator Lee Bourard.

"For the last few months I've been so involved with affairs politique that I'll give you one last chance. Would one of you like to withdraw?" he asked.

The four incumbent trustees and the two newcomers — OSD teacher Michael Roberts and auditor Donald Thrush — hung in, prompting Mr. Bourard to remark that "the first person to say he is a watchdog of the taxpayers' dollar will be muzzled."

The candidates, in alphabetical order, presented their platforms.

Fair Folk Sun Prone

Eastern Ontario's Scottish heritage has produced a high incidence of skin cancer in the region, says a Kingston cancer expert.

Dr. J. S. Lott said he and his colleagues diagnose a new case of skin cancer every day at the Ontario Cancer Foundation Clinic he directs in Kingston.

"It takes internal predisposing factors and external exposing factors to get cancer," he said during a panel discussion at Belleville General Hospital Thursday.

Internally, he said the lack of skin pigment, as well as other unidentifiable factors, contribute to persons of northern European stock, leave many persons vulnerable. External, with its ultra violet rays, the sun acts as a catalyst in the formation of cancer cells, a theory supported by the large number of farm workers and laborers treated at the clinic.

"A high proportion of our patients are of north European extraction," said Dr. Lott, noting that most have fair skins and either blond or red hair.

He said Scots, who were among the first to settle this area, are of Scottish stock and therefore are not as accustomed to the sun as more southerly settlers.

The trouble spots vary in appearance, usually taking the form of raised areas with ulcerated middles, but sometimes surfacing as flat scaly patches. They may disappear periodically but if cancerous, won't heal on their own.

A nurse from the clinic recommends persons with fair complexions wear hats and use a barrier cream to ward off the sun while working outside.

The panel also criticized tub lamps, saying they emit the same dangerous rays as the sun. Most people bring the lamp too close to the skin, they added.

Harboring Houseboat Harrowing

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A runaway houseboat led to an icy adventure on the Bay of Quinte last night.

Rescue crews took more than two hours to board the boat — slamming crewsters against rocks near the Bay Bridge — to safe berth at a Belleville Yacht Club dock.

Owner of the twin - engined craft is Monty Drouillard, 25 King George Square, who is bought it earlier this week. Last weekend he brought the boat to a spot on the bay three miles west of the bridge for the Belleville Cemetery in front of his brother's cottage. The two men pulled the 34 foot craft four feet into shore and secured it with wire cable and a rope.

Apparently the knot in the cable came undone and the rope snapped," Drouillard said this morning.

He discovered the boat was missing at about 9 p.m. last night and set out into the choppy bay in a small metal craft to search for it. Only later after passing the yacht club did he discover what had happened.

An auto passenger on his way to Prince Edward County and before 6 p.m. spotted the red and white craft on the west side of the bridge and reported Belleville Provincial Police. Immediately a call was made to waterfront service — but complications began to set in.

Stu Meeks, owner of the 130 horse power rescue boat, had pulled it from the water earlier in the day to prepare for the winter freeze-up. Already, water in the yacht club slip where the boat is moored is inches deep in ice, making progress slow and painstak ing.

Meeks lowered the fiberglass sea-boat and was at the grounding scene in minutes, but not before ploughing through 200 feet of two - inch thick ice to open water.

Once at the scene, he tossed a 200-foot rope to men on board the foundering houseboat and began to tow it away from the rocks. He was helped by volunteers from the Ameliasburg Fire Department who used poles to hold the houseboat off until the rescue boat arrived.

The drama continued as he hauled the clumsy craft to and the swing bridge all the time fighting freezing swells and icy winds.

"Boy it was cold out there," he said later. "The water froze when it hit you."

More than 40 minutes elapsed before the bridge was opened and the boats were allowed to head for shore.

"It took longer for us to find out who the bridge operator was than it did for him to open from the bridge tender," Mr. Meeks recalled. "We couldn't find out who it was."

During the wait, he noticed the fuel gauge was dropping to empty. When the boat was hauled from the water that morning, one fuel tank had been left aboard and it was only partially full.

"When you're under tow, you burn a lot of extra gas," he said. "By the time we finally docked, we were right out. If it had to hold on for another half hour, we'd have been in trouble."

Once past the bridge, Mr. Meeks headed for the government dock where he hoped to ease the houseboat in as rescue personnel could assist it. But high waves nullified that plan and he was forced to head for the adjacent inlet, again covered by ice.

Here emergency transit in the building along the inlet, came to Mr. Meeks' aid by throwing him a line to attach to the houseboat. Then, after releasing the tow rope, he began to push forward through the ice while the boys on shore pulled the houseboat behind.

Within 10 minutes, both craft were moored side-by-side at the yacht club in the relative calm of the inlet. Mr. Meeks was back in his Lake-Sadle Rescue office at 8.45 p.m., two hours and 40 minutes after receiving the initial call.

The houseboat appeared to be in good condition with both pontoons intact and the rest of the body still solid. A crane will be needed to move it from its present berth to a safe resting place on shore this weekend.

Mr. Meeks took his boat, out of the water again this morning, possibly for the last time until spring.

A candidate for alderman in the civic election Dec. 4, Mr. Meeks said Tuesday night's emergency grant him a supporter's meeting but did little otherwise to disrupt his campaign.

Dance Classes Resume Dec. 5

Quinte Dance Centre has completed a successful first term and is holding registrations this week for the second term beginning Dec. 5.

It enrolled 110 students for once-a-week classes, 70 for twice a week classes, and another 30 for four classes a week. Fifteen of the students have advanced to grant work.

The dance centre has enrolled 20 adults in condition ing and ballet classes, but there was almost no response to the offer of tap and jazz dancing classes.

In addition to his regular classes, Mr. Scott is teach ing theatre movement and mime to Theatre Guild students. He has filled several guest teaching engagements in areas as distant as Buffalo and Thunder Bay. He will be guest teacher at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa next weekend.

Sewer Job Nears End

After more than two months of traffic disruption a completion date of the end of next week is now expected for the much maligned downtown Bridge Street sewer installation project.

City engineer Wilbur Pur cell said today the next few days would see the actual sewer installation completed and if hot asphalt is still available, the street could be reinstated by the end of next week.

The question mark with respect to the availability of hot asphalt is that because of the lateness of the season, asphalt plants in the area are now beginning to close for the winter.

But at least part of the Bridge Street disruption has now been ended.

Earlier this week, the short stretch from Front Street to the Lower Bridge was paved and Thursday afternoon the sewer was reopened for traffic.

Work on the storm and sanitary sewer replacement program in the downtown Bridge Street area commenced September 18 and since then has been the subject of much criticism from area merchants who claimed the timing interfered with business.

Stu's Election Recipe

Moira Cleanup Resumed

After being delayed for the past week because of equipment breakdown, the coffer dam cleanup in the lower Moira River was resumed Thursday by Leo Construction.

The contracting firm had been making good progress in removal of material remaining from the trunk sewer line installation when the engine block of the big front end loader was cracked.

The machine was taken to Toronto for repairs and is now back on the job.

Due to the height of the river, trucks are no longer able to work on the riverbed and the high wheeled front end loader has to "walk" each bucket of material to a ramp at the Dundas Street bridge.

Now as the coffer dam removal work moves north toward the Lower Bridge, this route is too time consuming and the balance of the material will be taken to the west bank of the river and loaded onto trucks at the north end of Panter's Park.

Odds Against Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — Going to the national football championship has not been a serious problem for Saskatchewan Roughriders over their event-filled history. The big problem has been winning the game and with it, the Grey Cup.

Riders have gone in quest of the coveted trophy 11 times since their inception in 1910. They have won it just once, in 1966.

Next week, Saskatchewan makes its 12th attempt. The opponent has yet to be decided but it will be either Ottawa Rough Riders or Hamilton Tiger-Cats, teams currently near the end of a week-long halftime in a 120-minute football game.

The eastern Riders hold a 12-point edge going into Sunday's second game of a two-game, total-point final in the Eastern Football Conference.

Meanwhile, Saskatchewan head coach Dave Skrien has given his team a three-day rest period which ends Sunday. The Roughriders board a plane Wednesday morning for Hamilton and final preparations for the Dec. 3 contest.

It doesn't matter to Saskatchewan which team it meets in the Grey Cup.

"We owe them both," said quarterback Ron Lancaster.

"Hamilton beat us in the 1967 Grey Cup and Ottawa beat us in the 1969 game. We owe them both."

The last decade has seen Saskatchewan in the Grey Cup three times. Prior to that there was a great void as the Roughriders made the Canadian final just once (1951) in more than 20 years.

Between 1928 and 1934, Saskatchewan journeyed east six times for the championship, albeit under another name, and each time they came away second best. Their first test in 1923 was probably one of the most humiliating defeats ever. They were stunned 54-0 by Queen's University.

While the Roughriders' record in Grey Cup competition leaves something to be desired, at least two of their performances in playoff competition should be marked with asterisks in record books.

Riders were down 21-7 at half-time and 24-7 early in the third period of Western final, and it looked as though Winnipeg had only to conduct mop-up operations to sweep the aging Riders under the rug.

Maybe that was the mistake because the Bombers soon found the Riders were far from dead and when time ran out the score was 27-24 for Saskatchewan.

That comeback was a snap compared with the one in 1963, the year Saskatchewan squeaked into the final playoff berth with a record of 7-7-2.

The semi-final then was a two-game total-point effort and, Calgary Stampeders were the opponent, a powerful adversary with the highest-scoring offence in the league.

Stampeders shell-shocked the Riders 35-9 in the first game and pressed into Regina the next weekend to deliver the coup de grace.

The surprise was missing from their gain when they left Regina because Saskatchewan had crushed them 39-12 to win the semi-final by one point. Riders lost the final to British Columbia Lions two games to one.

'49ers Skin Dallas

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Allen and his Washington Redskins became the recipients of a Thanksgiving Day present from San Francisco 49ers, which shattered a succession of jinxes with a 31-10 rout of defending Super Bowl champion Dallas.

With the win, the 'Skins moved a half game ahead of Los Angeles Rams in the National Conference West on a 6-4 record.

The Redskins now can clinch the best record in the NFC East with victories in two of their last four games, leaving the Cowboys to scramble for the "wild card" berth.

Dallas is 8-3 and 1½ games behind the Redskins. The "wild card" spot in the National Football League playoffs is open to the division runner-up with the best record. Right now, that's Dallas in the NFC.

In Thursday's other NFL clash, Detroit quarterback Greg Landry scored on one touchdown and scored two others on quarterback sneaks as the Lions beat New York Jets 37-20.

The expected passing duel between Landry and New York Joe Namath didn't materialize as these players barely threw a pass. Instead, Mike Taylor of the Lions and John Riggins and Clif McElmurry of the Jets.

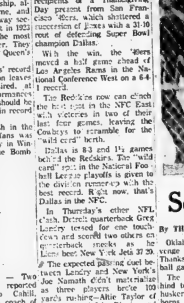
Linebacker Skip Vanderbundt scored on a recovered fumble and 21 yards with an interception to give Detroit touchdowns and quarterback Steve Spurrier turned in a poised performance before.

It was the first victory for Lions coach Dick Nolan over Tom Landry his former boss and old team-mate, and marked the first time in 16 games Dallas had lost in Texas Stadium, a pro's $21 million football palace.

With Dallas leading 7-0 and defender Dave Wilcox and Vanderbundt teamed for a spectacular play that turned the game around in the second quarter.



Wilcox clobbered Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton.

Vanderbundt said: "The ball took one bounce and there it was. I just scooped it up and ran. It must have looked as if I was trottin', but I was running for my life."

Fallas dominated the first half, allowing only five first downs, but the 49ers turned it around, giving the Cowboys only four first downs in the second half.

Spurrier, playing in place of the injured John Brodie, hit 16 of 24 passes for 177 yards, including a 12-yard touchdown pass to tight end Ted Kwalick.

Besides the fumble, Morton suffered two interceptions before he was roundly booed and replaced by Roger Staubach.

Ottawa Rough Riders took an early lead Saturday in Ottawa in the Eastern Football Conference finals as Rider Banker Rhome Nixon (75) catches a touchdown pass from quarterback Rick Cassata. Defending is Hamilton Tiger-Cat Mike Blum (70) and other Ti-Cat players. Ottawa scored a 19-7 win over the Cats in last Saturday's opener. The teams meet Sunday in determine the eastern representative in the Grey Cup.

Cahill Shuns Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Montreal newspapers reported Thursday that Leo Cahill, recently dismissed as coach of the Toronto Argonauts, was also approached two weeks ago about a coaching job in Montreal.

Cahill, fired by Argos owner John Bassett after the 1971 Eastern Football Conference champions finished last this year and missed the playoffs, held a news conference in Toronto Wednesday to "make it crystal clear" that he has no desire to be a coach or general manager of any Canadian Football League team.

But in telephone interviews with The Star and La Presse after the conference Cahill said that while he had never had a concrete offer from Montreal, he had received a telephone call two weeks ago from the Alouettes general manager J. J. Albrecht.

"I got a call two weeks ago from Albrecht telling me to sit tight that something might be opening up there," The Star quotes Cahill as saying. "That's all, and I didn't take him seriously."

Earlier this week it was reported that head coach Sam Etcheverry and Albrecht had been dismissed by Alouette owner Sam Berger. The Montreal owner subsequently denied the report and said he currently was evaluating "the whole situation."

Berger said Thursday he had nothing to add to his earlier statement that any announcement will come at a later date, perhaps as early as today.

Cahill told the Montreal writers that he understood that several stories had been written in which his name had been prominently mentioned as a successor to either Etcheverry or Albrecht, or both.

The former Argo coach, an assistant here from 1969 to 1971 under Jim Trimble, then repeated that he didn't plan to coach in Montreal or, "anywhere else in the CFL for that matter."

"I know what Sam and J. J. must be going through right now," Cahill told the Star. "It's a deplorable situation and I'd never want to be associated with an organization that does business in that manner.

"Had someone come to me before this mess developed and offered me the job, with a clear-cut mandate to coach without any interference, my answer might have been yes — but now — no way.

Ti-Cats Hope to 'Rally'

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cat fans are drawing on precedent in hopes of ensuring their team a spot in the Grey Cup.

The fans will hold a giant rally Saturday night in front of a downtown hotel, hoping to cheer the Ticats to a win over Ottawa Rough Riders in Sunday afternoon's second half of the Eastern Football Conference playoff.

The Riders hold a 12-point edge in the round, thanks to a 19-7 win in Ottawa last week-end.

The rally will include introduction of head coach Jerry Williams and the Tiger-Cat players, club cheerleaders, Mayor Vic Copps, 48 pieces band and Bill Wirtz, the man who leads rousing renditions of "Oskee-wee-wee," the Ticats fight-ing song.

In 1959, a rally was held following a 17-5 loss to the Rough Riders. The next day, the arrested Ticats took Ottawa apart 21-7 and won the round 28-24.

The next year Toronto Argonauts bounced the Ticats 27-7 in Toronto, but following another rally Hamilton beat Toronto 48-2.

Again in 1964 a rally followed a 30-13 loss to Ottawa and sure enough Hamilton won the next game 26-8 to take the round 39-38.

There were no rallies the last two years and both times the Tiger-Cats were beaten in the round: 43-26 by Montreal in 1970 and 40-25 by Toronto last year.

But there are some Hamilton players who don't need a rally to get them worked up. Defensive back Lewis Porter is one of them.

He says last week's loss has been gnawing at him and he's burning to get on to the field Sunday.

"Naturally, I've never been in this situation before, but I guess it's just like being in the 12 points at halftime," said Porter. "Look at that game between Saskatchewan and Winnipeg last year when Saskatchewan did it. With our kind of offence we should be able to do it."

The 19-7 loss to Ottawa was by worse than in any regular-season game this year for the powerful Ticats, who did lose an exhibition by a larger margin, 28-13 to Calgary.

However, coach Williams doesn't seem unduly concerned; also calling on precedent to bolster his confidence.

"We were down 13 points to Montreal in the first 16 minutes and bounced back," he said.

Garney Henley, the EFC's nominee for the Canadian Football League's most valuable player, said: "The big thing will be aggressive, something we weren't in Ottawa."

Gotta Gets Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Jack Gotta's job in rebuilding Ottawa Rough Riders in three seasons to a contender for the Eastern Football Conference championship hasn't been unnoticed by club owner David Loeb.

"Jack has done a great job," said Loeb Thursday as he ticked off some of the stars the Riders lost since winning the 1969 Grey Cup. Among those who left gaping holes to fill were quarterback Russ Jackson, end Margene Adkins and halfback Vic Washington.

Loeb said in an interview that he and the coach have agreed not to talk about renewing Gotta's contract—it expires this season—until the Riders finish playing.

Ottawa meets the Tiger-Cats in Hamilton at 2 p.m. EST Sunday in the second game of their two-game, total-points series for the EFC title. Ottawa won the first game 19-7.

There has been talk that Gotta has offers from other pro clubs but Loeb sounded confident he'll have first crack at Gotta's services.

"We agreed to talk at the end of the season and Jack is an honorable man," he said.

When Loeb bought the Riders in the spring of 1968, he said he looked forward to the challenge of being involved in pro football and also of making the club a profitable operation.

"It's been great fun," he said of his four years of owning the team.

Financially, Ottawa lost "quite a few dollars" in 1968. Since then it has operated in the black.

Loeb, a businessman, said he took the first year learning the ropes of operating a team and didn't interfere with his hired help.

But now he is involved in its day-to-day operations and says he put in some investment to helped trim costs.

All was quiet on the football front in Ottawa Thursday.

Because of its condition—footing and frozen—Gotta is taking the team to Hamilton today for workouts on the artificial turf.

Hamilton fans are planning a giant rally Saturday night and the hope is it will inspire the Ticats to a hot win Sunday.

"We have things of our own to do," commented Gotta. "And we don't scare easily."

The game will be televised nationally by CTV with the series winner advancing to the Grey Cup national championship against Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday, Dec. 3 in Ottawa.

The magic numbers in pro basketball Thursday night were 42 and 33.

Charlie Scott threw in 42 points for Phoenix as the Suns beat Detroit Pistons 128-122 and snapped a five-game losing streak in the National Basketball Association.

Scott scored 28 of his points in the second half, including several key baskets when the Pistons pulled within four points of the Suns late in the game. Curtis Rowe topped Detroit with 35.

Cats Aim For Road Perfection

The Belleville Bobcats will hope to continue their 3-0-2 road record in Metro Junior "B" hockey play with a win over Oshawa tonight. The Bobcats come off 6-4 home game loss to the Oshawa club.

"We'll have some line switching to do for tonight's game," said coach Moe Hunter. "Ricky Meredith is away on a school trip to West Virginia. Andy Ricketts bruised his ankle in the last game and since then has aggravated the injury."

"We've called up Peter Smrke and Jimmy Richardson from the Vernon Tire juveniles to take their places," said the coach.

Richardson has not played regular season for the Bobcats, who are now in third place in the league standings behind Markham and Peterborough, but he did play in three exhibition games. "He scored some goals for us," said Hunter.

Darryl Cole will be out of the Bobcat line-up till December 19 under a game suspension by the OHA as a result of his fighting and misconduct penalties at the Brampton Blues game of November 12th.

Quinte Rink Leaves Country

Curlers may have to draw into the house to score points, but they do not necessarily have to stay there.

Belleville rink out of the Quinte Curling Club has gone to the International Curling Match at Winchester, Massachusetts.

The Ontario Curling Association rinks, consisting of the Belleville rink, Dundas, Mississauga, Erin, Hamilton, Brighton, Oshawa, Orillia and a composite rink from the OCA executives, will play against rinks from the Grand National Club U.S.A.

In the sixth international series competition for the Ross Carlton Shield, which Grand National won last year in Belleville, the OCA rinks hope to even up the series to a 3-3 tie.

Harlem in Bayside?

The Harlem Diplomats basketball team, more likely than not, will diplomatically defect the assembled athletic department coaches of the Belleville area's high schools.

The Diplomats, a basketball team akin to the Harlem Globetrotters, will be taking on the unsuspecting teachers at Bayside Secondary School at 8:00 p.m. Saturday.

BCI's Brian McKenzie, Centennial's Bob Hall, Frankford Moira's Dave Sneddon, and nine other male members of the Bayside staff will be taking on such players as hilarious pivot Clyde Frazier, jumping Charlie Cook and Ed (Dizzy) Hester.

Phil Meeks, at 5'5" will be jumping at centre against players reaching 6'7". "He jumps well," said coach Cam Baxter of Meek's efforts at centre.

When asked if his team had practised for the big game, coach Baxter said, "With our years of experience in clean living, we don't need to practise." The response of students to this team of razzle dazzle ball handlers has been encouraging.

The Trenton Secondary quarterback will be trying three kicks, punts, and passes for the Spalding Trophy at the National Final. Robert Lelievald, a 15 - year - old from Winnipeg's Pop Warner League will be David's western division Hamilton.

The 10 to 12 year old youngsters will be competing against each other for "A" and "B" finishing places. These two teams will play for the tournament cup in both girls and boys divisions.

"Between 275 and 300 children involved in this tournament can this way compete with other board area schools."

Let's Keep CFL All-Canadian

by Eric Emerson Sports Editor

New York Cazsocks vs Hartford Hounties for the 1976 Grey Cup?

It would be a fitting tribute to Canadian nationalism if that possibility were to happen. We read American publishers have our advertising trends determined in large part by Madison Avenue, and just when was the last time you watched a Canadian movie?

O.K., let's sell our waterdrain our brains and import American University profs, but couldn't we make here the Grey Cup? A spectacle that is supposed to draw Canadians together through sport would lose more than a little significance with Edmonton Eskimos battling Pottstown Firebirds for the mythical $12 title.

The Grey Cup has been our only big league sporting event with significant Canadian content. Odds are 5-1 that Canada won't win the Stanley Cup which was once a Canadian institution. The Montreal Expos will face American opposition when they finally make it to the world series.

What other occasion, sports or otherwise, brings as many of our countrymen together for a Sunday bottle of Labatts or a Monday morning Bloody Mary Cup each year? Has been much more than a football game, it's given supposedly staid Canadians a chance to assemble and, "let it all hang out".

The proposed - move to allow - American entries in the CFL was brought about by the Eastern teams, who apparently are tired of helping to subsidize stadiums in western cities and the inept Alouettes through gate equalization.

While it must be a terrible financial strain for the "haves" such as Toronto, Hamilton and British Columbia to operate under such a system, the clubs can't be entirely destitute.

The Argos have paid out huge amounts of money to sign American stars like Joe Theisman, Jim Stillwagon, Greg Barton, Tim Anderson, Leon McQuay and Eric Allen. It hardly sounds like a team on its last financial legs.

British Columbia outbid Chicago Bears for the rights to Johnny Musso, while Hamilton didn't pick up rookie coach Chuck Easley for used STELCO coupons. If teams can afford this kind of talent there must be some hope of financial solvency.

If, through government help or other means, we can't keep the CFL entirely Canadian, why not just drop the whole issue? The NFL would welcome Toronto, Vancouver and maybe even Montreal with open tentacles.

Certainly if American entries join the CFL, it won't be long before the "import" rule, "three Yanks and lock" field motion will go the way of the American Dollar. If we're going to be subjected to grid action as played in the Land of the Free and the Home of the Buck, let's see the best line up we can offer (the NFL) not some watered down substitute.

On the other hand, couldn't costs be sliced by such measures as dropping? Rather than increasing, the number of imports allowed on a team? American football players are better trained, have more experience and hire better publicity agents than their Canadian counterparts. They're also more expensive when it comes to talking contract.

Canadian college teams at the moment can't begin to compare with the quality of American 'school entries and it's probably desirable that they never do. Academics coaches and under-the-table payments are as much a feature of the American college game as triple-threat halfbacks.

The calibre of Canadian play is improving, however. The "Big Four" of Queens, Toronto, Western and McGill no longer hold a market on the quality players as evidenced by Waterloo Lutheran's march to the College Bowl.

Wouldn't local fans be just as interested in watching another local product like Terry Wellesley competing for Calgary as they would be all-American Billy Taylor?

Some rule changes could be put into effect as well, to spice up the home product. How about blocking on punt returns, while maintaining the five-yard buffer zone for punt receivers? It would avoid the fair catch rule, but at the same time offer the possibility of football's most exciting play — a long broken field run. As it is now, most punt returns are three yards and a cloud of tartan turf. Another possibility would be the addition of a two-point conversion which would give coaches the option of going for a tie or a win in say, a 14-13 situation.

In short, why can't we put our football house in order rather than become the 51st gridiron state?

Meet Kingston Tonight

Quintes' Candidates All Sizes

The "long and the short" of it is that the Belleville Quintes eventually will have to rely upon a winning OHA Senior A combination, and they're continuing to inspect players in hopes of reaching that goal.

The "long" of it will be centre John Grant, who towers in the six - foot - five neighborhood, while the "short" will be left winger Ray Johnston, who requires about a foot less head space.

Both players will be in Belleville's lineup for tonight's 9 p.m. home encounter with the Kingston Aces and both should be familiar faces to local fans.

Johnston, who performed in this city for four seasons up back from a stint in the California Golden Seals' organization where his brother Joe is one of the mainstays of the NHL 'team. Ray was seventh on the Quintes' scoring list last year with eight goals and 14 assists, but his main assets are hustle and checking ability. Both commodities are required in the Quintes' system which is in the midst of a five-game losing streak.

The Peterborough native will be inserted into Ralph Plante's left wing position with Doug Senior and Bob Taylor. Plane, the Quintes' captain, could not suit up in six weeks with a badly fractured left foot Friday's loss to Barrie. The team is attempting to come up with some type of face guard which would allow the rugged forward to return to action at an earlier date.

RAY JOHNSTON

Junior B league two years ago. The lean, centre has an excellent puck control playor with the powerful Oshawa entry. Another native of Peterborough, he's slated to centre Paul Grills and Wayne McConnell.

A third newcomer to the Belleville line-up is defenceman Frank Sawyer, who last played intermediate hockey in Cobourg and has impressed the Quintes' with his showing in the last two practice sessions.

Local fans will also get their first look at goalie Karl Bagnell! The Michigan State grad turned in an impressive performance last Sunday in a 4-1 loss to Barrie as he kicked out 52 shots.

Rookie Steals Thunder From Jets' Golden Jet

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull came back and Winnipeg Jets are glad he did, but a minor league veteran stole the Golden Jet's thunder Thursday night.

Hull was back in uniform in the World Hockey Association after missing Tuesday's game because of legal problems. And he scored a power-play goal to send the Winnipeg-Houston game into overtime.

However, Keke Mortson, a 38-year-old who has kicked around the minor leagues for years, scored in overtime to give the Across a 6-5 decision over Hull and his Jet mates.

In other action, Chicago Cougars thrashed the Nationals 8-1 in Ottawa and Minnesota Fighting Saints roared a 4-3, home decision over Los Angeles Sharks.

Gord Labossiere gave Houston a 1-0 lead with the only goal of the first period. In the second, the Jets scored four times—goals from Steve Cuddie and Dune Rousseau gave them the lead before Ted Taylor tied it for the Aeros. Then Ab McDonald and Norm Beaudin put them up 4-2 going into the third.

Houston scored three goals in slightly more than six minutes of the final period with Duke Harris, Labossiere again and Brian McDonald scoring. Then McDonald took a penalty and just 54 seconds later Hull sent the game into overtime with his goal.

In Ottawa in a game played in relative privacy— just 1,750 fans showed up—Chicago scored five first-period goals and coasted the rest of the way.

Ottawa scored its only goal, by Brian Conacher, in the first period. Chicago got one in the second and two in the third.

Rick Morris scored twice for Chicago with Den Lodbon, Reverre Paiement, Jan Popiel, Reg Fleming, Ron Anderson and Bob Liddington sharing the others.

Los Angeles scored two third-period goals in Minnesota before 5,269 fans, but it was too little, too late as the Fighting Saints held on for the win.

Minnesota jumped into a 4-0 lead with two goals in the first period and two in the second. Ted Hampson and Mel Peerren scored in the first and Keith Christiansen and Wayne Connelly in the second—Connelly's turned out to be the winner.

Mike Byers scored in the second for Los Angeles but the cause looked hopeless as Mike Curran was playing brilliantly in goal for the Fighting Saints.

In the third, Bill Yeats scored twice for the Sharks who outzho Minnesota 15-9 and 49-38 over - all. However, Curran continued to play well and Minnesota earned the two points.

Tonight, Alberta Oilers play New England, the Sharks are at Cleveland to play the Crusaders, Minnesota plays a away against Philadelphia and Quebec les Nordiques play the Jets in Winnipeg.

Bad News for Rivals -- Bruins Back in Form

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bad news for the rest of the National Hockey League: Things are getting back to normal with Boston Bruins.

Bobby Orr led the club to victory Thursday night, Phil Esposito scoring two goals as the Bruins knocked off California Golden Seals 4-2. Esposito picked up two assists and took over the scoring lead with 32 points, one more than Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens.

In Boston, Sheppard scored the game's first goal, but Bert Marshall tied it up for the Seals about midway through the first period.

Then Orr went to work, rifling home a 45-foot slapshot from the point on a power play in the period ended 2-1. The league's top defenceman, who missed no action last weekend after knee surgery in the summer, fired home another slapshot for the only goal of the second period.

Rick Smith scored on a power play in the third and the Seals were still in contention, thanks to the rebounding of Gilles Meloche. However, Mike Walton sailed the game away for the Bruins with a goal at 18:31 of the last period.

The Rangers jumped into a 2-0 lead as Jean Ratelle scored in the first and second periods. However, before the second was over, Buffalo tied the score on goals by Craig Ramsey and Done Luce.

Then the Sabres scored three times in the final period with Rene Robert, Gerry Meehan and Jim Lorentz, his second, the marksmen. Vic Hadfield scored for New York in the third.

The loss left the Rangers four points behind leading-Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division. Boston is third with 24 points, four behind New York, and Buffalo trails the Bruins by one.

Tonight, Montreal plays the Canucks in Vancouver and Boston travels to Atlanta to play the Flames.

PHIL ESPOSITO

...alo is leading the league in scoring and they've come up with a hot scoring rookie.

So far this year, the Stanley Cup champions have been a solo club with Orr out of the lineup and Esposito off to a slow start. They also lost five of last year's club, either in the draft or to the World Hockey Association.

However, Thursday night, Orr looked like the superstar of old.

NHL Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins 29 games, but he is now in the same place that he was at the end of last year—namely in first place of the National Hockey League scoring race.

Esposito picked up two assists in the Bruins game last night against California, giving him a total of 32 points, one more than Jacques Lemaire of the Canadiens, who had been the leader in scoring up until Thursday.

The leaders:

Vancouver Makes Permanent Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's government and national Olympic Committee, in favor of Denver, Colorado, but was revived last week after Denver pulled out following protests by citizens over the cost.

Thursday night, however, the Vancouver-Garibaldi Winter Olympic Committee said in a prepared statement that the committee, in effect, had rested its case.

The committee said it would prepare a new bid to meet the Jan. 15 IOC deadline for applications only if funds were forthcoming immediately from government.

Although the federal and provincial governments each pledged $10 million to the Olympic cause in 1970, both view the prospective new bid with less enthusiasm.

Federal Health Minister John Munro told the Vancouver-Garibaldi committee Tuesday that Ottawa would not contribute unless Victoria did, and Premier Barrett said Thursday it was unlikely the British Columbia government would put up any cash no matter what happens.

Original over-all cost of staging the Games at Garibaldi was estimated at $46 million, with a deficit of $21 million. New cost-estimates range from $54 million to $60 million.

John Fraser, newly - elected Conservative member of Parliament for Vancouver South and former chairman of the Vancouver-Garibaldi committee, said Thursday night he supports Premier Barrett's opposition to the Games. He said he feels the mood of the public has shifted since the original bid was made, when 103,000 people signed telegrams supporting the application.

Alaskan Priest Makes Milk Wine

As a side product, they also produce cheese with an alcohol content varying from five to six per cent.

Operating in Alaska's only bonded winery, Father Engel and his brother, George, praise their product.

"It's impossible to get drunk on it," he claims. It's said to be a ladies' drink because you can drink and drink and it won't make you foolish."

However, he says his product, strained to an alcoholic content of 11 per cent from non-fat dry milk, "loosens the tongue; you can go over the moon, write poetry and sing."

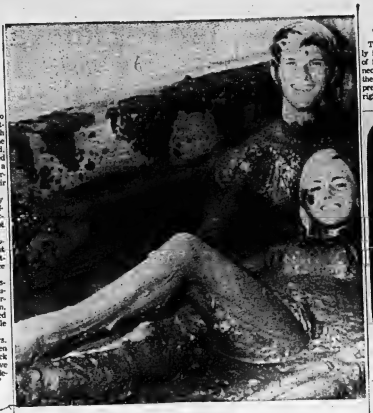
The quest for the wine began with a family vow made more than 300 years ago.



The story is that those who consumed wine made from cottage cheese fermented with honey were immune to the plague. His family was saved, the tale goes, and they pledged to God they would develop a formula for making and marketing the wine that saved their lives.

Father Engel says whey wine has always been considered unstable because the fermentation process could not be stopped.

In 1948, he solved the problem and took out a patent while studying for the priesthood. The formula has since been improved.

He has worked as a missionary in the Yukon communities of Mayo, Atlin, Carcross and Haines Junction, but says: "I never stopped brewing. I always had a little brew on hand."

"Babies love it," he says. "Old folks who haven't been eating love it. Animals kick up their heels after they've drunk some. It's the most delightful thing in the world."

Police Honor Women Braving Knife-wielders

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto women have won citations from Metropolitan Toronto Police for standing up against knife-wielding youths in separate incidents.

Mrs. Jean Steane, a 42-year-old former policewoman, subdued a knife-wielding youth in a subway station Aug. 7.

The knife-wielder had stabbed another youth who then chased him into a ticket-taker's booth manned by Alvin Raymer.

"Mr. Raymer was trying to hold them apart," said Mrs. Steane. "But it was obvious he couldn't hold on very long and the youth still had the knife.

Some men were standing around doing nothing about it and that angered her," said Mrs. Wesley.

She then picked up a service dispenser and hit the bandit on the back of the neck as he was leaving the store with some stolen money.

Mrs. Wesley stayed in the store to comfort the clerk who had been robbed and then gave police a description of the attacker which led to the arrest of a youth.

SPALDING, England (CP) — Lincolnshire police were in for a pleasant surprise when they halted a car which they had been informed, was carrying a body in the trunk. The body, it was discovered, was the driver's wife, sitting in the trunk tapping a faulty gasoline pump to keep it working.

Welfare Less Than Survival Rate

TORONTO (CP)—The monthly income for a welfare family of four is nearly $50 below the necessities for survival set by the government, says a report prepared by a local welfare rights group.

The report, prepared by Operation Family Rights said that, under current welfare rates, schedule payments "are inadequate in the sense that they do not allow people money to purchase goods and services necessary for survival in our modern society."

The 75-member group, which recently won a three card for recipients of the provincially-administered welfare program, now wants an increase in the welfare rates.

Bravest Athlete Goes Distance

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (CP) — He is able to swim the Irish Sea but he is unable to cross his legs. He defies sharks and jellyfish but his pulse won't operate normally.

At 23, he is probably one of the world's bravest, most unheralded and zaniest athletes with boundless energy and an immense reserve of personal strength.

But try as he may, this chunky, powerful swimmer literally is unable to cross his legs.

And there's more: Murphy has developed two extra bones on the inside of his pelvis and has a pulse rate about one-third slower than the average.

"It's mysterious—makes me a bit of a freak," he says.

Murphy, a reporter on The Evening Echo, the local newspaper in this Hertfordshire town, doesn't spend much time thinking about these physical changes.

"It has something to do with my swimming, I think," he says.

Doctors say the most likely explanation for his condition is, in fact, the three hours or so of swimming which he does every day.

They say the huge thigh muscles he has developed are structured in such a way that they simply don't allow his legs to cross. The extra pelvic bones have probably been needed to support these muscles and constant exercise has led to a reduced pulse rate.

At any rate, there is no doubt why Murphy has become the tough, powerful figure he now is.

Apart from his exacting daily practice sessions, he is the first man to swim the 66 miles around the Isle of Wight non-stop. That "little adventure" involved an excruciating 35 hours in the water.

He's also managed to cross the English Channel both ways without a break and now is looking for a sponsor to help defray the costs of a three-way Channel swim.

Among his other preoccupations: He'd like to swim the stormy North Sea; cross the Irish Sea both ways—he's already made a one-way crossing—and take part in long-distance swims in Canada and the United States.

No one has ever managed to swim the Irish Sea before and nobody has even considered a three way crossing of the Channel.

"My mind concentrates on the end of the swim but otherwise, it's inactive," he said in an interview. "Always, there's the knowledge in the background that if I can just finish it this time, I won't ever have to do it again."

Murphy considers his major failures to be two unsuccessful attempts to make a return crossing of the Irish Sea. His first effort ended when he got caught in a gale and the second, in July, was abandoned after nine hours of relentless stinging by schools of jellyfish.

But for Murphy, the real challenges in a long-distance swimmer are to be found in North America.

"That's where the sport is recognized and I'd like to get involved."

His problem is money. Working for The Echo, a newspaper owned by Glandford-born Lord Thomson of Fleet, he earns a standard salary of about $6,000 a year.

"To swim in North America, I'd have to give up my job and since I want to stay in journalism, that's a pretty difficult decision.

"To keep in shape, Murphy plans to swim the 18 miles across South Africa's False Bay in January. He will be surrounded by a large steel cage and accompanied by armed divers. The boy is infested with man-eating sharks.

"I also have a fiance whom I see sometimes. Not often, you'll understand."

Penguins Post Hot NHL Pace

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Even Jack Riley, general manager of Pittsburgh Penguins, is at a loss to explain the surge that has boosted his club into a share of the lead in the National Hockey League's Western Division.

"I'm not sure just what makes us go like we have," said Riley. "but whatever it is, I hope it keeps up."

The Penguins, 11-9-1, have won four straight and are tied with Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars for the division lead. They return to action Saturday night against New York Islanders.

In their latest victory, a 10-4 thumping of St. Louis Blues Wednesday night, the Penguins broke an NHL record by scoring five goals in two minutes and seven seconds.

The old record was five goals in three minutes, 46 seconds by New York Rangers in a 1942 victory over the now-defunct New York Americans.

"It'd have to say our guys were driving," said Riley. Richard used to have to get down toward the goal line and get a shot."

Only on end the Penguins' five goals in the record-breaking span might have been considered a fluke. It came when the puck glanced off Pronovist's skate into the net.

Meanwhile, the Penguins can get a club record with five straight victories if they stop the Islanders here Saturday night.

To England

Elwood Glover, producer of Drew Crowsan and the Luncheon Date crew visited England in October where they filmed some 60 10 minute interviews in nine days.

Cahill's Cohorts Look for Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — When Leo Cahill was dismissed as Toronto Argonaut head coach, three other men also lost their jobs—Cahill's assistants.

Gord Ackerman, Frank (Blackie) Johnston and Jim Rountree now are among the unemployed. Ackerman and Johnston said Thursday they'd be happy to work outside football so they could continue living in the Toronto area.

However, Rountree wants to stay in the game and has applied for Cahill's job.

"I had a talk with John Barrow and I was neither encouraged nor discouraged," said Rountree, who has been with the Argos for 13 years, 10 as a player and five as a coach. "Naturally, he couldn't make any decision yet. He'll have a lot of people to talk to."

Johnston has lived in Canada 11 years. Before coming here he was an assistant coach in Vancouver and played for Frank Leahy's unbeaten Notre Dame team in 1949.

Ackerman coached at New Mexico Military Institute and then went to Regina as an assistant coach. He came to Toronto in 1965 with then head coach Bob Shaw.

SATURDAY, NOV. 25

Aries (March 2-April 19): Week-end activity is exceptionally stimulating. Everything you try in connect produces a strong result.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Now is the time to talk family budgets, group projects, vacations yet to come, any likely relocations.

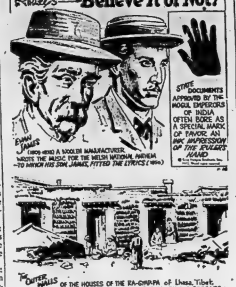
Gemini (May 21-June 20): So much is going on you can keep little track of it. Being yourself first and concentrating on what you believe in doing pays off.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Complex conditions engender oversights. Where deception is intended you have little protection. Stay on the surface.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your keenest intuitions are barely enough to sort through the tinsel and oats of today's crosscurrents. Everybody has his own scheme.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trying to get only the best and waiting for a more definite opportunity causes problems—take what's handy and make the most of it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Not all business ideas can work out—this is a silly season for wild projects. Rely on tested routines and marketing formulae.



Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial ventures have built-in complications—letting well enough alone for another cycle is the most desirable course.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Assuming that anything has remained where you last saw it is chancy. Expect people to have gone on without keeping you informed.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Theories are shot full of holes if exploded with few alternative explanations handy. Motives are difficult to assess.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Without knowing it, you get in your own way, work in directions which contradict those trying to be helpful.

Tubal Ligation Won't Cause Pain

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am going to have a tubal ligation at the birth of my third baby. (I am 27).

I—Can I expect unusual pain or a longer hospital stay than is normal after having a baby?

2—Is there a period of waiting to see if the surgery "took;" as with a vasectomy?

3—Am I to expect painful menstrual cramps, as two of my friends report? I have never had cramps in the past.

4—What are my chances of becoming pregnant after the surgery? (I got pregnant after 17 beautiful successful months with "the coil." You can see my predicament.)

The answers are no, no, no, and none.

Your hospital stay should not be longer than usual and no unusual pain.

There is no waiting to see whether the surgery "took" because the situation is different. With a vasectomy, it takes some time to get rid of sperm that is still lingering in the ducts.

With a tubal ligation the Fallopian tubes are cut and tied and there is no way the ovum to get through to be fertilized.

The chance of pregnancy, therefore, is zero. (While the IUD or "coil" is fairly good at preventing pregnancy, it does not always afford complete protection).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a sinus condition and post-nasal drip and as a result have bad breath. What can be done? Mouthwash is only a temporary aid.

I know of no shortcut other than correcting the basic problem which is the sinus infection and post-nasal drip.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there harm in eating raw, and I mean raw, meat which has been liberally sprinkled with tenderizer? My daughter does this and also gives it to her young children.

I know there is no harm in eating meat cooked with tenderizer but am worried sick since I discovered my daughter feeding her children this mess.

The tenderizer is destroyed in the cooking and will do no harm. The real danger in raw meat is picking up a tapeworm. Cooking would destroy it. And iron raw pork there is the danger of trichinosis—and again cooking eliminates the danger.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor found fibroid tumors of the uterus and took me off hormones and birth control pills. Fibroid tumors eventually have to be removed? I asked my doctor and his answer was, 'Everyone is different; I can't say."—Mrs. W.R.

Hormones (including birth control pills) can make fibroids grow faster sometimes. Most fibroids should be removed eventually? No! If they become too large or otherwise cause trouble, they are removed, but in many cases they tend to shrink after menopause time, and nothing needs to be done about them.

Opening Lead Quiz

Here is an opening lead problem presented by the British Bridge World magazine to a group of international stars. You are South. East-West are vulnerable, and the bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Dble
5 ♦	Pass	Dble	Pass
Pass	Pass

Your hand is:

♠ K 7 4 3 ♥ A 9 2 ♦ 9 8 6 4 ♣ A 8 3 2

Which card would you lead?

The panel voted: 8 for the ace of hearts; 3 for the ace of clubs; two for the three of spades; 1 for the jack of diamonds.

Alan Hiron, conductor of the panel, commented: "This is a fairly easy one. It seems a good idea to lead an ace in order to inspect dummy before deciding upon the best method of attack. Unfortunately, it is possible this may be too late and releasing the ace can prove fatal. If the opening trick must come from a ruff in partner's hand, either the ace of clubs or a low spade lead looks better than the ace of hearts.

Other comments were:

LE DENTU: Ace of hearts. I want to see dummy. I hope I won't be punished for being so curious!

CROWHURST: ...Ace of hearts. Curious bidding this; somebody is bidding on distribution. The defence must be directed onto the right lines as soon as possible and the ace of hearts surely cannot damage partner's hand.

FLEISCHER: Three of spades. We may be able to come to a ruff somewhere. My plan is to lead a spade and when in with the ace of hearts try the ace of clubs. I should then be able to judge whether partner wants a spade ruff or an other club.

NUNES: Ace of clubs. My first instinct was the ace of hearts, but why not the ace of clubs retaining trump control? If I get set up a club suit, there are unlikely to be any discards for declarer while I've still got the ace of hearts. I could lead a trump of clubs. This will defeat the contract if partner has a singleton or doubleton club, or even a singleton shape (I can switch to trick four). The ace of hearts could be a disastrous lead, giving up control. P. S. Why did I double?

SMART: Jack of diamonds. All passive spots, all suddenly abandoned.

For the record, the ace of hearts would have been disastrous, for partner had a singleton club — as well as a singleton heart!

Tomorrow: Well done.

Believed It Pot And High They Got

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than half the subjects in a three-year marijuana study got "high" on a harmless substitute after being told it was the real thing, university psychiatrists said Thursday.

Results of the study "are much the same as they are for intelligent marijuana user has discovered for himself," said Dr. Jerome Low of the University of British Columbia psychiatric department.

A total of 81 subjects, aged 19 to 31 and evenly divided between men and women, used precisely calibrated quantities of marijuana of standard strength supplied by the federal food and drug directorate.

—Marijuana is intoxicating, but its effects are only temporary, although residual effects the morning after "are not infrequent."

—There is no difference in the effects of the drug on men or women.

—It has some effect on the body, chiefly a rapid increase in the heart rate;

—Marijuana does little to block memory but it does change the section of the brain that evaluates information, making it difficult for the user to relate new information with previous experience.

The two psychiatrists said if they considered all intoxication unnecessary.

"If and many other people are turned on by life, but this requires skill," said Dr. Low.

The purpose of their study was to get away from the subjective and "philosophical" aspects of marijuana, they said.

Dr. Klonoff said the 81 subjects of the study were a highly educated group. Most attended university. They were light users of marijuana and other psychedelics.

They were divided into two groups, one smoking a small amount of marijuana or the harmless substitute—something invented by the food and drug directorate that looks and smells like marijuana but has no hallucinogenic qualities—and the other smoking a large amount.

In two sessions, one of which used only the substitute, or placebo, the subjects were asked to rate their "highs" on a scale from zero to 10. At the second session, with only the placebo used, 54 per cent scored a "satisfying high."

Dr. Klonoff said this and other findings "reflect the importance of learned expectancy and attitude as well as prior experience with the drug."

He also said unusual or adverse effects from marijuana use "are quite frequently encountered, especially if laboratory settings...

He said water will be pumped into through a pipe to a sprinkler which will spray throughout the winter creating the mound.

When the mound melts each spring, saleable salts will settle away into brine-holding ponds. A point eventually should be reached when the water is suitable.

Nurses Emotional About Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Abortion is "a very emotional matter", and Ottawans are just as emotional about it as any other group, says Nancy Garrett, a family planning specialist.

The research officer for the 80,000-member Canadian Nurses' Association said Thursday that should not be happening if the women is being operated on during the desired period within the first three months of pregnancy, she said in an interview.

"If it is happening, nurses should take a stand. They should take a stand that abortion should not be done after 12 weeks except where the mother's life is in danger."

The country where there are lowest rates of deaths or complications in abortions are those where the 12-week maximum is enforced, she said.

In Canada, the maximum limit recommended by the Canadian Medical Association is 20 weeks, she said.

Both provinces indicate that, in emergencies, however, nurses must bypass their personal convictions and provide the care required by the patient. This would include arranging the doctor with an abortion if the patient has made that decision.

Both Quebec and B.C. also have written into their statements that nurses should strongly support the provision of new family planning services and family life education.

Alberta and New Brunswick have taken somewhat similar stands, although not as detailed. Miss Garrett said. Manitoba has supported the right of a nurse to abstain, but along with the remaining provinces has not issued a statement specifically on abortion.

The national association in June approved a nurse's right to abstain from procedures when she has moral or other objections, Miss Garrett said. This would include euthanasia—a mercy killing—if this were to become an issue in Canada.

As well, at their board meeting last June, the CNA issued a statement on family planning. Miss Garrett said that although this does not mention abortion, it does say nurses should be involved in "family planning and related care."

It might be possible to interpret this as assisting in abortion as one of the methods of family planning, she said.

She personally believes that abortion has to be considered as one method of family planning—"but only as the least desirable of all family planning methods, a last resort, a help-up method when others have failed."

A nurse with a master's degree in public health who specialized in population planning, Miss Garrett has worked in family planning in India and the United States as well as in Canada.

Nurse Hears Rumors Live Fetuses Discarded

OTTAWA (CP) — If living fetuses are being delivered in operating rooms across Canada, nurses should be taking a stand, Nancy Garrett of the Canadian Nurses' Association said Thursday.

The research officer and specialist in family planning for the 80,000-member association also has heard rumors that live, tiny, aborted fetuses are being discarded.

That should not be happening if the women is being operated on during the desired period within the first three months of pregnancy, she said in an interview.

"If it is happening, nurses should take a stand. They should take a stand that abortion should not be done after 12 weeks except where the mother's life is in danger."

The country where there are lowest rates of deaths or complications in abortions are those where the 12-week maximum is enforced, she said.

In Canada, the maximum limit recommended by the Canadian Medical Association is 20 weeks, she said.

Scientists' Experiments Dangerous

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Medical scientists are carrying out potentially dangerous genetic experiments without adequate controls, a Toronto scientist says.

Dr. Louis Siminovich of the University of Toronto also head of the genetics department at that city's Hospital for Sick Children, cited a Stanford University experiment in which only the promise of the researcher prevents the possibility of cancer-causing material being accidentally released to endanger the public.

He told 150 doctors and researchers here Thursday that Dr. Paul Berg at that California institution is investigating a genetic defect which causes mental retardation and has succeeded in attaching the missing gene to a tumor-causing virus. The viral material, when introduced to a cell, supplies the missing gene.

If Dr. Berg used bacteria instead of cells in his experiments, and if some of this material was accidentally put down a sink, the public could risk contracting cancer.

Dr. Siminovich said that at the request of several researchers Dr. Berg promised not to use bacteria, but this voluntary control is not good enough.

"Dr. Berg has students and there is nothing to stop other people from doing these experiments."

No Takers For Fish Plant Jobs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland fish plant operators, fishermen's organizations and at least one politician have started arguments over whether unemployment insurance payments are responsible for a lack of workers.

The argument, quietly under way here since last month, when the Fisheries Association of Newfoundland said 650 fish plant jobs were "going begging," was intensified last week by a statement from Denis W. Morrow of St. John's, president of the Fisheries Council of Canada.

Mr. Morrow, president of Fishery Products Ltd., Newfoundland's largest processing company, said in Ottawa Tuesday the Canadian fishing industry is finding it difficult to compete with Icelandic welfare, and unemployment insurance benefits.

Steve Neary, Liberal labor minister responsible for Ireland, said low wages paid by boat owners are to blame, not welfare and unemployment benefits acceptable alternatives for workers.

Mr. Neary said if Irish plant owners did a proper job of marketing their frozen fish they would be able to afford wages that would more than compete with social assistance.

The fisheries association, which represents owners of Newfoundland's 80 fish plants, said Mr. Neary was a "bit of a buffoon."

An Association statement issued Thursday did not deny Mr. Neary's claim that wages were outrageous but said he should confine himself to producing his income in Bell Island and limit his considerations of marketing them in competition with the 9,000 fish-plant producing countries.

The conference was to a pro-labor Liberal Party of 14 years to 20 and commitments on Bell Island to build manufacturing in abandoned iron ore mines.

Richard Gaston, president of the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers Union, said the fish industry was a seasonal one, and should not be expected to provide year-round employment.

Fishery workers in Ireland, the province's major processing centre, average 1,48 and 1,500 a year.

Y Protests UCS Move

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Family YMCA claims it is being used as a scapegoat for the financial failures of the United Appeal.

This feeling was included in a report by Y president Dr. Douglas Horne, replying to a recent United Community Services announcement that no organization would receive no further financial aid from the United Appeal.

"The Y is being used as a scapegoat, a whipping boy for the United Appeal," said Dr. Horne. "Last year they didn't make it (their goal) and they won't make it this year.

"They need someone to blame."

In a letter from Andrew Robb, president of the UCS Board of Directors, the major criticism of the YMCA was "... the continuing inability of the Y to come to real grips with community needs within its scope."

Earlier in the year UCS and the Y worked co-operatively on a program of "quarter sessions" to evaluate community needs and criticisms of the Y.

The Y was to evaluate criticisms and unrecognized needs from the points brought out in the (15) meetings," read in the Y president's report. "The UCS Board was to study the validity of evaluate the above points. We were then to meet (with the UCS Board and) formulate an action plan of valid new programs to meet community needs, if in fact the Y was the proper agency to do so.

"The UCS did not complete their part of this study and have broken trust with us in not competing this agreement."

Dr. Horne said, "it has been a year for us to look these things over (suggestions and criticisms) and partial implementation is in the works with an ongoing program coming."

Two major criticisms made by the Y are (1) That the Community Services of Belleville and District is spending too much money from the United Appeal on its own salaries, property and direct services, leaving less and less for the YMCA."

"UCS board members, with no personal, direct knowledge of the problems of the Y and other member agencies, are making decisions mainly based on facts provided to them by their executive director (Isidore Cooperman) who appears to be concentrating on negative aspects and has been underfunded before the United Appeal came".

The Y president suggested an independent campaign next year may be used rather than the loss of the appeal subsidy.

"We'll survive", he said. The Y will be notified Dec. 15 as to the amount of money they can expect from the '73 United Appeal, the last in which it will be included.

'Tea for two and Thiou for me Thiou for you...'

YMCA: It's Quiet On The Outside

Quiet scene around Belleville's YMCA gives no hint of controversy now focussed on the east end centre, which Y president Dr. Douglas Horne charges is being made "scapegoat" for commmunity appeal failures. Earlier this week YMCA was told it would receive no more grants after 1973 from the appeal — which Dr. Horne says failed its fund-raising goal last year and will fail again in 1972.

Macksey To Retire

OTTAWA (CP) — Bryce Mackasey, a centre of controversy during almost five years as a cabinet minister, and before that as an MP, said Friday ,with he is leaving the cabinet.

Mr. Mackasey, minister of manpower and immigration since January and labor minister before that, said in an interview he is leaving the minority Liberal government voluntarily.

Other informants said he is being pushed out of the cabinet, perhaps because Prime Minister Trudeau had offered him only some cabinet position that Mr. Mackasey regarded as a demotion.

The revelation came just three days before Mr. Trudeau's promised announcement of his post-election cabinet. The prime minister said Thursday he would be talking to ministers in advance of his announcement Monday.

Mr. Mackasey's departure means that at least eight members of the 30-man pre-election cabinet won't be back.

There were given government appointments at the outset of the campaign for the Dec. 30 election—Veterans Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote to the Senate, E. J. Benson from defence minister to president of the Canadian transport commission.

Four were defeated in the election—Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Agriculture Minister Jamie W. O'Connell and Pat H. A. Olson, Labor Minister Martin O'Connell and Pat Mahoney, minister without portfolio.

Mr. Mackasey said Friday night that he is quitting the cabinet for family reasons —to spend more time with his wife, two sons and two daughters.

News Briefs

Syria Returns Fire

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — Syrian artillery replied briefly with heavy fire to an earlier Israeli attack and scored direct hits on two Israeli positions in the Golan Heights, a Syrian spokesman said. Earlier today, Damascus radio broadcast a military communique which accused the Israelis of hitting Syrian positions with mortar and machine-gun fire in the southern sector of the front. "But we suffered no losses," the communique said. The Syrians said the Israeli attack began at 11:30 a.m. local time, with Syrian artillery going into action half an hour later. In Tel Aviv, an Israeli army spokesman said that he had no information of the fighting today.

Instructor Killed

GORMLEY, Ont. (CP) — Benjamin Essen, 49, a former chief instructor with the RCMP Mounted Ride, was killed Thursday when his car skidded off a sideroad at this community 15 miles north of Toronto and struck a utility pole and tree. Since his retirement from the RCMP, Mr. Essen had operated a riding school. He was alone at the time of the accident.

Plane Reported Sighted

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Searchers were expected to race against the approach of bad weather today to check a report that might lead to a plane with four aboard missing in the Arctic since Nov. 8. A passenger on a commercial flight said Friday he had seen an object that might be the missing plane in the area where the search was first concentrated. Bill Victor, a flight engineer for Nordair Territorial Airways, said he recognized the shape as that of a Beechcraft 18, the type of aircraft that is missing. He once owned one.

Bombs Blast Hotels

BELFAST (AP) — Bombs wrecked hotels in two towns of Northern Ireland Friday night. Two men walked into Armagh's Central Bar, parked a suitcase bomb behind like potato chips on the counter and told the staff and customers: "You have 30 minutes." The curfew contained about 100 pounds of explosives. They went off four hours later, causing heavy damage to the evacuated city centre. A suitcase bomb demolished the three-storey Commercial Hotel in Strabane, close to the border with the Irish Republic. It was planted by two men who gave a 20-minute warning.

Toronto Hospitals Told to Cut Back

TORONTO (CP) — Four large Metropolitan Toronto hospitals have been told to cut down on their number of beds to meet stringent budget cuts set out by the provincial health ministry.

Stanley W. Martin, deputy health minister, outlined the cuts in a letter received by hospital board chairmen Friday.

Toronto General Hospital has been told to discontinue the use of 70 beds and Toronto Western Hospital, St. Michael's Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children, 33 each.

T. Douglas Scrimber, administrator of the Hospital for Sick Children, said the deputy minister suggested that elimination of 33 beds between April 1 and Dec. 31, 1973, would save $249,000 in associated salaries and supplies.

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter announced Thursday in the legislature that hospitals face a five-percent ceiling on operating budget increases for 1973 or 1972; that construction will be frozen, other than for the completion of projects already started; and that some hospitals will have additional cuts made in their budgets to force the increase is calculated.

Mr. Scrimber said the health ministry suggested that his hospital could save another $225,000 by increasing the revenue of its computer centre through increased rates, charged outer municipalities.

Mr. Scrimber said he loved to understand how total costs to the health care system would be reduced if other hospitals had to pay more.

Mr. Scrimber said he agrees with Dr. Potter's long-range objectives, but feels an arbitrary five-per cent ceiling across the province is not the way to attain them.

He said it makes little sense for suburban hospitals to open pediatric wards, while closing down beds at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Cement Plant Licence Held Up Indefinitely

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — A letter to the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. from the offices of natural resources minister Leo Bernier has stated no quarry licence will be issued to the plant at this time.

Stewart Norval, president of Lake Ontario Cement, Lone Pine Drive, Don Wickett, Ontario Water Resources Commission, and the letter referred to several discrepancies in the company's original submission for a licence in August 1971.

He said that the letter implied no licence would be issued until a settlement in this case involving charges under the Beach Protection Act, is reached. No reference was made to charges laid against the company under the Environmental Protection Act.

The union leader" observed this letter is the first written communication from Mr. Bernier to the company since last August. It followed swiftly on the heels of a similar letter to James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox. It was signed by Stewart Norval, and printed in a newspaper this week.

Mr. Norval noted James Taylor had been involved in many negotiations which he felt were under way between the government and the LOCL and pointed out Mr. Bernier's letter appears to contradict what the progress. The company has received no formal recognition until now, according to the union leader.

Mr. Norval has asked members of Prince Edward County council to join him and approximately 100 residents who in a picket march at Queen's Park early next week to protest the Scarborough controversy and the government's delay in granting LOCL a quarry licence.

Air Canada Stewardess Held Hostage, Freed

FRANKFURT, West Germany (CP) — A 31-year-old Air Canada stewardess was freed unharmed today and her captor shot dead by police at the climax of a 24-hour drama played out aboard a DC-8 jetliner at Frankfurt Airport.

Margit Sommer, a Czech-born stewardess from Montreal, was freed by police minutes before expiration of a 9 a.m. EST deadline set by the middle-aged man who was armed with a revolver and carried a bag which he said contained dynamite. He had threatened to blow up the plane and if the stewardess if his demands were not met by authorities.

"A shot was fired; hostage freed," an airport spokesman said, signalling the end of the ordeal for Miss Sommer.

Minutes later the spokesman announced that the gunman was dead and Miss Sommer was unharmed.

First reports said the gunman, his face masked by a cloth, opened the door of the airliner and threw a note to the tarmac.

Police hidden under the aircraft sprang into view and a shot was heard.

Police then stormed onto the plane through the front door as ambulances raced onto the tarmac. The plane was parked about 200 yards from the airport terminal.

The psychiatrist believed the man was a 37-year-old former patient described as a schizophrenic with paranoid ideas about his native Czechoslovakia.

None of the man's demands was met by police who attempted to outwait him.

The gunman was picked up by a police sharpshooter as he made a brief appearance in a door of the Canadian jet.

A police spokesman told a news conference the sharpshooter shot the gunman dead as he tried to close the cockpit door of the plane, opened so that a radio could be passed over for the stewardess.

The spokesman said the gunman, identified as Victor Wolters, 58, took the radio, deposited it somewhere in the plane and then ran back to close the door.

As he leaned out to pull the door shut, the police sharpshooter fired and killed him, the spokesman said.

Police Director Horst Vedel who boarded the 150 policemen at the airport, told reporters that "colleagues with special training were under orders about the hijacker in a certain clear situation that would not endanger the hostage."

Miss Sommer had been seized by the gunman Friday afternoon aboard the plane. He ordered the plane's six other crew members off and then began issuing widely-fluctuating demands to free various men are being held by West German police.

Stewardess Freed, Captor Shot

Police stand near building, left next to Air Canada DC8 jetliner at Frankfurt airport Friday night after a man seized a hostess and threatened to blow up the plane. The man, carrying a pistol and a package he said contained dynamite, made the threat to blow up the plane unless authorities released a Czech who was charged with shooting a Czech pilot last June.

New Year's Booze OK

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even though New Year's Eve falls on a Sunday, many Canadians will be given the opportunity to usher in 1973 with the libation of their choice.

Ontario fell into line Friday when John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said that Legislature normal Sabbath restrictions will be lifted Dec. 31 to permit hotels and other licensed establishments to remain open from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Despite the new ruling, Ontario revellers will get to bed earlier than their counterparts in most other provinces. Time will be called at 3 a.m. in Alberta and Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan patrons may celebrate until 2:30. In Nova Scotia and British Columbia, drinking-up time is 3 a.m.

In Quebec, Manitoba, Quebec and New Brunswick, taverns will be closed on New Year's Eve, although licensed restaurants may serve drinks. A beer parlor in B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, is "not a proper place to spend New Year's Eve."

On the other hand, a B.C. resident with a similar case could celebrate longer than anywhere else in the country. Dinner rooms and dance lounges open at noon for a 15-hour working day.

Candidate Supports Bus Routes

TRENTON (Staff) — The answer to a lack of public transportation, in a d equate downtown parking and congested streets in Trenton may lie in restoration of the town's long defunct bus service.

Reg. Martin, Trenton mayoralty candidate, Friday night answered the question of a caller on CJBQ Radio's open line show, stating he is in favour of a study of the feasibility of reinstating bus service in Trenton.

Mr. Martin said such a bus service, whether publicly or privately owned, could be of use using large or medium size buses similar to those on surrounding city streets. He told the telephone caller that one town he visited in Newfoundland uses what he termed as "Jitney" service. Special taxis follow designated routes picking up riders who shared the cost of the trip with fellow passengers.

Tale of Love Earns Reprieve

Greg Scarlett, 19, was granted a suspended sentence in Provincial Court after Judge John C. Clendenning found him guilty of intoxication in a public place.

Scarlett told the court he was "emotionally upset over a girl" and had drunk wine when city police picked him up in the Mad Mechanic, Oct. 13. A washroom confrontation involving him and his friends was a suicide attempt, he said.

Conducting his own defence, Scarlett added that a loss of co-ordination in one side of his body following an accident last winter made it appear he was wobbly.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendenning told Scarlett, "I would suggest you lay off booze in the future . . . and the girls."

pending further investigation. Det. Det. Sgt. Sid Vickers, head of the town police department's criminal investigation branch, feels the pair are not connected with a Nov. 11 robbery of Riley's Market on Dufferin St. in that holdup, a man, masked with a handkerchief, pointed a sawed-off, rifle at a store clerk and escaped with $400.

No one was injured in either robbery. The two men who today staged Trenton's second armed robbery in two weeks, escaped from the restaurant on foot. It was not known if they had a car parked nearby.

TRENTON (Staff) — A proposal for construction of an ice rink at the North Trenton Public School promised to be one issue in the upcoming municipal elections, but because of action taken by the Trenton Recreation Committee, the plans will go through as a pilot project.

In a special meeting, the recreation committee gave approval for construction of the rink for skating and hockey purposes, pledging $550 towards the project.

However, because other neighborhoods in Trenton would be sure to request similar rinks, the committee stressed this was a pilot project. No requests for additional ice surfaces will be dealt with until next year, at which time the success of the north Trenton School rink will be assessed.

It was the committee's opinion that additional recreational facilities in this portion of Trenton are necessary. They believe school grounds are ideal locations for such projects. School principal Murray Workman told the committee the Hastings County Board of Education has already begun improving the grounds, bringing in top soil to level the grounds.

Big Meeting Week Away

TRENTON (Staff) — While one or two small community organizations are holding special meet - the - candidates night sessions, the one expected to attract the majority of attention here is the Chamber of Commerce - sponsored meeting Nov. 30.

J. E. Gummo, president of the chamber, has released a list of rules and procedures for the event, to be held at the Trenton Community Gardens, commencing at 7:30 p.m.

Incumbent Mayor Duncan McDonald and challenger Reg Martin will kick off proceedings, each talking for no longer than seven minutes.

Following this, the six acclaimed school board trustees will be called upon to deliver reports on their terms in office, and progress within the school system.

And then, beginning with the four incumbent councillors, speeches of seven minutes each will be held, including reports of their efforts on council. They will be followed by the 11 council hopefuls, who will be allowed to talk for no longer than five minutes each.

Final platform speeches will be made by the two Public Utilities Commission incumbents and the one challenger.

Questions and answers will then form the remainder of the program, to be aired from 8 p.m. on CJBQ Radio.

Extension Service

Extension of city services into Sidney and Thurlow townships is the interest of Roger Gibson, local realtor, who is offering himself for election to the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Gibson, owner of Roger Gibson Real Estate, was a late - hour nominee for the PUC opposing incumbents Lyle Langabeer and Gerry O'Connor.

Mr. Gibson claims that for the welfare of the community, and to keep the city viable and prevent stagnation, extension of services into township areas is important.

"However," he says, "it must be made very clear that the extension of services must not be in the form of a gift — the city must be protected and costs must not be borne by the city. The city is entitled to be indemnified."

A native of the Glen Miller district in Sidney township, Mr. Gibson has been in real estate inthe city for the past seven years. He and his wife Shirley have two sons, Rod and Bradley.

Clinic Nears Reality

MADOC (Special) — Barring a major set back in the weather, Centre Hastings Medical Centre should be enclosed before winter sets in.

Inside work will be completed during several cold weather.

The decision to go ahead with the centre was taken this week when local contractors and suppliers met with the directors of the medical centre.

Faced with higher - than - expected tenders the directors invited about 30 of the men to see if construction could be started this year.

A team has been selected to prepare the site, including surveying, leveling and sloping, ground grading and excavating. This will be followed by construction of the footing and block laying for the walls.

The fund for the centre was enriched this week by $1,128 proceeds from the benefit night sponsored by officers of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police.

Officers and their wives entertained about 300 at the Kinsmen Centre with dancing, contests and a buffet luncheon. Sgt. R. N. Dowe of the OPP was organizer of the benefit, now proposed as an annual event.

Middleton Park Has New Mayor

TRENTON (Staff) — While interest in Trenton's municipal election has been moderate, Canadian forces have already elected their council for Middleton Park military subdivision.

Middleton Park's newly elected mayor, Cpl. R. F. (Bob) Johnson, was away on a deer hunting trip when the results of the election were announced and was unavailable for comment.

Cpl. Johnson defeated eight candidates, succeeding the present mayor, Capt. W. Yates.

The new mayor originally comes from Toronto and has been stationed at CFB Trenton for the past three years in the base material movements section.

Cpl. Johnson and his wife, Eleanor live at 9 Godfrey St. with their four children. He is active in many sports that include hockey, golf, bowling and hunting. An enthusiastic youth worker, he coached the Panthers in the Trenton peewee hockey league last year.

Unlike the town of Trenton, Middleton Park operates on the ward system. A total of seven wards are involved, a councillor and deputy have been elected for each.

New members of the community council and their deputies are: WO H. Q. Sexsmith and WO H. M. Thompson, Sgt. H. Haines and Sgt. G. Cormier, Sgt. Richard Crowell and Sgt. Wally Evelyn and Mrs. Taffy Cameron, Major Edward Gross, and Capt. Rob Clouster, Capt. Harry Lee and Capt. M. P. Barbeau, Mrs. Marlene Sheilds and Cpl. John Charbonneau, M. Cpl. Meeting to Discuss Counselling Cutback

Bancroft businessmen will meet Nov. 30 with Canada Manpower officials to discuss proposed cutback of visiting job counselling services in the north Hastings centre.

The meeting is a sequel to protests from Bancroft to a proposed reduction of counsellors' visits from twice a month to once a month.

H. W. Karn, Manpower manager, last month told the Belleville and District Employment Committee he was forced to consider the cutback because employers indicated they could do their own hiring and obviously didn't need the Manpower service.

Yesterday, Mr. Karn said the twice - monthly visits of counsellors to interview job applicants equalled a budgetary cost of $200 a month. In one year, only three employers used the service to hire workers.

The meeting at Bancroft has been called for Nov. 30.

Meantime, a new retraining course offered at Bancroft has received a "wonderful response," said the Manpower manager.

A labor construction program — to train workers in such skills as scaffold erection and simple blueprint reading — has drawn a large number of participants in the Bancroft area.

A similar course run at Loyalist College for the Belleville area saw all students hired by local contractors before the program was even completed, Mr. Karn said.

Alderman Arnold Orr, city council representative on the committee, pondered if there would be sufficient job opportunities in the Bancroft area for workers completing the course, or whether they were willing to move elsewhere to obtain such work.

If not, the effect of such programs is "minimized," he

Poetry's Saving Grace

You know how it is with our young people . . . when they are quite small, say up to the age of nine or ten, they are a happy breed. The boys look like boys and the girls like girls. They smile, they laugh and there is a sense of wonderment and spontaneity about them. Then with the teen years upon them they begin to change perceptibly and it is not just the body chemistry and appearance that change, but spiritually they are different.

Suddenly the world is too much with them. The ways of the world — the materialism and the hypocrisy and the coldness and ruthlessness of our society — begin to get to them. Some rise above it, but they are all too few and that is why cynicism and boredom register in the faces of many young people today.

It has to do with "the system." Roy Bonisteel talked about it at Loyalist recently. He said it "turns out adolescents, via a ly. He said it "turns out adolescents, via a ly. He said it "turns out adolescents, via a ly

More Representative Rule Of Catholic Church Urged

NEW YORK (AP) — More representative government in the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, including participation of laity and clergy in choosing bishops, is recommended by a U.S. bishops' study committee.

Since local people are "co-responsible for the local church, they must be involved in an authentic way in the choice of the one who will lead them," the committee says. "This cannot be left to chance."

The wide-ranging report, dealing with some of the sharpest tensions now affecting relationships between bishops and priests, presented some central question for the next meeting of the country's bishops.

It also came amid harsh protests by leading spokesmen for priests at new Vatican restrictions, and on the heels of a lay-clergy appeal for setting up a national pastoral council as a U.S. church.

The study committee, headed by Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans, says the church is at a point where it must find ways "to involve the faithful more effectively in the process of selecting their leaders."

"If all the people of God share in the responsibility for the continuation of the mission of Christ," the report says, "so, too, should they participate to some degree in the determination of the one who will have the most to say about how that mission will be accomplished."

Back in early church history, the people elected their bishops. At present, provincial groups of bishops recommend nominees to the Pope, who makes the final choice. Bishops may consult lay leaders and priests about nominees, but are not required to do so.

The committee says progo dures should be set up requiring full, open meetings of clergy and laity for discussing and proposing nominees. This, the committee says, should give the process "a greater degree of accountability" than it now enjoys.

Religion Is at Heart Of Every Civilization

The Rev. Gordon C. Smyth

No civilization has been discovered without some kind of public expression of religion at its centre. The study of any society, however primitive or advanced, includes the examination of its worship. In every age (including our own) people have gathered for worship than for any other voluntary activity. The words of Dr. Martin Luther still ring true, "To have a God is to worship Him."

This observation has a special bearing on our own lives and times. Mr. Franz Werfel wrote, "In its preoccupation with 'Left' and 'Right' the world has forgotten that there is an 'Above' and 'Below'." An inscription over the entrance to the Buchenwald concentration camp in Nazi Germany read, "There is no God here." The announcement was superfluous, the evidence of godlessness was obvious in the bestiality of the place.

To be sure, many fine people do not go to church. However, in most instances they are living off the faith of others. How long do they fancy they can sit apart clipping moral and spiritual coupons? What will their children or grandchildren? A familiar saying has it that "from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves takes only three generations". This is too often the case with religious possessions also.

The word "worship" comes from two ancient words—"worth" and "ship." It is a reverence due to worth. But worship is now a low or cursory bow or a philosophy or abstraction. Worship is offered to the Supreme Being, Your "worship" is the form of address when one is introduced to the chief magistrate (mayor) of a community. Is God less than "personal"? If puny men can invent instruments to talk with his fellows exploring the moon's surface, why doubt the testimony of so many witnesses that they have communion with God, the Father Almighty?

Men and women lose the joy of worship of God to the winds, or who neglect the practice of God's presence, do not stop worshipping. They make idols to adore. It may be the idol of pleasure. It may be a safety deposit box. It may be a sports favorite. It may be Hollywood's beautiful. It may be Lenin's tomb. However, idols have feet of clay. Only the worship of the living God can restrain us when we would be restricted, refine us when we need to be refined, teach us when we need to be taught, comfort us when we need to be comforted, strengthen us when we need to be strengthened and enable us to find rest of ourselves, others and God. Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury, wrote, "Of course I tell you to go in church is to sit, stand and kneel when others do, while someone else says things to which you attend, you are not doing yourself much good and are doing the congregation a good deal of harm by diluting the atmosphere of devotion. In that case you are not worshipping at all. But if you are entering into it, you are doing just what is needed to take your part in bringing on the new world for which we hope."

Off the west coast of Scotland lies a tiny island known as Iona. Thence in the sixth century went St. Columba from Ireland, founding a small college of missionaries whom he sent out to evangelize the northern part of Britain. The abbey he built for worship has long since passed away. But on its site a beautiful replica has arisen, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland, to recapture Columba's ideal.

Age, war and I stood within those hallowed walls, we felt the truth of the "Holy Isle" had meant in terms of culture and healing, in terms of creating a Christian civilization and re-creating countless lives. Nearby was a cemetery where, a thousand years ago, were laid to rest the early royalties of more kings than Westminster Abbey contains. The broken altar, the stern lift of the walls, the nearness of the tombs of august dead, had a sobering and inspiring effect.

The awe of the Eternal came upon us. We were one with the Church of yesterday, today and forever. The awe of the Eternal! This is the aim of any true worship. As Christ taught, "worship the Father in spirit and in truth". The awe of the Eternal! This is also the reward of true worship. In the words of Scripture, "We know that if the earthly frame that houses us today should be demolished, we possess a building which God has provided—a house not made by human hands, eternal, and in heaven."

Burundi Missionary Will Speak at Madoc

Rev. Keith Lohnes, missionary to the Central African country of Burundi, will be guest speaker at the Madoc Wesleyan Methodist Church at 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, November 29th.

Missionary work is more than open-air meetings, lions, tigers, snakes and exploring virgin territory, reports Rev. Lohnes.

Some of the work that Mr. Lohnes has undertaken during his first term of missionary service has included the accounting and financial responsibilities for the mission, a missionary school and a hospital. In addition, he has often travelled in evangelistic services throughout the country. Upon one occasion he accompanied a group of national church leaders on a three-day safari to new territory where people were asking to hear the message of salvation for the first time.

Both Mr. Lohnes and his wife are accomplished musicians. Besides the musical abilities as vocalists, as well as their ability to perform on piano, organ and accordion, have been assets to their missionary outreach. In Burundi they have made recordings for broadcasts over radio CORDAC, a Christian radio station jointly operated by several missionary organizations in Central Africa.

The Lohnesses began work as missionaries in Burundi in 1970 following language study in Belgium. Mr. Lohnes studied at Wheaton University, and is a graduate of Roberts Wesleyan College, North Chili, New York. In 1969 he received his ministerial practice as a certified public accountant in Burundi.

The general public is invited to this missionary service.

Save Your Summer Flowers

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — One way to keep some of your favorite summer flowers around all year is to dry them. To do that, you need a drying or preserving agent and patience.

Mrs. H. L. Cantlon says you can dry leaves, weeds, herbs and almost any flower but irises or sweet pea.

Mrs. Cantlon is convener for the annual sale and show of dried flowers and Christmas decorations at the Civic Garden Centre. The centre is an information body for amateur gardeners supported largely by memberships and sale proceeds.

Once you have the flowers, you trim all but about two inches of stem off and bury their heads in sand.

"We use silica-gel, a silicate sand with a drying agent in it. We sell it and florists or florist supply outlets sell it.

"It only takes moisture out. It doesn't take color out, and it's not heavy. If you use anything too heavy, it will distort the shape of the flower.

"Use a closed tin, a cookie tin for instance, with a tight lid so it doesn't absorb moisture from the air. Put some silica-gel in it, put one flower on it and gently sift more sand over it so that no edges stick out.

"It might take 10 days to two weeks to do a rose. You can have a look at it, and if it's not dry, put it back.

"When you take a flower out, you move sand gently away from the stem, then pick it up upside down and shake the sand out. If you lift it straight up, you might damage the petals.

"Ideally you should start collecting the things to dry in the early spring. Dry them, then store them in a box with a tight lid and put a couple of spoonfuls of silica gel in the box.

"In the fall, when the heat comes on, take them out to make an arrangement."

"As you choose the flowers and plants, keep in mind the colors you want, the container you want to use, and where it's going to go in your room."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a saia peau bridal gown with a raised waist and scoop neckline complemented by an attached train. A two-tiered nylon illusion shoulder length veil was caught to a Juliette cap. The bride carried a bouquet of miniature white carnations in a triangular design.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Irene Summers and the bridesmaids, Miss Christine Waters and Miss Linda Ciraolo wore regal blue silk velvet gowns which were trimmed with white lace. High stand - up collars were another feature of their gowns.

Best man was Hans Dornach. Ushers were Rick Giles, Tarmo Peters and Ernest Summers.

Save Vitamin C In the Potato

Potatoes supply more nutrients in important amounts than do most foods with such modest calories. Potatoes do contain calories, (about 100 for a medium potato); but their claim to fame is the fact that they are an excellent source of Vitamin C. Proper storage, preparation and cooking of the potato will retain Vitamin C, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Vitamin C is a sensitive vitamin, destroyed by exposure to heat, high temperatures and oxygen. A potato stored in a cool, dark area will retain its vitamin C, whereas a potato stored for a long period in a warm bright area will lose this precious vitamin.

Preparing potatoes ahead of time should be discouraged. A peeled potato, "kept fresh" in water will keep its color, but lose its nutritional value. To preserve Vitamin C, bake or boil potatoes in their jackets, or peel just before cooking. For boiling unpeeled or peeled potatoes, the technique is essential, but simple. The water must be boiling, there must be little water, the potato added and cooked only until tender. Never overcook potato! Overcooking destroys what you want most — vitamin C.

Democracy's Rights Given

By DORIS CLARK

Do your young people need to be taught respect for democratic rights? Can we take this for granted? Are the rest of us always ready to examine the other fellow's side of things?

It can add to good character if a deliberate effort is made to impress upon all, at an early age, the importance of respect for the right of all freedom of speech—including those whose views they detest — to freedom of assembly and religion, equality before the law and the right of every man to a fair trial.

In a democratic society every individual is seen as equal to every other individual; is believed to be innocent until he is proved guilty. And is treated accordingly.

Dear Doris: I am a 22-year-old girl. Everyone — old men, young boys, men my own age, women and some girls say I'm a beauty. I'm always hearing about how I'm going to talk about me and want to go out with me.

But nothing happens. They all tease, smile, honk the horns on their cars or trucks. But no dates. I smile, wave— but it gets me nowhere. Can you think it's maybe because I don't hardly smile at some of the guys or that I'm not interested? I'm a little shy. Is it forced of a girl to smile at a guy who only looks at you all the time? She hardly knows? — Shy.

Dear Shy: If you've met him even just once, you should speak or wave when you meet on the street. But don't count on pick-up by leering males for dates.

Go where other young people are: a bowling club, hard-ge lessons, square dancing, swimming or ice skating lessons. A young people's group at your church. Get active and get around.

Forget what you look like and give friendliness and concern where you see loneliness. The date will come.

Dear Doris: I've written to you on various occasions from the time I was a young teen-ager. I am now in my mid - twenties with problems no different from those many others from 13 to any age.

I've always been against tranquilizers for quieting my nerves but recently I became tempted to ask for some. My job is getting to me. There is so much to be done. My nerves have become worn. Everyone around me was getting hurt and unhappy in the process.

Then I found a wonderful book. It's helping me to really see myself clearly and to change those faults in my personality that I've always despised — a long, slow process! But this book is also helping me to be sensitive to what others — people are going through. It's not easy to cure your nerves without a psychiatrist and tranquilizers but I'm convinced that anyone who seriously wants to try will derive a great deal of support from this book.

It may help people prevent themselves from having nervous breakdowns which is sure I was headed for myself. I'm so glad to be alive, and I'm more content, and all because this book is gradually showing me how to make life pleasant for everyone around me. — In Love With Life.

Dear In Love With Life: Good for you! There is a wealth of understanding and help in the writings of people-caring authors — especially when they have made people their professional study.

Yet the reward deserves much credit when he or she can recognize his own needs and find and read the book which can meet that need. I will gladly pass on details of your own life-save: to anyone writing in for name of book and author.

There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write in Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Landers

Daughter Causes Fights With Family Members

Dear Ann Landers: May I say something to the young lady who thinks her mother is "sick" because she screams at her? It sounds displeasing like what goes on at our house.

Our daughter is charming, gracious, sweet and easygoing everywhere except at home. She says she gets along beautifully with everyone but us, so it must be our fault. She fights with her brothers, sasses me, and ignores her father. She seems to hate me because I insist she do her share of work around here and treat members of the family with respect. What comes out of that girl's mouth you wouldn't believe. If I talked that way to my mother I would have had my mouth washed out with soap. When I tell her it isn't necessary to say everything she thinks, she insists it is "okay" not to express an honest opinion.

I know it's hard to grow up these days and I have done my damedest to help her make the adjustment from adolescent to young lady, but it seems we can't do anything to suit her anymore. Our home is a family fight of one kind or another and it's the cause. I've worked off a lot of hostility just writing this letter to you, Ann. Do you have any words of encouragement for mothers of teen-age girls like mine? Believe me, we can use some help.—San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Dear S.J.: Since you feel better for having written, perhaps you'd profit from counselling. Mothers of teen-agers do indeed have a rough go these days and it may be of some comfort for you to know you have a lot of company. Take heart, all of you who are having bad moments with the "New Generation" — like, too, shall pass.

Dear Readers: Last June someone sent me a poetic essay which she called "Advice to the Unsure." It began, "O placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there is in silence." The inspirational piece ended with the reminder, "Found in St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, Dated 1692."

There hasn't been much peace and silence in my office since I printed that reader's letter. I have learned that the "Baltimore poem" is actually entitled "Desiderata." It was written in 1927 by the late Max Ehrmann.

How the work came to be associated with St. Paul's in Baltimore is an interesting story. The Rev. Frederick L. Kates, rector of St. Paul's from 1956 to 1961, had a custom during Lent of putting mimeographed leaflets of an inspirational nature in the pews of the church. One leaflet included a copy of Mr. Ehrmann's poem. Presumably it was picked up by a parishioner, marked "Found in St. Paul's," and passed on from hand to hand. The date "1692" refers to the founding of Old St. Paul's parish, Baltimore's first church.

"Desiderata" has since been reprinted in church magazines, Reader's Digest and even the starry-Worth comic strip—often with the misleading attribution. With pleasure, I place the credit where it rightly belongs.

Second Glance

THE LAUNCHING OF THE S. S. FRONTENAC

"As someone said, the past is a moment ago." — Ada L. Huxtable.

"The Launching of the S.S. Frontenac . . . September 7, 1816."

So reads an historic plaque, west of the village of Bath, on the Bay of Quinte.

Why was this an historic event? What is its significance today?

As if overheard — with a deft sweep of his hand Pauline Thew casts aside the curtain of the Past to reveal a sunny July (1st) day in 1816, as a stagecoach from Kingston to York stops at Ernestown (Bath) to allow one, Henry Gildersleeve, a ship-builder in his forties, to alight before the Finkle homestead.

Here, upon being admitted into a large lounge with a long wooden table, with chairs and other furnishings hand-hewn from the nearby forest, he is greeted by Mrs. Finkle, her two boys and four daughters.

Mrs. Finkle: "We've been expecting you, Mr. Gilder-sleeve, and it is a pleasure to welcome you. Your family's record in American history in shipbuilding, ship ownership and executive ability is well-known."

Gildersleeve: "Thank you, Mrs. Finkle. To come is well . . . a pleasure. I understand Ernestown here is regarded as a rival of Kingston in which enterprise seeks a wider opportunity for business."

Mrs. Finkle: "This is true . . . Quite true. My late husband, Henry Finkle, who founded the shipyard here, was also seeing man. One who established a list of 'firsts' — he build the first frame house in Upper Canada; others all built of logs. He built the first sawmill here, donating the teacher's residence in connection with the school. Also built the Mason Hall and gave it to the Church. The first court of the Midland District of Upper Canada was held right here in this room by Judge Hagerman. Yes, Henry was even the first to free his slaves.

"But apart from being highly respected and loved, Henry saw, as do I, the absolute necessity of safe and speedy water distribution of goods in this rapidly expanding country of ours — and the part that water transportation must play. Thus I have arranged for the building of the first Canadian steamboat on Lake Ontario. It will be christened the Frontenac . . . and we are fortunate to have a man of your knowledge join forces with us. . . . Oh, here is my daughter, Sara with some tea. . . ."

The curtain falls.

We, of the present, learn that Henry Gildersleeve worked on the Frontenac (named in honor of the Governor), launched at Ernestown (Bath) on September 7, 1816, — the first steamship on Lake Ontario!

Henry Gildersleeve, who married Sara Finkle in 1818, became one most noted shipbuilder and ship owner of Canada in his time. He owned the river, along with his sons and grandsons inestimable assistance in the building of Canada's inland marine transportation system. Of the Steamship lines," and references are made to him as the "Father of Steam Navigation."

For you who may wish to investigate further the dramas of "the influence of one family on the development of Canadian Shipping on the Great Lakes" (1816-1931), will find pleasure in store upon reading, "Great Lakes' Saga", by Anna G. Young, the facts from which the above is based.

Of local interest is the fact a relative of the Sara and Henry Gildersleeve family lives here in Belleville — name by Mr. William H. Finkle.

Handing on a wall in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finkle at 352 Bridge Street, is a framed facsimile of the document liberating a negro slave named Mary, signed by Henry Finkle, "this seventh Day of June," and Dominion One Thousand and Seven Hundred and Eighty-Eight in the Thirty-Eight year of His Majesty's Reign.

Since "Second Glance" does not appear in December, we would like to take this opportunity, though somewhat early to wish all our readers a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We shall look forward to joining you again next year.

The Fundamental Purpose of the Funeral —

The Most Significant Function of the Funeral Director . . .

SERVING the LIVING

PART III

- Among all men and in all time, custom has devised a meeting place between the living and the dead. This is more than a show of sympathy for the bereaved family. It is more than a parting from someone well regarded. It is a way of saying that the sorrows of one are the sorrows of all. Today this meeting place is usually the Funeral Home — where none are formally invited, but all are welcome to come.

- The funeral is truly an experience of great value when in its aftermath, the survivor — his grief adequately expressed and his emotions properly channeled — can think and talk of his deceased loved one without pain. That is when he will begin to carry with him all the happy recollections of their life together — and these will remain with him always in the world of the living.

- Yes, for all people everywhere, funerals and funeral ceremonies satisfy basic needs, allay suffering and help to rescue death from the horror of meaninglessness.

Chest Diseases End Rehab Week

- By COLIN BRUCE

Staff Writer

There are many people who have to work for every breath they take, constantly fighting for air, coughing to clear their lungs to stay alive.

Rehabilitation Week's Friday night segment was devoted exclusively to bronchitis and emphysema, two diseases ranking second only to heart ailments in the number of people they cripple.

Both diseases, when in the chronic or recurring state, are found in middle or old aged people, characterized by breathing through congested membranes and (or) loss of lung muscle tone, found in emphysema.

While damage done by emphysema is "irreversible," bronchial disorders can be at least, partially remedied through medication, with the patient returning to productivity.

The public presentation in Belleville General Hospital's Education Hall was geared to the "team effort," prevailing theme of the week's programs.

In a skit, employers of the hospital staff illustrated the path of the patient as he travelled from the doctor's office to exacting diagnosis in the hospital to therapy to clear the lungs of fluids and finally to exercises that would rehabilitate chest muscles and lung strength.

The critical period is when the patient returns home.

"Perhaps not as intensively as hospital routine, the patient must continue his program of therapy for the rest of his days," said Elizabeth Gray, pulmonary technologist.

Therapy for the chest ailments that induce constant coughing and shortness of breath, "can all be done at home once learned," she said.

"For this reason, family participation is encouraged, to get the family trained at home for the ultimate rehabilitation of the patient."

The team effort is something BGH has been working on for the past 18 months.

Ivan Wright, head of the Rehabilitation Medicine Department, said during the presentation, "first the staff had to become accustomed to the team effort. The effort will now spread into the family sector.

"What we're going to have to do is develop an out-patient clinic," he said, saying it was an essential part of the team technique.

An out patient clinic would keep chronic patients out of expensive hospital beds, he said.

A patient, chronically, ill with chest disease, without the new emphasis on team approach and home involvement, "could spend nearly all his life in hospital."

The idea is to teach him how to do things for himself.

Mr. Wright commented the hospital seemed to have the physical facilities for an out-patient clinic but said one is not in existence now and would not come about until extensive study is completed to ascertain the degree of need.

"There is no sense in starting such a clinic by today's standards and needs if it will not be functional in the future," said Mr. Wright.

The Friday public presentation marked the end of Rehabilitation Week. The prediction is that it will return next year because of the reception received this past week.

Medical and hospital staff, medical authorities from Queen's University and other organizations involved in the week's programs will have a final meeting Saturday night at the Sun Valley to map-off the Rehabilitation Week.

Bigger Buses Coming

Larger 45 - passenger buses, which hopefully would reduce the necessity of additional equipment during rush hour periods, could be the answer of the Belleville Transit Commission in holding the line on operational costs.

Chairman of the transit commission, Mrs. Marylea Burtt, said today that the commission's proposed five-year capital works budget, calls for the purchase of one of the new larger type buses each year for the next five years.

The city already has one of the 45 passenger vehicles purchased two years ago.

This week the commission expects delivery of what could be the last 35 passenger bus to be purchased for some time.

Mrs. Burtt noted the commission favors the 45-passenger buses as a means of holding down labor costs resulting when additional vehicles are ordered out during rush hour. At the same time it is felt better service would be provided.

The commission chairman made her comment on future plans in reply to a question of how the new bus and transportation assistance plans announced by Premier Bill Davis might affect Belleville.

Mrs. Burtt didn't know the complete details of the plan, but for urban areas the size of Belleville the benefits it might take the form of additional transportation subsidy.

Under the previous formula, the province provided a subsidy of 50 per cent of the city's transit commission deficit.

It is estimated the city has lines in the area of $100,000 and if the province approved a subsidy of, say, 75 per cent, this could mean an additional $25,000.

"What it would mean would be that city taxpayers would only shut much less of the bus line's operational deficit," Mrs. Burtt said.

But even without possible increased financial assistance from the province, the local commission's porposal is to go ahead with purchase of the larger buses.

Also included in the commission's capital works plans is the construction of a new garage at an estimated cost of $250,000. The proposed garage would replace quarters currently rented on Bleecker Ave.

Mrs. Burtt said the commission was now looking for a suitable site.

On the other hand, Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott said Premier Davis' proposal could mean a whole new concept for public transportation.

"It will mean that the whole present transportation setup will be looked into," he said.

He said the idea was to encourage more people to leave their cars at home and use public transportation.

"It is cheaper to provide public transportation than to build expressways," said Mayor Scott.

Referring to the Belleville situation, Mayor Scott said increased assistance to the transit commission for improving service might mean that a costly express traffic route might be made necessary or at least delayed.

Porter to Head Downtown Project

Roger Porter was elected Monday night, as chairman of the "Downtown Improvement Area" board of management, giving him the responsibility of spending $25,000 annually to sweep the streets and promote Belleville's shopping core.

Last spring Mr Porter initiated a scheme designating downtown Belleville as an area of need in the development field.

Called an "improvement area" all affected businesses will be taxed extra this year, the surplus to be poured into a pot, to be used for downtown renovations.

The board of management, consisting of four businessmen and one alderman, was appointed by city council and held its first meeting Monday.

The members are chairman Mr. Porter, vice-president John Adams; secretary Charles Bristol; treasurer, Nathan Hayes and Alderman Jack Ireland. Ald. Ireland plays a dual role as city hall representative and downtown merchant.

"The downtown section of the city has been neglected, this scheme will reverse some of the damage," said Mr. Porter.

With the paper work out of the way, the board is now into the "nuts and bolts" of composing a budget to be passed by city hall.

Reluctant to say just when money would be on the hands of the board, Mr. Porter did say "high on the list of priorities for the year will be subsidized parking, and that projects would begin in January of '73.

Parking, a long time complaint of the downtown merchants and shoppers, must be of major importance and concern to the board for the revitalization of the downtown area.

Mr. Porter was not at liberty to reveal what plans had been discussed at the closed meeting, but said, "More study will be needed before any direction is taken."

General beautification will be undertaken early in the year, "giving businessmen a real proof of the worth of their investment."

Beautification in a long term thing," said Mr. Porter, but "... immediate things can be done to generally improve the area".

Mr. Porter suggested concealing parking lots behind stone and tree barriers.

While the entire program run stretch - 10 years, each phase or project must be completed within the resources of one year's taxation and within that year, according to stipulations of the bylaw in the Ontario Municipal Act.

Ackerman, McFarland Tee Off

PICTON (Staff) — A ratepayers' meeting held at Queen Elizabeth school Wednesday drew a crowd of approximately 100 persons to hear incumbent town councillors and new candidates voice their platforms.

Former Picton mayor Harvey J. McFarland, who is making a bid for re-election next month, outlined achievements in the town and in Prince Edward County during his 20 years in office.

He said the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. has a payroll of approximately $1.2 to $2 million each year and $40 million was spent in construction costs when the plant located on the High Shore Road. Mr. McFarland said it was through his efforts that the company located here.

Bethlehem Steel, another industry wooed by the former mayor offers a payroll and taxes of approximately $2 million. Tried Truckways with 250 vehicles going across Canada has a payroll of $100,000 in $150,000.

Mr. McFarland observed he brought the Procter - Lever manufacturing plant to Picton and bargained with Hallowell township to have ten acres of his farmland included in Picton so he could offer a plant site in town to provide taxes locally. The town receives approximately $32,000 in taxes each year from this industry.

The Proctor-Lever plant employs a payroll of $1.2 million.

Mr. McFarland said he had a part in helping the Rita Shoe Company to Picton but he did prevent it from leaving several years ago.

He added it would be very simple for him to move the head offices of the McFarland Construction Company out of Picton but loyalty to local residents keeps the business here.

"I have these people in Prince Edward County," yet planned the former mayor when he spoke of this decision.

He noted it is impossible for him to "love" all of the 9,000 or 10 per cent are "true blue" and in 1937 when his company was hit by the Depression local residents supported him.

"That's why I'm standing here tonight," commented Mr. McFarland as he discussed his reasons for seeking re-election.

He told ratepayers the payroll from his construction company totals more than $3 million a year and about half that is spent locally.

The company pays taxes totalling $50,000 in Prince Edward County.

A prime mover in the location of the provincial government's complex for the mentally retarded at the former Camp Picton, Mr. McFarland observed he has just learned that by 1974 there will be from 800 to 1,000 residents there and 400 or more employees.

The former mayor cited the need for industries which will permit young persons to remain in the county and said he hopes to bring jobs here.

Mr. McFarland, who refused to qualify his nomination for office two years ago when Margaret Ackerman became mayor by acclamation, said he hoped ratepayers would vote for the mayoralty candidate with the most to offer for their interests. He made no reference to council's record for debate or its decisions in the past two years since he stepped down.

Incumbent mayor Margaret Ackerman who spoke earlier in the evening said she considered her position similar to that of David facing Goliath in the field. She noted she had no "political machine" but I do have a sling loaded with a few facts."

Mayor Ackerman said this is the first time in many years that every seat on the local council and boards has been contested.

She observed this interest must not be stifled and said "Many of our people have come to rely on a system of gratuities, benevolence and a paternal concept designed, if continued, to adversely affect initiative so necessary to a strong community."

The mayor said phase one of the reconstruction of Hill Street was completed this year and the Bridge Street sanitary sewer has been installed.

She touched briefly on "the ludicrous circumstances surrounding the demolition of Mary Street school" and said the site no was under consideration by the Ontario Housing Corporation as the location for 40 senior citizen units. It is now left "unimproved" for this reason instead of being completed as a parking lot.

Main Street is showing a new vitality absent before and within the next two years Mayor Ackerman hopes to see the county official plan a reality.

She stressed the need to clearly define plan for extension of all services to support and maintain the needs of growth.

"I support a one-tier county government. In these changing times it is my opinion we united in our views and have a strong voice to protect the well being of our county. This brief is in the final stages of preparation for the Ontario government," she said.

The mayor referred to a county-wide study of waste disposal sites and said the town will be able to phase out it's present dump and those in the area when a report is accepted.

A new county home has been considered by county council and very careful recommendations are required to meet the needs of older residents.

Mayor Ackerman said the town has $51,000 in a parking fund and suggested a combined with the money from the sale of the Mary Street School site it would finance an urban renewal program. Off street parking also could be established.

"You know my hopes, you know my record, I can make no promises other than I will work for you," emphasized the mayor.

Retraining Budget Cut

There will be no expansion in the Canada Manpower job retraining program at Loyalist College for the 1973-74 term.

Cause is a 10 per cent budget cutback for the program ordered from Ottawa, Belleville Industrial Employment Committee was told yesterday.

By juggling program plans, present training project will remain intact, W. Karn, Belleville Canada Manpower Centre manager said.

However, the cutback ruled out plans to expand courses for the new term, he said.

New Gas Pipeline Laid in Trent

TRENTON (Staff) Goal of teams of men working for Trans Canada Pipelines in the Trenton area the past weeks was reached when the tip of a 90 ton pipe emerged from the Trent River.

Since Oct. 1, contract workmen have been installing a five mile stretch of gas pipeline paralelling the existing line laid in the late 1950's. This present project is part of the company's estimated $150 million, 1972 construction program.

The 1972 project includes laying of 913 miles of pipelines, with approximately 32 miles of 24-inch pipe between Trenton and Montreal.

This additional pipe, says Trans Canada, "is required to assure that markets in eastern Canada will have sufficient natural gas for the heating season this winter."

Work above ground by the nationally known Bamlac Construction Company along the five - mile stretch had been proceeding smoothly even though workmen often had to crawl through knee-high muck, and pump the water - filled ditches clear before continuing. But when they came to the Trent River, that was another matter.

Underwater pipeline specialists, Reliff Diving Ltd., are subcontractors on the job, Bob Landry, a diver with Ferand Marine and Construction of Toronto, had checked the progress under water. Don Laing, of Deloitte, Trans Canada Pipelines inspector and engineer in charge of the Trent River Crossing project, said Landry had increased water level, making the river "treacherous." He said at one point the barge tugboat was unable to reach the crossing area. It crashed into a dam and although little damage was done, had to be pulled off. "As well, the diver had trouble staying down," he said.

When the Trenton job is completed, workers will move on to Brockville, to take part in the final leg of Trans Canada's 1972 construction expansion program. Helicopters are expected to be used to move pipe in this area.

Course Examines Changing Police Role

To most people, highrise apartments are like the inter nal combustion engine. They can be the savior of mankind or a cog in his downfall, depending on your point of view.

But a policemen, the verdict on highrises has yet to be declared — despite attempts to reach an understanding.

The contemporary housing trend, already looming large on Belleville's horizon, has sparked a new field of study called vertical policing. This topic was one of many found on the curriculum of an Executive Development Course attended recently by city police Chief Dorrell Crosbie.

"When you live on a street, a neighbor usually calls the police if they see something happening," said the chief. "But there big apartments are often half empty in the daytime and there is no-one around to call the police."

How to cope with such problems was the concern of 18 Canadian police officials taking the six-week course at the Canadian Police College in Ottawa.

Chief Crosbie says another complication arises out of neglect on the part of highrise tenants in matter the lifts in the buildings. While front doors may be locked, it is not unusual to find the rear door propped open for easy access.

"Police officers have more trust in planning highrise developments," said Chief Crosbie.

He would like to see stricter building codes established to make locks and door construction acceptable by police standards. And parking garages such as the open wall type behind the Hastings tower on Sidney Street are another potential crime area, he said.

A sample of subjects included in the course ranges that he type of home in which people live was far from the only topic of discussion. Others included disease and society, political and criminal behavior, urbanization, organized crime and Canadian federation pressure groups.

On the latter subject, Chief Crosbie says the men — all of junior rank or higher — tried to determine why the recent federal election turned out as it did. Despite the aid of a political science professor, the men were unable to come to a conclusion, he said.

For himself, the Chief found the first week, devoted to effective speaking and writing, the most helpful. Closed circuit television, role - playing and group - criticism sessions were rewarding — in personal expression.

"I'm an administrator more than a policeman," said Chief Crosbie, explaining he is frequently called on to make speeches on behalf of the police department.

Most interesting topic, though, was the changing family and its affect on police communication. The concept of the extended family, with grandfather serving as patriarch to a line of relatives, has been replaced by a more shallow rooted structure which often sees parents and children only if they are to achieve harmony.

"With the old concept, police got to know the family more closely," said Chief Crosbie. "But now we have community liaison officers whose business it is to get to know people."

He said policemen had been taken off beats and placed in cars for financial reasons.

"Now we're almost going back of the man on the beat."

The family is an important entity to the policeman since he is usually the only person to see it during a time of crisis. By the time a social agency becomes involved, the violent portion of the conflict has subsided, all of which leaves the officer pondering over his role.

"Seventy-five per cent of our work is directed at society," he said. Chief Crosbie, "But the question arises as to whether police should be a referral or service agency. I don't think we should be doing the other people's jobs. We should be a referral agency, otherwise we get duplication."

The students agreed close liaison between police and social agencies was imperative if the public is to receive maximum service.

The course — organized by the RCMP — will be held again next spring and Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the Belleville police force is attend. Even though he's sure to receive the customary certificate of graduation, it's doub ful he'll be able to emulate Chief Crosbie's entire performance.

"I was chosen valedictorian by the class," said the Chief, "No doubt he put his new public speaking technique to good use.

Whalers' Offence Clicks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the World Hockey Association started play this year New England Whalers appeared to have one of the best defensive lineups in the league. Now their offence is beginning to build its own reputation.

The Whalers spoiled Alberta Oilers two goals Friday night before coming back for a 7-2 victory which moved New England up to the third - highest scoring club in the league.

In other games Friday, the Jets downed Quebec Les Nordiques 5-3, Minnesota Fighting Saints whipped Philadelphia Blazers 6-4 and Cleveland Crusaders downed Los Angeles Sharks 3-2 in overtime.

Goalie Al Smith and defencemen Rick Ley, Brad Selwood, Jim Dorey and Ted Green, all with solid National Hockey League experience, were the main reasons New England looked good on defence.

Friday, Smith turned aside 29 Alberta shots, compared to 21 saves by Alberta's Jack Norris and 16 by Ken Brown who relieved Norris in the second period. Green helped the offence with a goal and Terry Caffery, Tom Webster, Brit Selby, Tom Earl, Kevin Ahearn and Larry Lemelin, who took over in the second period.

Final Frontenac Meet Sunday

As the 1972 fall racing season comes to a close at Frontenac Downs, Hush Wemp, Chris Storms, and John Huntback are in a three - way fight for top percentage honors.

Only .002 points separates the drivers, as Wemp leads Storms with .368 over .367. Long time leader Huntback has slipped into third place with a .366 percentage.

Despite the apparent closeness of the percentages, the honors are still wide open. Under the universal drivers' rating system, a driver can gain or lose as much as 15 percentage points on a single race card. Wemp will drive three horses, Storms one, and Huntback two in an effort to improve their percentage points at the Downs Sunday.

The featured ninth will see Jim Dusty and pacesetting Glory Patch as the favorites in a 5/8 mile dash. Mountain Hills, Marion Maud, Helen G. Vonian, Arden Jack, Magpies Speed driven by Wemp, Masterpiece and Star Haven complete the nine horse field.

Belleville drivers appearing in the Downs' 10 race card are Al Vance behind Sandy Rush in the fourth and Mr. Boyd in the eighth. Gerry Walsh sits in the sulky behind Lady Violet Direct in the third.

Post time for the meet is 1:45 p.m.

WHA Posts Bond

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The World hockey Association posted a $2.5-million bond with United States District Court here Friday afternoon, thus fulfilling a technical requirement in a recent legal decision.

The bond was ordered by Judge A. Leon Higginbotham in case an appeals court overrules his opinion.

John J. Harding, clerk of the court, confirmed Friday the bond was submitted.

Higginbotham issued a preliminary injunction two weeks ago telling the National Hockey League not to interfere with the WHA, whose survival strategy upon being formed this year was the luring of stars such as Bobby Hull, John McKenzie and Derek Sanderson from the older league.

The judge also said he felt the NHL's reserve clause, which binds players to their teams, might violate anti-trust laws but that further hearings would be needed for a full ruling.

Original deadline for the bond was Nov. 20, but the WHA had told Judge Higginbotham that some of the bond documents were being delayed by a mail strike in Alberta.

When the WHA failed to meet the Nov. 20 deadline, Chicago Black Hawks attempted to prevent Hull, once a star of the Chicago NHL team, from playing with the WHA's Winnipeg Jets.

An Illinois state circuit court order in the Hull case was overturned onTuesday , a day after it was issued.

Canadiens Keep Rolling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens just keep rolling along—and they'll have to keep it up if they hope to stay ahead of the streaking Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League.

The Flying Frenchmen have yet had two games so far this season while Boston had a poor start, playing without Bobby Orr.

However, Orr is back now and the Bruins are beginning to look like the power everyone figured they'd be this season. Since he came back, the Bruins have won four games in a row—and scored 21 goals while doing so. They are 7-1-1 in the last nine.

Friday night, Orr scored a goal and set up two others as the Bruins whipped Atlanta Flames 4-0 in the Georgia city. However, Montreal also turned on the power, thumping Vancouver Canucks 9-1 on the West Coast.

The NHL's top defencemen got things going early against the Flames, pasting to Mike Walton who rifled the puck home after 35 seconds.

Greg Sheppard, in his first season with the Bruins, scored the second goal at 3:37, his 10th in 13 games. Boston evaded the rest of the way as Orr scored his 11th before the first period was over.

Don Marcotte scored the last goal of the game in the third period, his ninth. It was a relatively-tame affair with only three penalties, two to teammates Wayne Cashman and one a bench minor to the Flames.

The Canadiens spotted Vancouver a 1-0 lead after 28 seconds when Gerry O'Flaherty beat Ken Dryden in the Montreal net.

After that it was all Montreal as the Canadiens came back with four goals before Vancouver ended. They added two in six more than New York Rangers and nine up on the Bruins.

Both the Canadiens' losses have been at home, once to Detroit and to Chicago.

They get a chance for revenge Sunday night when they play the Black Hawks in Chicago Stadium.

In Friday's game, Frank Mahovlich scored twice in the first period with Chuck Lefley and Murray Wilson getting the others—Wilson also scored in the third. Jacques Lemaire scored twice, regaining the league's scoring lead with his 18th and 19th of the season. He now has 34 points, two ahead of Phil Esposito of the Bruins.

Ken Dryden was called upon to make only 26 saves in the Montreal net, but a couple of them were tough.

D'Arcy Walters beat Al Ferguson at the 33-second mark of overtime. Al Ferguson beat D'Arcy Walters after 1.37 of overtime and as a result the Belleville Quintes beat Kingston Aces 6-5.

Ferguson's overtime marker capped the most entertaining Senior A hockey game seen at the Belleville Memorial Arena this season and also halted a five-game losing streak by the Quintes.

Friday's encounter began with a Belleville flourish as they built a 5-0 lead on the strength of a fast-skating, strong backchecking style of play. "We played our best hockey of the season in those two periods", acknowledged coach Wayne Brown, "but we just quit skating in the third.

Wayne McConnell started the Belleville scoring when he beat Walters with 25-foot slapshot at 3.50 of the first. The Quinte's upped the lead to 2-0 on Ferguson's tally from a scramble and made it 3-0 when McConnell sunk a long rebound for his second goal.

Ray Johnston, playing his first game with the Quintes this season whipped a rebound past Walters for the fourth bona fide tallier. The little left winger, who was with Columbus of the International League earlier this year, was a standout for the winners. He did the spadework on Doug Senior's second period tally, digging the puck out of the corner for his right wing partner. Johnston and Wayne McConnell drew plaudits from Brown for their work throughout the contest.

Kingston finally got on the scoreboard at 13.08 of the second period. Scoring ace Peter Kennedy slipped loose on a power play rush and cut in to beat goalie Karl Bagnell.

Bagnell looked extremely sharp on the 20 chances that he handled in the first 40 minutes, but the strong defensive work of his teammates kept the Aces from getting into scoring position in most of the shots.

The Belleville goalie was beaten badly by the third on long shots by Charlie Corvery and Bob Clayton, but made amazing saves when he stymied Bob Collins on a breakaway attempt that would have given Kingston a win.

Former Belleville performer Les Galligan tied the game with just 59 seconds left to play when he tipped the puck past Bagnell.

The Quintes stormed back in the final minutes with the Godson - O'Donnell - Ferguson unit putting the heat on Walters. The Kingston goalie was equal to the occasion, however, twice robbing Godson of good scoring chances.

He rose to the occasion in overtime as well, sticking off Ferguson's backhander from in front of the net. The Quintes' leading goal scorer squared accounts with the winning goal as he carried the puck down right wing, slipped the disc through a Kingston defenceman's skates and got his shot away. Walters stopped the initial effort but was beaten by Ferguson on the rebound.

John Grant, who centred Wayne McConnell and Paul Grilli gave a respectable performance in his first Senior outing while Bob Edmunds and Doug Senior came through with strong performances.

The same two teams meet Sunday night in Kingston.

Lancers Lose Unbeaten Record

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

The Loyalist Lancers failed to maintain their no - loss record, as they fell to a 7-4 defeat at the hands of Ottawa's Algonquin College Friday.

"We just weren't skating," said Lancers' coach Bruce Cameron, "we had just as many opportunities, but they were putting the puck into the net. "We kept making mistakes, and they scored," continued the coach, "in the first period they scored three goals on us when we had penalties."

The Lancers appeared to be on their way to a victory in the first period as they held a 2-0 lead on goals from Reid Mallory and Barry Remington. But penalties allowed the Cats to bring out a fast skating power play to tie up the first 3-3.

"We were lucky to come out with a 3-3 tie in the first period," said the Algonquin coach Ron Port, "they took us by surprise with their checking. They started to hit us in the first period. We're basically a skating club and their checking put our players off balance."

Centre Garth Rogers and right wingers Mike Cayer, who holds top spot in the eastern OFQCAA division scoring standings with nine goals and six assists, and Bob Lemay, who is a first year player for Algonquin, played fast skating hockey. Cayer added two goals and three assists to his record against the Lancers, while Rogers added two goals and one assist.

The Loyalist defence failed to find a solution in the Cats precision passing and point play, as the Algonquin forwards consistently beat them to fire the puck at Caine. Caine banged away 47 shots on goal to the Algonquin goalie's Marc Lacroix 38.

The defensive corps suffered a blow late in the third period when Barry Remington was tripped up and fell to the ice. Bruce Cameron, the Loyalist coach said that it would take "six or seven stitches to patch Tiderman up again."

Barry Remington scored two goals during the game, while Dave Ferguson netted one and missed another. Ferguson was tripped up by a Cats' defenceman on a breakaway, but his penalty shot failed to get past Algonquin's Lalonde.

The Loyalist Lancers and the Algonquin Cats will be meeting again in Ottawa on December 8th.

Quinte Yachtsman Honored

Elwood Wickerson, Friday night, became only the third man to receive a lifetime membership in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

The late J. J. Morch, the first commodore in "the new version of the yacht club" and Jack Braidwood, now of Virginia, were the only others to be presented with the membership in 1952.

Mr. Wickerson, an active seaman for 43 years, was instrumental in reviving the yacht club after it was defunct in the city between the years 1922 and '52. He became a charter member and later its third commodore.

Seventeen commodores have followed, including present commodore Ernie Colebourne who during the Friday night, annual meeting made the presentation.

Yacht club cups were presented during the meeting capping the racing season.

The Commodore's Trophy (Overall Trophy Winner), most prestigious of yacht club awards was presented to Belleville's Dr. Ken Douglas who sailed a Viking 28, Serendipity.

Dr. Douglas was also the recipient of the Katie Gray Cup.

The Corvette class Trophy was awarded to Bob Lanning, sailing Mad Hatter and Don Deming won the Centennial Cup sailing the 20-foot Kyle in the Marmer Class.

Freeman Burrows was awarded the Wild Duck Trophy and the Wickerson Cup for the Round the County Race, a one-day event on BQYC schedule, was won by Trenton resident Don McDonald, sailing Killiwake.

Loyalist Lances Blunted

The Algonquin Cats had little fear of the lances of the Loyalist basketball team as they soundly defeated the Lancers 77-35.

Bill Kyle, who has been scoring consistantly for the Loyalist team, dropped 23 of Loyalist's 35 points in Friday's game.

Frederick Gets Rollins' Winner

Belleville Rollins Peewee all-star Gary Frederick scored the Rollins winning goal in a 2-1 victory over Peterborough Trentavon peewees. Frederick's unassisted goal was preceded by one from Stephen Pearce.

Caine Comes Through

Loyalist goalie Mike Caine falls in front of an Algonquin shot as Joe Schamerhorn waits to see if he can score on the rebound. Caine made the save on this shot, but he falled on seven others as the Algonquin Cats downed Loyalist Lancers 7-4 in Ontario College Athletic Association hockey action Friday.

Oshawa Skins Cats 5-2

OSHAWA (Special) — Jimmy Richardson's debut in Metro Junior "B" regular season hockey action was not a pleasant one Friday night, as Oshawa defeated the Belleville Bobcats 5-2.

Richardson played well in his initial Junior B encounter but the Bobcats came up flat to allow their first road loss of the season.

Belleville coach Moe Hunter, commenting on Richardson's performance against Oshawa, said, "he is definitely good enough to play in this league". Winger Richardson scored the Bobcats first goal and assisted on Paul Lavender's third period tally.

The Juvenile call-up's efforts for the 'Cats, however, failed to keep Oshawa off the scoreboard. Vic Sirko, Bill Van Camp and Dave McKee beat Belleville goalie Bob Moore for three, while centre Tom Newton scored Oshawa's first and final goals of the game.

According to coach Hunter, Friday's game was similar to Sunday's 6-4 loss to Oshawa in that "we kept them tied up for the first two periods, and then they clinched the game in the third." With the first period scoreless, the red light went on for Newton's second period goal at :30 seconds. Less than a minute later, at 1:25 Sirko netted the puck for Oshawa. Richardson's goal came at 3.12 of the second with all other scoring occuring came at 3:12 of the second, with all other scoring occuring in the third period.

"You've got to give Oshawa credit," said coach Hunter, "they out-played us. They skated while we sat around for awhile."

The Belleville Bobcats next game will be against Toronto St. Michael's at St. Mikes Arena. Sunday.

Ealey Heads All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Chuck Ealey was named on all 30 ballots as Hamilton Tiger-Cats placed 10 men on the 1972 Eastern Football Conference all-star team Friday.

Ealey was the only unanimous choice this year although two offensive linemen-male, who helped the Tiger-Cats nail down first place in the standings, were near unanimous.

Running back Dave Raimondo, the Cats' leading ground gainer with 1,365 yards, was first over all-star Hamilton flanker Garney Henley was just two votes away from sweeping the ballots at his position.

In all, seven Ticats were named to the all-star team and three to defence in voting by the Football Reporters of Canada and announced here by FRC president Pierre Proulx.

Toronto Argonauts, while failing to make the playoffs, gained six places and Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes five each on the 35-man team.

The two additional names to the 34-man team — 17 on offence and 12 on defence—was created by ties at defensive end and tight end.

CHUCK EALEY

Tony Gabriel of Hamilton and Peter Dalla Riva of the Als tied for the tight end spot on the offensive team.

One of the oddities in the voting for linebacker was that Campbell, a perennial all-star, also earned enough votes at outside linebacker to displace Mack at that position.

However, under FRC regulations, he was given the position at which he received the most votes.

Big Ed George, one of the few bright spots in the Montreal picture this season, also received enough votes at guard to place him third behind the Hamilton twosome of Hohman and Chapnick.

The team:

OFFENCE

Quarterback—Chuck Ealey, Hamilton;

Halfback—Dave Buchanan, Hamilton; Ike Brown, Montreal;

Moses Denson, Montreal;

Flanker—Garney Henley, Hamilton;

Wide receiver—Eric Allen, Toronto;

Tight end — Tony Gabriel, Hamilton, and Peter Dalla Riva, Montreal (tie);

Centre—Paul Desjardins, Toronto;

Guards—John Hohman, Hamilton; Ed Chalupka, Hamilton;

Tackles—Bill Dasyniuk, Hamilton; Ed George, Montreal.

DEFENCE

Middle linebacker—Jerry Campbell, Ottawa;

Halfbacks—Al Brenner and John Williams, Ottawa; Dick Adams, Ottawa; Roe Woodward, Ottawa; Marv Luster, Toronto.

Chuvalo Shoots For Commonwealth Crown

TORONTO (CP) — Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo, said Friday the announcement that Commonwealth champion Danny McAlinden of Britain must defend his title by May 31 precludes any thoughts Chuvalo might have of retiring.

Ungerman said he has campaigned for 10 years and through four Commonwealth champions to set up a Commonwealth title match for his fighter who has been among the world contenders for almost as long.

"You can bet now that George will not retire until he gets a crack at the British Commonwealth title. I've been trying to set this up for years and it hasn't been until now that it looks like a reality."

In ratings released Friday by the Commonwealth championships committee, McAlinden was given until May 31, 1973, to defend his title against either Chuvalo or Briton Joe Bugner.

Ungerman said he also hoped to arrange a Commonwealth title match between Canadian welterweight champion Clyde Gray of Toronto, another member of his boxing stable, and Eddie Blay of Ghana. The committee said a championship bout be arranged between the two contenders for the vacant title by Feb. 28.

Canadian light heavyweight champion Al Sparks of Winnipeg was not listed among the contenders for the Commonwealth title.

Ungerman said this probably was due to Sparks' inactivity during the last five years. Ray

GEORGE CHAVALO

Clark, secretary of the British Boxing Board of control, said the Canadian's record was not considered good enough.

Sparks last fought a year ago when he knocked out Stewart Gray, brother of Clyde, in a Canadian title bout. Gray subsequently died of injuries suffered in the fight.

Doug Bently Dies At 56

SASKATOON (CP) — Doug Bentley, once known to National Hockey League fans as a dipsy-doodle dandy from Delisle," died in hospital Friday night after a long illness.

Bentley, 56, had undergone two operations for cancer. He entered hospital for the last time about two weeks ago.

Bentley, a member of the famed Frosty Line of Chicago Black Hawks during the 1942-46 and 1946-47 seasons, was the third famous NHL goalie in the last few weeks. The others were goaltenders Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens and Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Bentley came out of Delisle, a small community about 70 miles west of Saskatoon, and reached the NHL in 1939. He lost two seasons during the 1942-43 and 1943-44 campaigns.

He won the Lady Byng trophy three times was named to the first all-star team as a left winger. He placed on the second all-star team as a centre in 1946.

Despite those achievements, most of his recognition was as the left winger on the Pony Line, with Bill Mosienko on the right side and Max Bentley. Doug's younger brother, at centre.

The trio broke up after Mosienko broke a leg and a few years later Max Bentley was traded to Toronto Maple Leafs. None weighed more than 160 pounds. They knew they had to pass the puck and use their speed rather than dump the puck into an opposing corner and go after it.

Doug and Max Bentley were reunited briefly in the 1953-54 season as members of the New York Rangers. Doug ended his career with 219 regular-season goals. He considered one of the highlights to be March 2, 1950, when the Black Hawks held a special night for him.

1972 CANADIAN FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Ottawa Star Injured

HAMILTON (CP) — Defensive end Wayne Smith hopped off the field Friday midway through an Ottawa Rough Rider practice.

Ottawa coaches said later that Smith suffered a leg injury early in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference total-point final against Hamilton Ticats.

The coaches said that Smith, a key member of Ottawa's defensive front four, would start in Sunday's final game for the Canadian Football League eastern championship, which Ottawa leads by 12 points.

After the practice, the Ottawa coach said that Riders must score at least 20 points in Sunday's game to win the series.

He said Hamilton scored an average of 25 points against Riders in the three regular-season games between the two teams.

"We've got to figure they will do as well on Sunday," said Gotta.

He also said that much of the criticism levelled at Ottawa quarterback Rick Cassotto should be attributed to him.

"I knew I had great kicking and a great defence," said Gotta.

So when Ottawa were within field goal range, the strategy was to call in Gerry Organ rather than gamble with the execution of rookie ball carriers or pass receivers.

Gotta said the Ottawa offence rose to at its peak and he is confident that it can put at least three touchdowns on the scoreboard.

While Ottawa would try to score, the 72-point lead and try to win the Sunday game, Gotta said he is ready to make some early-game concessions.

For example, he would give up one or two early safety touches to Hamilton if Ottawa were hemmed deep in their own zone.

And he would also go for field goals rather than touchdowns early in the game to extend Ottawa's 12-point lead.

Olympic Price High

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says it has learned that the 1976 Summer Olympic Games will cost between $300 million and $400 million according to initial estimates.

The newspaper, in a story from Quebec City, quotes an unnamed government source as saying the figure does not include costs of the Olympic village which will likely be financed through other means.

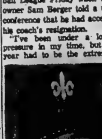
The government source said "the chances of it (the village) being incorporated into a long term public housing project are very strong."

Earlier Friday, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said he had received the official cost but received the official cost in the public interest" to release them now.

He promised the figures would be published in detail "in about a month."

Speaking in the national assembly, Mr. Garneau said the bulk of the cost will be involved in paying for the gigantic parachute-roof stadium planned by the Olympic committee and the road system leading to the stadium.

The newspaper says that Mayor Jean Drapeau met with federal treasury board officials Thursday to discuss Olympics financing.



Mr. Drapeau refused to comment on the outcome of the meeting, the Gazette said.

Etcheverry Ends Career

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'm just glad it's over."

With that statement Sam Etcheverry ended his three-year coaching career with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League Friday when team owner Sam Berger told a news conference that he had accepted his coach's resignation.

"I've been under a lot of pressure in my time, but this year had to be the extreme."

SAM ETCHEVERRY

Etcheverry said after his resignation was announced.

The former star quarterback with Montreal from 1953 through 1960 was the target of the wrath of players, fans and the media throughout the 1972 season as his charges won four and lost 10 regular-season games before bowing 14-13 to Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Football Conference semi-final.

Etcheverry summed it all up briefly.

"I don't plan to discuss it. I'm just glad it's over."

While Etcheverry was out, general manager J. I. Albrecht also rumored fired earlier this week, was still in.

Albrecht — ... was and is the general manager. What I had said was privileged information," the Montreal owner added.

The last remark was a reference to an interview he had in December of that year. Only Berger remains at the moment.

After instant success in 1970 he landed in a Grey Cup win for the Montreal team, the club quickly reverted to mediocrity the next season, failing to make the playoffs.

Albrecht will be charged with finding a new coach for the Als. Names already mentioned include NFL assistant coaches John Michaels and Sam Rutigliano and former Alouettes defensive coach Bob Ward.

Ward quit the team in a huff at the start of the season, calling Etcheverry "incompetent." In another palace coup, general manager Red O'Quinn was sacked and replaced by Albrecht.

O'Quinn, Ward and Berger came over from the 1969 Grey Cup-winning Rough Riders when the latter bought the Als in December of that year. Only Berger remains at the moment.

After instant success in 1970 he landed in a Grey Cup win for the Montreal team, the club quickly reverted to mediocrity the next season, failing to make the playoffs.

"I thought I had a winning combination," Berger said Friday of the early period.

"But things don't always work out the way you planned."

NEW YORK-Knicks coach Red Holtzman wasn't happy after his team was beaten by Boston Celtics 114-97 Friday night, but he wasn't about to throw in the towel, either.

"I can't worry all night," Holtzman said, thinking ahead to tonight's match between the National Basketball Association A-leing Division powers in New York.

"I'm going home and have a drink. Of course, I may beat my wife and I may kick the dog, which would be a good trick because we don't have a dog. I could kick a neighbor's dog—but the last time he bit me."

The Celtics out-rebounded the Knicks 51-47 and hit on 46 of 96 floor shots in increasing their record to 87-2. New York is runner-up to Boston in the Atlantic Division with a 77-4 mark.

In other NBA games, Chicago Bulls nipped Golden State Warriors 100-96, Milwaukee Bucks topped Cincinnati Royals Kings 115-105, Buffalo Braves beat Philadelphia 76ers 105-98 and Los Angeles Lakers whipped Detroit Pistons 140-123.

Boston centre Dave Cowens scored 23 points and grabbed 24 rebounds, John Havlicek and Don Chaney had 21 points, Jo Jo White had 18 and Paul Silas 15 with as many rebounds.

Walt Frazier led the Knicks with 25 points.

Early Swing to Labor In New Zealand Election

WELLINGTON (AP) — The Labor party of Norman Eric Kirk, who has promised improvements in social welfare, scored an upset victory today over Prime Minister John Ross Marshall's National party in the New Zealand general election.

Unofficial final returns gave Labor 56 seats and the National party 55 in the new 87-seat House of Representatives. In the old 84-seat House, National held 44 seats and Labor 40.

"It could fairly be described as a landslide victory for Labor," Marshall said in conceding defeat.

Kirk, 49, will take over in about 10 days.

"It can only be described as a great victory," Kirk said in a statement. "We are in for a long period of political stability. This is a long-term government that has been elected.

"I believe that people have been impressed by the drift in New Zealand toward wanton materialism."

British Train Is Fastest Yet

LONDON (Reuter) — While airlines peer doubtfully towards the supersonic age, British rail claimed, a world lead in another type of travel—a train that can do 152 miles an hour without spilling the coffee in your cup.

An experimental model of the project known as the Advanced Passenger Train, already has been built. Engineers of British Rail—the state body that runs the railways—call it APT-E.

British Rail says the project is ahead of other super-fast rail systems in Japan and France whose speeds of around 125 m.p.h. are being achieved.

The difference, says British Rail," is that the French and Japanese systems rely on specially-built tracks, relatively free of bends and with signals widely spaced.

The essence of APT-E is a revolutionary suspension system that can race along present tracks without banging violently from side to side.

The research so far has cost British Rail about $12.5 million, a much lower figure than that required to lay new railway tracks around the country.

If such tracks could be laid, with fewer bends and wider-spaced signals, British engineers believe that the technology of the EPT-E, given a bigger power unit, could make it capable of up to 250 m.p.h.

Aircraft passengers were employed in the APT-E not only to devise the suspension but in building the passenger cars. These are more like an aircraft fuselage than a conventional train.

Complicated electronic and fluid braking systems are incorporated to rein the APT-E from its maximum speed without hurling passengers about.

Development is halted at the moment by a union dispute. Drivers are refusing to take out the APT-E even for test runs until they are assured of having two men in the driving cab, redesigned windows and higher pay for travelling at more than 100 m.p.h.

Elderly Care Lacking Says CMA President

HALIFAX (CP) — The president of the Canadian Medical Association said Friday that while the number of elderly people in the country is increasing, there are few physicians willing to specialize in their area.

Dr. Gustave Gingras said in an address to the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Medical Society that there are 1.8 million people in Canada over the age of 65 and the number will increase to three million by the end of the century.

He said young physicians contemplating a challenging specialty of the future should consider gerontology, the care of the aged.

"There are far too few physicians and allied health workers prepared to dedicate their professional life, or even part of it, to care of the elderly," he said.

"There are approximately 800 pediatricians and perhaps 25 gerontologists in Canada."

Research showed aging is a normal part of life, and not a disease as it was considered by the Romans.

"What we have to do today is to combat the deplorable aversion to the problems of advanced age that has always plagued the teaching and practice of medicine," Dr. Gingras said.

The association president also said the medical profession needed "peer review" at local and provincial levels, conducted in an open and, obedient manner. Periodic assessment of the quality of medical care provided at hospital and office level was needed.

"It is no longer good enough for the college to simply investigate complaints," he said. "We must make the disciplinary action public informa-tion, as is done in the U.K. and elsewhere."

The public had a right to know responsibilities were being met and a right to know if a doctor was ruled incompetent.

"The public asks why the medical act and the college it establishes to enforce it, can keep such information confidential, secret, even from the unsuspecting patients who consult that particular physician," he said.

Gasoline Prices Under Study

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Friday the Ontario government will introduce legislation next spring to deal with price discrepencies in gasoline supplied to franchised and non-franchised service station operators.

Mr. Clement said the legislation has not reached the drafting stage, but that it will not involve the government in fixing prices.

Collect Pledges

TORONTO (CP) — York University, in an effort to boost declining enrolment, will offer students an opportunity to begin a new term in the arts faculty in January, John Saywell, dean of arts, said Friday. Students will take three courses during the term and two more during the summer session, giving them the five courses needed for a fifth year's program. York has 5,800 undergraduate arts students. 300 fewer than last year.

Reward Offered

KITCHENER (CP) — Provincial police Friday announced a $5,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Suzanne Aldworth of Waterloo. Inspector Harry Fehs said any person with information can call provincial police or Waterloo police, and every effort will be made to keep his identity secret. The girl was found beaten to death in a ditch Sunday about seven miles west of Waterloo.

Rebels Recalled

TORONTO (CP) — Four marchers, dressed as Upper Canada rebels of 1837, took up positions on a downtown street corner Friday to commemorate the hanging of two rebels. Samuel Lount and Peter Matthews were hanged at the corner April 12, 1838. "We're here to revive their spirit," said Judy Haiven, 31, a spokesman for the Anti-Imperialist Day Committee and the Canadian Liberation Movement, sponsors of the event.

Anik Settles In

OTTAWA (CP) — Anik 1, the Canadian communications satellite launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Nov. 8, reached its final orbital position Friday—about 22,000 miles over the equator, directly south of Calgary. Communications tests now can be carried out preparatory to the start of commercial service, scheduled to begin Jan. 1.

BEST FILM

He's Payer and Payee

TORONTO (CP) — A Windsor man is believed to be the first person to both pay and receive money because of rulings of the Ontario Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

Clement Lucier was awarded $1,310.14 Friday for injuries received when he was hit by two bullets while standing at a bus stop Nov. 15, 1970. Lucier, however, will receive less than half that amount.

Last month, the board awarded $816 to a young Windsor man for damages received when Lucier assaulted him in an unrelated incident in October, 1971.

Judgment on Mr. Lucier's claim was held up pending a decision on the first case and the board ruled that the $816 "should be recovered from the offender."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, NOV. 26

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make this a glorious celebratory Sunday of personal charm and forgiveness of past discrepancies, differences.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Imagination runs riot on such a lively day as this; strive to channel it constructively. What you create now has a lasting impact.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): This Sunday is for getting into familiar neighborhoods, fresh and interesting but not necessarily dependable contacts.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): When you've done your accustomed share in the community's Sunday traditions, give yourself a break, relax.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Careful listening brings you confidential information—not on immediate insight on what, if anything, to do about it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Community projects need your contribution in whatever form you care to offer it. Reach out for improving relations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Float with the course of least resistance, gather strength for a stressful week coming up. Commitments today lack reality.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Where you can help your community, do so, where you really can't, clear out of the way of those who can.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec.21): Impulse, probably strong feelings, will land you right in the middle of whatever hassle is available. Nobody is helpful.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The magic of today touches you. Enjoy the moment for its own sake rather than using it to force material issues.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative talents include presenting yourself well and conserving energy. Avoid harsh extremes, overly dramatic exaggeration.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): In making plans for near future, realize that most of what you set yourself to do has to be re-examined, rescheduled.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Aries (March 21-April 19): Trends in your work indicate the future fairly well. If you do not like what you see ahead, do something about it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Anybody with more authority or seniority is apt to give you a hard time, for no specific reason. Make the best of it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be prepared to ride through all sorts of pettiness, trifling disorder. You'll be proud of keeping to the line in work.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can't help being sensitive, but you can hold your peace until you've formulated something constructive to do about any problem.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The soundness of your planning is vindicated; you go on in good style with what you can deliver on your own resources.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are at your peak of business acumen, other factors being equal, and can take advantage of today's stressful conditions.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you can see who is impeding your way, you can cope with it head on, directly; it's the factors you don't see that you must deal with.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The less you announce, the easier it is to get things done as planned or to change things around when you see you must.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ordinary caution serves well—you aren't usually under this much stimulus. Think as you do, and again when you pause.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): More energy than usual does not mean any higher level of skills, but it may mean a lot more done toward your main goals.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): After today's hubbubs have all stopped and you've sorted things out with the friends who blew them, you'll have enough to start over.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Saying what you want and sticking to it helps. Pay no attention where people seem to take sides or change the subject.

Uptight British

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP) — Canadian identity and American diplomacy collided here when a visiting American said in a talk to the Rotary Club that Canada's "uptight British." Bill Farrington, district governor and retired Plattsburg, N.Y. special, intended the remark as a compliment, but it did raise a few eyebrows. Farrington emphasized Canadian-American goodwill relations and said he admired the individual personalities within the 57 clubs in his district.

Breast Feeding Not Cause of Sag

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does breast feeding cause the bust to sag in later life? A friend and I were discussing it, and I told her I was considering breast feeding.

Her mouth fell open and she said, "Why, you idiot. Why, by the time you are 35 or 40 you'll look like a cow, with a big bust that hangs down to your waist."

I'm not big busted now, and have read in a magazine that breast feeding does not harm the bust. The article also gave some reasons why breast feeding is so good. Among others it gives the baby antibodies to protect it from colds.

I have seen a lot of women who did not breast feed their children, but their figure or sag terribly. What do you think?

I thoroughly agreed with you and with the article you read. There are all sorts of reasons for breast feeding, and they include the emotional as well as physical health of baby, and to some degree mother.

Breast feeding does not permanently alter breast size so as to cause sag later. True, the breasts enlarge temporarily during pregnancy but return to former size after nursing—other things being equal.

The breasts will droop if there is weight loss or a loss of supportive tissues as a woman grows older. Some experience this; others don't. Breast feeding isn't the factor that governs it.

There are, indeed, plenty of women who have breastfed their babies and are not droopy. And there are others, yes, you have even, who never did any breast feeding but have become droopy anyway.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son, 16, sleeps on a soft mattress and springs. He complains of backache.

I can't convince him that a hard mattress would be much better for his back. Now he wants a water bed.

He thinks that would be best. He is not a sound sleeper. What do you think of the water bed from a health standpoint?

I have never slept in one and don't know. I understand that which to form a judgment, except that an orthopedic friend of mine sleeps on one and found it uncomfortable.

I have no doubt others find them comfortable or they wouldn't be using them.

The simplest answer for your son, I would think, would be to buy a plywood bed board between his mattress and springs and see if that has any effect. Mattress manufacturers can cause back pains.

Persistent backache is not to be considered lightly, and so, if it persists, it would be wise to have an x-ray of his back and look for other causes than a soft mattress.

As far as the water bed goes, if he insists and you can afford one and if your floors will support the weight, then let him use one and find out.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 ♥
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — king of spades.

The highest compliment one can pay a card player is to say he sees through the backs of the cards. This simply means he plays as though he actually sees the opponents' cards.

The number of hands where a declarer can live up to this billing is truly astonishing. In most deals he can arrange matters so that the defenders finally finish in the same position as if they had voluntarily shown declarer all their cards.

Consider this hand where West cashed two high spades before shifting to the jack of diamonds. South won with the king, noting that there were two more losers — a diamond and a club. Although the club trick could be saved with a successful finesse, declarer decided that on the bidding the likelihood of East's having the king was virtually nil.

So, rather than stake his hopes on a club finesse, South adopted a far more promising line of play. After playing a trump to the king and ruffing a spade, he led four more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

	♠ K
	♥ 10 9
♠ 8	♣ 10
♦ J 10
	♠ J 7
	♣ K J 7 6

Now South led his last trump and West, who could not afford to part with a spade or a club, released a diamond.

Declarer thereupon led a diamond to the ace and returned the nine of spades, discarding the diamond loser. West had to win with the jack and return a club, thus putting a neat end to a well - played hand.

Ontario Looks to Ottawa To Resolve Gas Prices

TORONTO (CP) — A. B. R. Lawrence, provincial secretary for resources development, said Friday Ontario is looking to the federal government for leadership in dealing with Alberta's proposal to increase the price of natural gas sold outside the province.

Premier Peter Lougheed announced last week that he plans to charge consumers outside Alberta almost double the rate paid by residents of the province by 1975, with further increases later. The present rate is 16 cents for 1,000 cubic feet.

Mr. Lawrence said Alberta's action is "so serious that it shakes the foundations of Confederation itself."

He told the legislature a conference involving Prime Minister Trudeau, Mr. Lougheed and Premiers William Davis of Ontario and Robert Bourassa of Quebec would probably have to be called to deal with the problem.

The minister said Ontario has no constitutional power to act on its own in the dispute, but "obviously we have a very significant political position to take on behalf of the interests of our industrys and consumers.

In a brief presented to Mr. Lawrence Thursday, the Ontario Natural Gas Association said higher energy costs would place Ontario at a competitive disadvantage against Alberta and the United States.

Pickering Airport Hearing Slated

TORONTO (CP) — A hearing opens Monday to give opponents of the proposed Toronto-area airport in Pickering Township a chance to air their views.

The hearing, conducted by Toronto lawyer J. W. Swackhammer and expected to last about two weeks, will be confined to testimony from those who object to the 18,000-acre project. None of the federal government officials who planned the airport will be available for questioning.

But spokesmen for the planning group will be on hand in a nearby press room to furnish reporters with counter-arguments.

Objections to the airport have been filed by 2,361 persons, including 264 of the 815 property owners on the site.

Most of these have been coordinated by People or Planes, a citizens' group which somewhat has engaged J. J. Robinette of Toronto as its lawyer.

At a meeting of lawyers representing the objectors, Mr. Swackhammer said his sole function is to hear the arguments against the project and report them to the federal minister of public works.

"I have absolutely no right to make any recommendations or to make any judgment whatsoever," he said.

Levesque Calls For Quebec Rally

FREDERICTON (CP) — The leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois said Friday he believes French minorities in areas of Canada outside Quebec are "a lost cause."

Rene Levesque made the comment when asked by students at the University of New Brunswick what effect the secession of Quebec from the rest of Canada would have on Acadians.

"If Quebec becomes a going concern, it should be a healthy stimulus to others outside the province," he said. "Young Acadians could become our privileged immigrants of the future. It is apparent that the French minority in areas of Canada away from Quebec are a lost cause."

The separatist leader said Quebec must leave Canada to eventually in order to complete the process of maturing which it began following the Second World War.

He said Canadians awoke following the Oct. 30 federal election to find "close to two countries facing us." The Quebec vote reflected a way of thinking not evident in the rest of the country.

"We are not against Canada but we want to realize our own potential," he said.

He said his party currently had about 60,000 dues-paying members.

"We stress dues-paying membership because we don't believe in slush funds. Any young person who is naive enough to think he is going to be a reformer in the existing political parties is just that, naive. They have sold out to the big corporations and to the establishments."

Mr. Levesque said English-language Quebecers would probably have to learn French as a working language but English would remain part of the school curriculum so the province would be capable of communicating with the rest of North America.

Hitler Aide Said In Latin America

LONDON (Reuter) — A London newspaper says that a team of journalists has produced evidence that Martin Bormann, deputy to Adolf Hitler, is alive and well somewhere in Latin America.

The Daily Express says that Bormann, who now would be 72, is living as a prosperous businessman, and that he has fathered four children since escaping from the ruins of Berlin in 1945.

The youngest of the children was said to be only four years old.

Bormann is widely believed to have escaped during the Russian assault on the German capital in May, 1945, and there have been several reports that he had been seen, since then, mainly in South America.

The Express says that details of Bormann's life since the war will be revealed in a forthcoming book by Ladislas Farago, who recently published a book on espionage during the Second World War, and who is said to have led the newspaper's search for Bormann.

If alive Bormann would be the most wanted war criminal in the world.

Details of the former Nazi leader's movements are said to be contained in hundreds of pieces of documents, which have been smuggled out of Latin America to safe deposits in Europe and the United States and which would provide the basis for Farago's book. The Express says it knows where Bormann is living now, but it does not publish his whereabouts in today's issue.

The Express says that Bormann managed to reach his safe haven in South America thanks to the protection of the Vatican, former Argentine president Juan Peron, and leading politicians and financiers in Europe.

At least 16 "Martin Bormanns" have been turned up in America by enthusiasts eager to track down Hitler's fugitive confidant. First an Iron as last March a German settler who said he had lived on the continent since 1958 was briefly taken into custody.

Out for A Dip

Provincial Police divers Garnet Brown of Belleville and Barry Biggs of Gananoque prepare to dive into the icy Moira River Saturday. Despite mid-30's temperatures, the pair spent an hour in the water looking for a fender light tossed in last month. But the search turned into a practice session since all the divers could come up with was a toy truck. They were assisted by volunteers from Thurlow Fire Department.

Hussein Says Libya Aided Plot

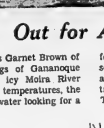
BEIRUT (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan today accused Libyan leader Muammar Kadafi, Palestine guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and one of Arafat's top aides of organizing a plot to overthrow him.

But he denied that his recent stay in hospital was related to the plot and said an air force officer whose plane crashed last weekend was not involved. Lebanese newspapers reported during the weekend that the officer fired rockets at Hussein's helicopter just as he was about to board it and Hussein escaped with a slight wound.

In an interview with the Beirut newspaper An Nahar, the 37-year-old monarch confirmed earlier reports of an unsuccessful coup to be led by an army officer and carried out Nov. 6.

Hussein said Kadafi was to fly to Damascus once the coup started and put pressure on Syria and Iraq into sending planes to attack the royal palace, radio station and military installations in Amman.

"We were aware of the contacts between the army officer and Arafat and especially Salah Khajaf, a man we once helped and who has now betrayed us," Hussein said.



The army officer is Col. Rafet Hindawi, an armored corps commander who has been arrested on charges of treason. Khalaf is one of the founders of Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla group. The Jordanians arrested him during the 1970 civil war with the guerrillas but later released him.

Hussein said the commando movement, with Libyan help, had "brought" Hindawi when he made a trip to Cairo a year ago.

CN Turbo To Be Back Next March

TORONTO (CP) — A CNR spokesman said today that Turbo, the jet powered passenger train, likely will be back in service in March after undergoing extensive modifications.

The sleek, silver train earlier had clipped an hour off the regular five-hour, 333-mile Toronto-Montreal run before it was withdrawn because of a series of breakdowns and failures.

Now, after more than 100 changes that cost several million dollars, President J. D. MacMillan said he expects "satisfactory service will be achieved."

The train failed in two previous trials mainly because it couldn't stand up to winter weather conditions. Snow got into its air ducts and stopped the motors.

Tradeau to Name Cabinet

PM's Is Only Job Where Pick Sure

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was scheduled to announce his post-election cabinet lineup today and only one of the 30 or so jobs was nailed down in advance—that of the prime minister.

There were seven or eight holes in the roster to be filled caused by the pre-election retirement of three men, four others losing their Commons seats in the Oct. 30 election and by at least one being cut, or dropping out—Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Spots open include the ministries of trade, labor, agriculture, defence, manpower, postmaster general and veterans affairs.

Three positions became vacant by the Sept. 1 appointments of E. J. Benson as president of the Canadian Transport Commission from defence and of Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote and Veterans Affairs Minister Arthur Laing to the Senate.

Defeated in the election were Labor Minister Martin O'Connell, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Pat Mahoney, minister without portfolio in the last government.

Mr. Mackasey, manpower minister since last January, let it be known last week he was out of the new cabinet.

There is nothing, apart from strong parliamentary tradition, to prevent Mr. Trudeau from keeping some of those men in his cabinet while they are senators or by appointing them to the Senate.

But traditionally ministers of federal departments are supposed to have seats in the Commons, where they are directly answerable to elected representatives for their policies and programs.

Non-members of the Commons could be included in the cabinet now with the promise that they would seek a seat in a by-election in a constituency vacated by a sitting MP.

One of Mr. Trudeau's main problems, after the election reduced Liberal representation in the Commons from the four western provinces to seven from 23 of 68 possible western seats, was to meet the tradition whereby the cabinet represents the regions of Canada.

In past practice the cabinet has included eight to 10 ministers each from Ontario and Quebec, six to eight from the West, at least one English-speaking Protestant from Quebec, at least one French-speaking minister from outside Quebec and at least one Roman Catholic of Irish descent.

In all, the cabinet generally has represented every province with the possible exception of Prince Edward Island.

MacStiofain Jailed

Fasting IRA Chieftain Is Reported Very Weak

DUBLIN (CP) — IRA chieftain Sean MacStiofain is "very weak but in no immediate danger of death" as a result of his 7 nine day old hunger and thirst strike, doctors treating him in a Dublin hospital said today.

MacStiofain, fasting to protest his arrest by authorities in the Irish republic, was given a six-month jail term Saturday for belonging to the outlawed Irish Republican Army. His sentencing spawned gun battles in Belfast and demonstrations in London, and a fatal attempt to free him Sunday night.

British troops said they shot 11 IRA men in heavy skirmishing in Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, and captured three IRA officers, including a company commander and an explosives expert, in a raid on a dance hall.

Police said four persons were slightly wounded in the attempt by eight gunmen to free dressed as Roman Catholic priests, the others as doctors and hospital workers—to free MacStiofain from Dublin's Mater Hospital. The casualties were one of the gunmen, who was captured, one policeman and two bystanders.

Police said after the gun battle that the seven other gang members were arrested.

The seven other gunmen fled in taxis.

"It happened during the hospital visiting time," a police spokesman said.

"Lots of people were waiting to see sick relatives," and the disguised gunmen mingled with the visitors.

Our men were in an office leading to the ward where MacStiofain is detained," the spokesman said. The gunmen had no pass them, and the gun battle took place in a narrow passage leading to the ward. Shots were flying everywhere."

Following the attempt, MacStiofain was moved from the hospital's ground floor to the third storey, and doctors said he might be shifted again as a security precaution. Police ordered off the building.

At one point Sunday night, about 4,000 supporters of the IRA were milling around the hospital, demanding MacStiofain be freed to preserve his life.

An unidentified doctor who was appointed by the Irish government to oversee MacStiofain's care, told a reporter that his patient's condition was "surprisingly good under the circumstances."

He said MacStiofain was under sedation at his own request. Medical sources said that because of his continuing refusal to accept food and drink, MacStiofain's condition could become critical at any time.

Sources close to the hospital staff said MacStiofain was not being force-fed as this was illegal under Irish law and would constitute assault.

Kerr Proposes Ban On Probing Into Past

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should outlaw job application forms that require people who have received a federal pardon to disclose criminal convictions to their prospective employers, Attorney-General Dalton Bales said he intends to find out whether employers are asking questions designed "to circumvent the intent or purpose" of Ottawa's two-year-old "second chance" law, and if they are, "we will stop that."

Mr. Kerr said the assumption in the federal legislation is that after a certain number of years a criminal conviction should not be a factor, a consideration in the employment prospects of a person shown by investigation to have been behaving himself."

In Ottawa, Otto Lang, federal justice minis ter, said: He welcome Ontario's initiative in this regard. It would be a very sound move."

No province has yet enacted legislation making provincial companies subject to the same restrictions as federal ones.

Kissinger Again Talks with Nixon

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon scheduled his third meeting in as many days with Henry Kissinger today, possibly as a prelude to a showdown with the South Vietnamese on terms of a proposed Vietnam ceasefire.

Nixon, who flew to his Maryland mountain retreat here Sunday night after spending the weekend in New York City, arranged to confer during the afternoon with Kissinger, his chief negotiator in the secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

The meetings came amid speculation, by administration sources that an interruption in the Paris peace talks may mean the United States has decided to tell South Vietnam that no more concessions can be won from North Vietnam in a ceasefire agreement.

The talks, which adjourned Saturday, are scheduled to resume Dec. 4.

Meanwhile, North Vietnam's official newspaper said hopes have been raised for a truce following what it called an about-face by the United States and "insolent demands" by President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met with Thieu for 10 minutes today, but there was no announcement of what was discussed.

Thieu's senior foreign policy adviser, Nguyen Phu Duc, was expected to arrive in Washington from Paris today or Tuesday.

London Paper Says Bormann On Krupp Argentine Ranch

NEW YORK (AP) — Martin Bormann, Adolph Hitler's deputy, lives on a vast Krupp ranch in northern Argentina where he was traced by that South American country's central intelligence agency, the London Daily Express reported today.

The copyright story by Buy expert Ladislas Farago in collaboration with former Express foreign editor Stewart Steven, was distributed by the Chicago Tribune - New York Daily News syndicate in the United States. It appeared here in The Daily News.

Pictures of a heavy-set, bald man were published with the story. The newspaper said that Argentine intelligence agent Jose Velasco identified the man as Bormann, although he was travelling with a passport made out to Ricardo Bauer.

The pictures were taken when Velasco questioned the man at Checkpoint Mendoza near the Chilean border last Oct. 5, the newspaper said. It quoted Velasco as saying that he was sorry he had not arrested the man on his own initiative.

Farago and Steven said in their story that, for the last few weeks, Bormann had been traced to the Rancho Grande, a huge estate owned by Arndt von Bohlen-Halbach of the West German Krupp family, in the province of Salta.

"We have at this moment incontrovertible evidence that Bormann himself is there," they quoted Velasco as saying. But they reported that Velasco had ruled out any attempt to capture the wanted war criminal at the ranch because "it would probably escape long before we could reach his present hideout."

The authors said Argentina secret service documents showed Bormann had lived in various South American countries under a number of names since 1948. Through investment of smuggled Nazi wealth, they said, he had become "an important factor in the economic life of South America."

In Vienna, Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish documentation centre, said he was "very very skeptical" the man would turn out to be Bormann.

Bormann would never turn into a businessman and thus willingly invite security risks, Wiesenthal said. Knowing that "millions of dollars were brought into South America, Bormann "would have no necessity to earn his livelihood as a business man."

Wiesenthal said the matter could be cleared up within 48 hours if the person supplying the paper with the information also forwarded the alleged Bormann's fingerprints.

Farago and Steven said in their article that Bormann never touches anything with his bare hands and puts on a pair of plastic gloves even when drinking a glass of beer in his favorite beer garden.

They said Bormann had travelled widely in South America, spending time at the chicken ranch in southern Chile of Walter Rauff, who originated the Nazi regime's gas chambers, and in Paraguay in the company of Dr. Joseph Mengele, a notorious Nazi concentration camp doctor.

Guard Planes

LONDON (Reuter) — Top security precautions were ordered at all British airports today because of fears that Irish guerrillas will hijack a plane to force the release in Dublin of jailed Irish Republican Army leader Sean MacStiofain.

Today's decision follows at least three telephone calls to airlines threatening a hijack.

Accidents Rise

Belleville's 1972 accident rate is up 21 per cent from last year.

In addition, the number of injured persons has risen by 34 per cent.

The figures, compiled to the end of September, show that the Belleville Police Department is piloting more emphasis of Safe Driving Week, Dec. 1-7, than ever before.

"We're going to use the week to accentuate the need for 52-week concern," said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

The statistics show that during the first nine months of this year, the city had 1,112 accidents compared to 918 last year. During that period, 366 pedestrians and passengers were injured, against only 198 in 1971.

Alcohol again seems to be a prime cause for the dim picture. So far, 143 drinking drivers have been pulled off the road by city policemen. Last year the number was 126.

Chief Crosbie places much of the blame on North Front Street where traffic volume has gone up dramatically with the addition of the Quinte Mall and many new businesses. He is also concerned about impaired riding in the city, particularly during the summer. This year, 25 per cent of July's personal injury accidents involved bikes.

Road construction, says the chief, is also a factor in collision frequency, although it's effect is more indirect.

"Construction causes congestion which leads to driver impatience, driving too close to each other and eventually erratic driver behavior," he said.

Belleville's roads may be in for as much rehabilitation next year as they underwent this year, a thought that does not ease Chief Crosbie's mind.

During Safe Driving Week a booth will be set up at the Quinte Mall where shoppers can read safety pamphlets and discuss driving problems with experienced officers.

The police force also begins its Christmas spot check campaign on December in order to cut down the number of overexuberant holiday drivers.

For next year, a motorcycle training school is in the wind. Such a program would alleviate another need on the road to safe driving, says the chief.

Honorary patron of Safe Driving Week is Governor-General Roland Michener who urges all Canadians "to be careful and considerate whether walking or driving, not only from Dec. 1 - 7, but throughout the year."

The Canada Safety Council is sponsoring Safe Driving Week across the country.

DENTAL HEALTH WEEK
IS ALL YEAR LONG
Many functions begin in the mouth. Certainly a child in the early stage of developing is centered around his mouth as the starting point of his communication. In the adult enjoyment of food also begins in the mouth. A healthy mouth is most important for a confident smile, good appearance, and of course as the organ of the human attribute, speech and language.
Keeping a healthy mouth is based on conservation of teeth and the prevention of diseases of the gums. The success you have is based on proper personal care and regular visits to your dentist.

Trenton Parade Said Lacklustre

By IAN ROBERTSON

TRENTON (Staff) — More than one person, including a judge of floats entered in Saturday's Trenton Santa Claus Parade, commented on the lacklustre attitude of many participants and the less than hearty response of the crowd.

"On certainly the kids loved the whole thing, but there wasn't one bit of response for the public," the judge said after the parade.

For the past few months, organizers at the Chamber of Commerce have been soliciting entries and funds for the parade. At one point, response was so slow, cancellation was predicted.

And while one or two organizations were planning their floats weeks in advance, there were several entrants who made known their participation within a day or two of the event.

As they have done for the past five or six years, the Trenton Public Works took top cash prize for best float, with a monster papier mache Moby Dick, followed by an enthusiastic crew of PW oarsmen in a mockup whaling boat.

"That's what I like to see, floats were animated," the judge said.

Many of the floats were cleverly made, but too often the riders simply sat, looking at the crowd, occasionally giving a wave, sometimes not even that. Several of the entries were cars or trucks with signs attached to the side indicating the club or organization that paid for them. There was mud and dust spattered.

There were a total of 23 floats, seven bands, three majorette corps, more than a dozen vehicles with Santas and riders, marchers and squads of clowns who are part of Belleville Don Foster's neighborhood clown family.

Each float was judged on originality, movement associated, the theme portrayed and materials and labor.

Second and third place went to the Lions Club of Trenton, for its float portraying a moving "gateway to the Trent" and the Trenton Public Utilities for a giant Humpty Dumpty on his wall.

In the youth category, first place went to the Trenton Guides, followed by the First Congeton Cubs and Scouts and the St. Peter's Folk Youth Group.

Those who participated in the parade were: Floats; Third Trenton Guides, Trenton Kinsmen Club, D and A bowling Alley, St. Peter's Folk Mass Singers, Marmora Street Public School, Canadian Diabetic Association, Sixth Trenton Cub Pack; Trenton Department of Public Works, Trenton Lions Club, Trenton Rotary Club, First Consecon Cubs and Scouts, Canadian Flight Equipment, Trenton Kinsmen Club (members in a truck distributed free, filled with balloons), Trenton Minor Baseball Association, Trenton PUC, Fraser and O'Neil Real Estate, Brighton Propane Gas, Frents Without Partners and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Bands in the parade included the Trenton Citizens Band, the Quinte Highlanders, the CFB Trenton Pipe and Drum Band, Brighton Legion Pipe Band, the Men of Note, the Belleville Lions Circus Band and the Deseronto Sea Cadet Corps.

Trenton's small boys carrying a sign, followed by a third striking a tree of lopsided Trenton marchers, was the Trenton Pipe Band.

Majorettes included the Prince Edward High Stepettes, YMCA Majorettes from Belleville and the Trenton Majorettes with their own drum corps.

Cars and walkers included Trenton School Guards, the Five Wanted Radio Assault on and Mayor and Mrs. Duncan McDonald.

Demolished School Election Issue

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Albert Piroth Tuesday night made a bid for re-election repeating the demolition of the former Mary St reet school.

The 35-year-old section of the brick building demolished this summer had a building cost value of $75,000 when torn down, he said.

Reeve Piroth said he had pledged himself against unnecessary expenditures when he campaigned for office two years ago and observed the school was demolished at a cost of $2,500. The area now is "a sea of mud" and has not been converted to a parking lot as yet.

Mr. Piroth referred to the proposed construction of an addition to the fire hall. He added it required the signatures of 1,179 persons on a citizens petition to divert council from this expenditure. Architects' costs was still paid however. "And I contend we haven't heard the last of this new building because the facilities for the police force are still inadequate," declared the reeve.

The former Mary Street school was considered for renovation as town offices and lock-up facilities when the fire hall addition was voted down, but this plan was rejected by council.

Reeve Piroth expressed concern for the 25 million gallons of raw sewerage which flows untreated into Picton creek each spring and said the town's consulting engineers in 1971 recommended construction of a new Bridge Street pumping station or a flow diversion of raw sewerage to the disposal plant. Modifications necessary at the disposal plant were estimated at a cost of $292,000.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission said industries with large volumes of sanitary waste should not be connected at this time.

"Rather than modify our plant some members of council recommend that we continue to rebuild Hill Street," said the reeve.

Council has completed phase one of Hill Street's reconstruction and has proposed the construction of phase two at an estimated estimated cost of $300,000.

Picton Deputy-Reeve James Bird who is challenging Mr. Piroth for the reevehip, said the Hill Street project should be continued since its sewers have been replaced and repaired and this has corrected to a degree the flow of sewerage into Picton Bay.

He said it is true that 25 million gallons are discharged untreated each spring but disagreed that the new pumping station should be built now, burdening the taxpayer. He suggested a phase system as the best basis for repairs and noted new streets also are provided through this plan.

He said reeve Piroth's estimate of $292,000 for a new pumping station probably was too low in view of the variances frequently found in original estimates and final costs.

Mr. Bird said he had changed his mind several times during the Mary Street School debate and in the end claimed voted alone to maintain the building.

Later, Reeve Piroth said the deputy-reeve had "deliberately misled the public" with his claim to a lone stand against demolition. Recorded votes would support his contention that at no time did Mr. Bird stand alone.

Hearing on Sandbanks Termed "Ridiculous"

PICTON (Staff) — Picton merchant Jesse Mason Wednesday night told ratepayers at a meeting here that charges against the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd., and Triad Truckways laid under the Environmental Protection Act are "pathetic" and "absolutely disgusting."

Mr. Mason said he attended the two-day hearing of these charges at the former county jail last month and declared they were "stupid and ridiculous".

Any campfire contributes as much air pollution as a truck, he said.

The businessman said the entire county's population should unite and stand "shoulder to shoulder" to demonstrate its support of the LOCL to the government.

He said economic chaos would result in Prince Edward if any industries are lost. Local briefs state that the county cannot survive as just a tourist area.

The merchant noted few Picton residents visit the Sandbanks frequently and in the summer it is taken over by metro Toronto. He urged "Let us not isolate the area with those coming into the county with very little stimulation to the economy."

Mr. Mason served as chairman for the ratepayers' meeting.

Soaring Health Costs A Concern

Both doctor and patient have a responsibility to help control soaring medical costs, Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter cautioned Saturday.

Control of Ontario's $2-billion health budget now is about 30 per cent of total provincial government spending, said Dr. Potter. While the public is entitled to the health care it needs "there is a limit to how much we can afford to spend in making it available.

Efficiency must be a goal in delivery of health services the minister told an audience including doctors and community leaders at the official building operational in the end of a master development plan adopted in 1965 which has produced a complex medical centre with a total of 530 beds and a wide range of sophisticated techniques on a hospital site dating back to 1884.

But expense of modern medical services — including the need for a "hard look" at administrative costs, was a warning theme sounded by Dr. Potter in the speech at Education Hall before he formally cut the ribbon to symbolically open the nearby administration unit.

Payments to physicians are rising about nine per cent a year, hospital costs 14 per cent, said the health minister.

"We now realize we can no longer continue in this manner and all of us must assist by reviewing programs and cutting costs wherever possible."

He cited the example of a major hospital which in 1947, with 900 beds, had a non-medical staff of 600 - 509. Today, with fewer beds, new methods and labor saving devices, the same hospital employs 2,500 non - medical personnel.

"But control of health costs is not something that can be placed on the shoulder of any one individual or group," said Dr. Potter. "It's as much a responsibility of the individual citizen as it is of the doctors, hospitals or government."

Increasing reliance on government in absorbing health care costs has "tended to distract attention away from the responsibility of the individual and the community."

Doctors and patients have a joint responsibility to "a certain extent" in the effective use of hospital services.

For instance:

—Patients at times have reasons, unrelated to medical needs, for remaining in hospital longer than is necessary. Yet, if the length of stay of hospital patients could be cut by one day, yearly savings "could run into millions of dollars."

—Use of hospital facilities places "heavy responsibility" on the physician. Serious consideration should be given the impact on hospital costs "when a proliferation of tests is used without due consideration of the enormous cost that results."

Regionalization of health care under district councils is now under intensive study, since his ministry recognizes the need for planning and reorganizing health service delivery on an integrated area basis, said Dr. Potter.

Such councils must not be hospital - dominated, but be representative of all municipal groups and agencies, local governments and the public.

Such a development "must start in the community, not be formed by government edict."

Integration and regionalization of services will "require a great deal of understanding and co-operation from hospitals," said Dr. Potter.

"Hospitals will have an even more important role to play in future. For while they will still need to consider the functions of their institution as an entity, policies and decisions will also have to be viewed in relation to other health services in the area."

Parks, Library Seek LIP Grant

Belleville will seek federal funds under the Local Initiatives Program for at least two civic projects this year.

Possibilities for LIP grant submissions are a parks clean-up program and an extension to Corby Public Library.

The projects were mentioned by Ald. Arnold Orr Thursday at the monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Employment Committee.

The committee will be asked to endorse any city projects up for LIP approval.

Estimated cost of the downtown public library extension is $258,000, a project Ald. Orr believed justified LIP assistance since the library branch served both the city and area and was a "worthy project."

To date, no word has been received at Belleville Canada Manpower offices which processes LIP submissions on a local basis — of any applications being approved.

Among them is the Quinte Trail — spanning Hastings and Prince Edward counties — launched last year with LIP funds.

This year the project has applied for $73,000 for a work program employing 34 people for six months.

Sense of Proportion

In contemplating their forthcoming exercise of the ballot in municipal elections in Belleville, voters should preserve a sense of proportion.

The contest for the office of Mayor for instance is marked to some degree by controversy over a charge of conflict of interest against incumbent Dr. J. Russell Scott and it remains to be seen just how much citizens have been influenced by the considerable heat generated in this matter.

Dr. Scott's reaction to the charge has been in effect a non-reaction. For months after the charge was made in April he said little or nothing. Then recently he issued a statement denying any conflict of interest and claiming his involvement with the property in question was covered by a section of the Ontario Municipal Act. He elaborated further on an open-line radio program last week.

In any event Dr. Scott has attempted to keep a low profile in this issue and that is his privilege. Among the public those there has been understandable disquiet and it prevails to this day.

At the same time we have to remember there is a considerable grey area in this matter of conflict of interest. In one case, that of former cabinet minister Darcy McKeough, a deal between his family firm and property he was not directly involved) and the government, was sufficient to lead to his resignation. On the other hand, Attorney General Dalton Bales, who owned land in the area of the new airport at Brantford, remained in the cabinet. At the bidding of Premier Davis the remaining members of the cabinet disclosed their holdings and further legislation is said to be pending.

Meantime, despite all the clamor in the case of Mayor Scott we suggest it should not be allowed to distort the overall political picture locally, or detract from the demonstrable abilities of Dr. Scott since taking office in 1967. The Mayor has been an able chief magistrate, unstinting of his time and talents. Whatever may be thought of his initial lack of response to the "conflict" charges, and the resulting furore, the business of the city has not been allowed to suffer.

It must be remembered also that Council voted overwhelmingly against a public inquiry into the "conflict" matter, and while this resulted in a lot of raised eyebrows also, it never heless was a decision taken democratically.

This aside, we have a contest for Mayor, and Dr. Scott is being opposed by Alderman Robin Jeffrey.

Mr. Jeffrey is a strong candidate. She has proven herself an effective councillor, sincere and earnest in her concern for the community. She also has some fresh ideas on the course Belleville should be taking in the days ahead.

Increased contact with citizens is one of Ald. Jeffrey's planks. If elected she plans personally to conduct a poll to determine items (this is one sure way of finding out the condition of the roads for one thing), as well as an office schedule facilitating daytime workers, the handicapped and elderly. She also favors increased contact between city hall and the community through the media.

For Council at large the municipal campaign this year is one of the most interesting in recent years. There are 18 candidates, representing experience and youth, sitting members and young men, all seeking a voice in the conduct of the city's business. Only ten will be elected, but with such a wealth of candidates there is no hint of apathy. In fact we have all the conditions for a stimulating election.

Brighter Picture

Despite the difficult times Northern Ireland has been passing through, the word from Secretary of State William Whitelaw is that the province has a better industrial relations record and a higher rate of productivity than anywhere else in the United Kingdom.

In an address to a Chamber of Commerce audience, Mr. Whitelaw cited strong financial assistance to industry including the Hartland and Wolff shipyards in Belfast, in addition to £60 million placed at the disposal of the new Northern Ireland Finance Corporation.

Another £30 million is aimed at generating economic activity generally while an accelerated factory expansion program, aimed at the establishment initially of 30 new plants, is also under way and with more to come.

No Party Wants It

Coalition of Main Parties an Unlikely Proposition

By FARMER TPSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—It was inevitable that the closeness of the election result should start people thinking about the possibilities of coalitions among the political parties. What was surprising was the sudden rush of letters to the editor and other comment suggesting that the two major parties should get together to govern the country, using the best talent available from Liberals and Conservatives.

The suggestions, while interesting, are unrealistic. They assure for neither of the two major parties is going to consider such a course. The Liberals cling to the hope that by introducing popular legislation and stalling off defeat for several months they can regain the confidence of Canadians and win the next election with a larger minority or even a majority. Some believe the voters did not intend quite such a severe reprimand and that, shocked at the result of their action, many will swing back to support the government. Quite similarly, the Tories are eager and willing to plunge into another election, confident voters will complete the job they started Oct. 30 by turfing out the government and giving Mr. Stanfield a chance.

One obvious reason why many seem to favor a Liberal-Conservative coalition is the belief there is little to distinguish one from the other in basic philosophy. It's the old argument of third parties that the only way to tell them apart is because one is "in" and the other "out."

In arithmetic terms such a coalition would be powerful, holding over 200 of the 264 Commons's seats and able to put through any measure it wished. The presence of so many Liberal MPs from Quebec would give a coalition strong representation there, while the Conservatives could contribute almost equally strong voices from the Atlantic provinces and Western Canada. Of course, there would be a few minor problems, such as who would be prime minister and which of the many aspirants in both camps would be selected for cabinet posts.

What would work against any such merger is a combination of tradition and the fear that one of the partners in such a combination would gradually become submerged and disappear. The Liberals and Conservatives have been battling each other since Confederation and while a casual glance suggests they are not unlike, there are still some fundamental variations in position and philosophy on many of the important questions facing Canadians. Where coalitions have been tried in provincial situations, one party has usually suffered politically. Once the coalition came apart, as it inevitably does, it has taken that party many difficult years to regain its former prominence. And a coalition of the major parties would be a tremendous opportunity for the NDP to gain strength as the only logical alternative to the government.

Coalitions have been tried twice on the federal level in our history, once to get Confederation going, which nearly ceased, and the second time during the crisis of the First World War when a national government was formed to provide a stable situation. Both tended to be dominated by the Conservatives which made the Liberals unhappy. Partly because of this, Mackenzie King refused to consider a similar course during the Second World War.

What would seem to be more practical in the present situation is a coalition, or at least a working arrangement, between major and minor parties. The NDP could then be assured of a share in power and so on. We had another one in Manitoba, the other day. I can find no disagreement with this view where it is applied to, say, first offenders. I can find many contrary trends who agree with it when applied to hardened criminals. And there is a deep-seated conviction that some of the social evils of the present system were merely trendy without substance in knowledge or fact.

This applies also to Health Minister Munro and his former flirtations with drug "reform" legislation. What people will say quite simply about Mr. Munro best illustrates it: that he is a man of public accountability and mysterious people somewhere in some back room. This is what I mean by "atmospheric reaction" against a federal government. To men entrusted with grave responsibilities the RCMP name and insignia may be a small thing to bother about in a changing society. To great many people in the West it was symbolic. It contributed for more credibility to this hostility than did the bilingual saga, which affected very few people. The mood was — profound disinterest.

It was the atmosphere of distrust that in effect defeated the Liberals, and since other Liberals are right — what is needed is a storm within the Liberal party. In a changing society it is not merely bad politics to create distance by tinkering with certain traditions that have emotional meaning and to do so with many social changes. It is politically stupid, and in every other society that were unable to understand that solution are made up of people who do not spend their time in a vacuum brooding in the abstract about social and political theory and who change rather slowly though Canadians are able to understand or admit.

Support For The Mayor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a taxpayer and citizen for over 30 years who has taken an active interest in the affairs of this city, I suggest to my fellow citizens we pause and contemplate what has taken place over those years.

Belleville, for many years, was in the doldrums, stagnating, going nowhere. Then suddenly in December 1967 we awoke from our lethargy and elected (but just barely) Dr. Russell Scott as our Chief Magistrate. The name of the game changed — we started to move forward and as the record will show our citizens were so pleased with the result that in two years later they re-elected him with an overwhelming majority.

Now it seems we really got into gear and it is obvious to anyone who cares to admit, this city of Belleville has grown and certain individuals with only prospered more in the last five years than it did in the previous 25. Today our city is known far and wide as a thriving, prosperous municipality and it is still growing. Surely it did not just happen. Obviously it was due in great part, to solid administration.

During the past few months we have witnessed a dirty smear campaign promoted by certain individuals with only personal gain in mind. Disregard the slander and innuendo and relegate it to the waste basket where it belongs. Take a few moments to review the record. Having done so, with an open mind, I am sure you will vote to retain the services of Dr. Scott as Mayor of Belleville on Dec. 4. Can you really afford to do otherwise?

Views Said 'One-Sided'

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I would suggest that The Intelligencer permanently employ the several so-called "Letters to the Editor" writers in order that collectively they can all have a one-sided political thoughts. In doing so this would allow newspaper space for "real" public opinion.

MAYOR SCOTT SUPPORTER

Tots With Balloons

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many would-be politicians today are trying to woo and win the 18 - 20 - year-old voters who are eligible to cast their first ballots. The effort to win support from these young people takes many forms, from visiting secondary schools to appealing to the youth to get involved, from balloons and lapel buttons for children? Surely Mrs. Jeffrey has the support of the youth in the polls from these lots and tots. Or is she enlisting the aid of recent aides in her publicity-campaign?

Public Distrust Nearly Downed Government

By SHAUN HERRON
In The Winnipeg Free Press

One of the things that contributed to the reduction of the Liberal majority also contributed to the defeat of Samuel McGovern: People are tired of the bickering, lecturing, shrilling Left. The Indians who occupied the Indian Affairs office in Washington don't appear to know it but they are running against the Left as Indian demonstrators in Winnipeg are, a couple of years too late. That phase of our recent political experience is over and there will be widespread public sympathy for measures necessary to keep public order and civil peace.

For more than five years — for nearly a decade in fact — we sat under threat from students, so-called anti-war demonstrators and "occupiers" of one sort or another. Before that we had the turmoil of the civil rights movement in the States, and no matter what those who had seen it all before tried to tell them, they refused to believe that the reaction was inevitable, that when it came it might go too far. So Mr. Nixon is president again and those who voted for him with most conviction voted in reaction, — against the slick, dirty-tricks against Senator McGovern, persuaded him to take when they were blind to the fact that the tide had turned and he was no longer going to be able to escape from his pulpit moralist's habits. As the voice skewer spent "I believe in his heart" that he could not make it, what did he do? Like a preacher without converts, he licit them over the pit, warning them of the perils of the burning hell, trying to scare them into a left-wing hysteria.

Our Liberal government's decline wasn't all atmospheric reaction by a long chalk, but a great deal of it was, and the government, whenever it got its advice about what the people were thinking, got very bad information.

There was a great deal of social distrust of the government.

Canadians Are Big Spenders As Travel

Brockville Recorder and Times

Canadians are the world's biggest per capita spenders on international travel according to Statistics Canada. And that is one reason why Canada has had an unfavorable balance of payments on travel account for 18 of the past 20 years.

Canadians spent $1,460 million on travel in 1970 — $68.50 for every man, woman and child in the country. The only others the count is that figure were Sweden ($62.40) and Denmark ($50). U.S. spending on foreign travel was only $19.90 per capita. If the total travelling and visiting time used by those who could afford to travel outside Canada had been shared equally among the population, every Canadian resident would have been able to spend three months in the United States and somewhat more than one in some other foreign country during the year.

In 1970, Canadian travellers spent a total of 69 million days in the United States (3.7 per capita population) and 28 million nights in Canada, almost balancing the Canadian figure smooth, on a per capita basis, it represented only three-tenths of a night per U.S. resident.

Despite the fact that Canadians visiting the United States spent an average of $82-64 per visit, as compared with only $29.80 spent in Canada by the average U.S. visitor (we tend to stay longer) Canada enjoyed a favorable balance of payments on travel account with the U.S. of some $84 million in 1970. That was the tenth consecutive year in which Americans spent more in Canada than Canadians in the United States.

Receipts from non-resident travellers in Canada ($1,234 million) were greater than those from any merchandise export except motor vehicles and parts ($2,569 million). But payments of $1,460 million by Canadian residents on travel outside the country were greater than those for any merchandise import except motor vehicles and parts ($3,730 million).

These are fantastic figures when used to emphasize the role of tourism as an industry, as an export and as an import.

'Drain It' He Says!

Regina Leader-Post

One audacious Torontonian thinks he has the answer to the problem of flooding in Regina Eve. "Drain the thing," says futurist Frank Ogden, thereby creating about five million acres of new farmland. It could be done by building a dam at Oxbow and excavating the Niagara River above the Falls, leaving enough water to provide for the power and a few aesthetic ponds in the prettiest decpest parts. To those sentimentally attached to Niagara Falls, Ogden argues that with the breakdown of the family unit and ignoring of the marriage ceremony, there will be less desire for honeymoons in the future. And looking far enough into the future — about 25,000 years — Mother Nature will have eroded away the Falls and drained Lake Erie anyway but Ogden's solution is too simple to be practical.

missing on passes have very bad records: sex crimes, crimes of violence and so on. We had another one in Manitoba, the other day. I can find no disagreement with this view where it is applied to, say, first offenders. I can find many contrary trends who agree with it when applied to hardened criminals. And there is a deep-seated conviction that some of the social evils of the present system were merely trendy without substance in knowledge or fact.

It is politically stupid, and in every other society that were unable to understand that solution are made up of people who do not spend their time in a vacuum brooding in the abstract about social and political theory and who change rather slowly though Canadians are able to understand or admit.

news columns tell of the surprisingly naive effort along this line instigated by Otto Lang in a discussion with the MP's, David Lewis. The latter quickly shot down this suggestion, preferring to play out his party's strength as a maker or breaker of governments.

A Conservative-Social Credit alliance might be easier to achieve as their philosophies are more akin, except for some Social Credit monetary theories which the Tories would be unable to swallow and the Socreds would be reluctant to disavow.

Mr. Stanfield is confident he can make it on his own next time, even though the Social Credit strength in Quebec would give him his much-needed viable base in that province. But such a partnership would tend to drive the Liberals and the NDP closer together. Simple arithmetic reveals that 109 plus 31 adds up to more than 107 plus 15.

From a sustained applause which was accorded Rabbi Abraham L. Rabbi Feinberg, who was introduced by the president of the Women's Canadian Club, Mrs. E. During the month of October 21 births were registered in the city; 40 births being male and 41 female.

Following a concerted effort to advance the attendance in Belleville public schools an average of 95.3 per cent of the pupils were in attendance in October, while during the month of September the percentage was 93.7.

Upwards of 75 men are frozen in the ice in local waters between Telegraph Point and Big Bay. Fishermen who own the nets are unable to break through the ice with the boats to secure the nets which they know are filled with fish. The powerful boat, owned by the Black Fish Co., endeavored to break through and failed to turn back at Massassaga. The ice is two inches thick in some places. If shipped out the recent rain will cause the ice to weaken and the fishermen will be able to get at the nets. Black's boat will try again shortly to break through and the fishermen with smaller boats are waiting to follow the trail of the boat.

Firemen Need Help with Dolls

Belleville firefighters, seldom at a loss for solutions to emergencies, have run into a situation that has them stymied.

It concerns dolls and doll clothes, and the firemen are crying for help. They have collected many dolls in their Christmas toy program for needy children. But they all need refurbishing, and the firefighters are looking for women and girls to take on the task. In some cases all that is required is washing and scrubbing.

The firefighters annual appeal for used toys is in full swing, but Ralph Boomhower, director of the project, says donations are slow coming in. He is looking for used toys in good condition.

"There's no way we can fix plastic," he says.

Through the generosity of Dr. John Hart, the former bowling alley on Dundas St. East is being used as a toy warehouse and people drop building. So is footing the bi Dr. Hart has not only lent his building, he is footing the bill for heat and hydro for as long as the firefighters need the space.

The firemen are working with the Central Volunteer Bureau's Christmas Sharing program to assist families this Christmas.

The Christmas Sharing program is seeking donors for hampers. The lists of recipients are in, but many more people are needed to pack baskets to ensure everyone in the city has a festive dinner this holiday season.

Toys for the firemen's project can be left at the two city firehalls, or the firemen will collect donations if called at 962-5555. Volunteers can also offer their services at the same number.

Dolls for Firemen

Cathy Warwick and Bev Thompson, Girl Guides in Belleville, worked during the weekend in the home of guide leader Mavis Brennan mending doll clothes for the Belleville fire fighters. The dolls, after being washed and repaired, will be returned to the fire department to be distributed in the Christmas Sharing Program.

Volunteers Said Available

Stu Meeks would like to see volunteer groups take over many programs now run by the city.

At a meeting in the senior citizen apartment unit on Turenbull Street Thursday, the aldermanic candidate proposed a Citizen City Cooperation Program to help "stretch the tax dollar".

Under the program, volunteers would raise funds and donate time toward such projects as beautifying parks, and improving conditions for minor hockey.

Mr. Meeks said the city's parks need more adequate rest room facilities and more benches. He would also like to see a tree-planting program launched.

To illustrate the type of fund-raising schemes he has in mind, he referred to a march organized by Ian Reilly several years ago in which money was raised to buy Emergency Measures Organization equipment and an ambulance for the St. John Ambulance Association.

"I think our young people today are rediscovering recreation," said Mr. Meeks, adding that parks are the domain of persons of all ages.

If elected Dec. 4, he promised to work toward the improvement of Belleville's harbor which, he said, has often been known to make potential visitors move on.

"We're missing the boat because the boats are missing Belleville," was the slogan he told his audience.

The water rescue operator predicted a flood next spring at the mouth of the Moira River unless silt is removed from the bottom.

Mr. Meeks also campaigned for a strong downtown core in Belleville.

Hydro's Property Available for Use

The Eastern Regional Office of Ontario Hydro at Belleville is open to suggestions from area municipalities for possible recreational use of its many hydro line rights-of-way.

At the October meeting in Peterborough of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association, Councillor Bainbridge said Ontario Hydro had accepted as a matter of policy the idea of their rights-of-way being used as cycling or walking paths for other recreational uses.

He said rights-of-way would be available on a negotiated basis to any municipality for such uses.

Today at Belleville, Norman Manning, public relations officer for Hydro's Eastern Regional office, said there was a definite move on the part of Hydro to make its rights-of-way more accessible for multi-use recreational purposes.

The idea is to encourage multi-use of such rights-of-way rather than discourage it, he said.

"We are looking for as much use as possible," he said.

As an example of what can be done with hydro rights-of-way is the use which the Belleville Board of Parks Management is getting out of Hydro property at the Cannifton Road Riverside Park area.

Here the Hydro right-of-way has been turned into a park area indistinguishable from adjoining city owned parkland.

Mr. Manning said considerable use is being made of rights-of-way in the Toronto metropolitan area and in the Ottawa area as multi-use areas. This multi-use extends beyond the recreational field. In some instances such Hydro property is in use as parking space for adjacent shopping plazas.

North Lakes Ice-covered

TWEED (Special) — Warmer temperatures forecast for today by the weatherman could serve to diminish the early season mantle of ice on lakes in the Tweed forest district.

Denbigh Lake at Denbigh and Quarry Lake south of Bancroft have been forten over since Nov. 16 while Gorman Lake at Ducre has been ice-covered since Nov. 17.

Stoco Lake at Tweed has been virtually a covering of ice since Nov. 22 while Sand and Raglan Lakes have been frozen over since Nov. 23.

The same northern area also has seen a slight covering of snow ranging all the way from a "trace" at Tweed to 2.6 inches at Plevna and 2.2 inches at Palmer Rapids.

Dump Site Questioned

TRENTON (Staff) — Concern over possible pollution of Trenton's water supply from a new, proposed dump site in Brighton Township Thursday prompted the Public Utilities Commission to recommend sending a delegate to a public hearing Nov. 30. The dump would serve Brighton, Brighton and Murray Townships.

Douglas Manlow, PUC manager, will attend a public hearing in Brighton Township hall at Hilton, from 10 a.m.

Earlier this year, plans were announced to locate a new dump in an old quarry site. At that time, Mr. Manlow investigated streams in the area to learn if they would eventually lead to sources of Trenton's water.

This week he flew over the area concerned. Mr. Manlow believes there is nothing to worry about in this respect, but urges a thorough test of the water flow. The test, which would include the numerous water springs in the area, would most likely take the form of colored dyes.

The dye can be added to water, and by watching various other lakes, rivers and streams in the area, a flow pattern can be discerned.

Both PUC chairman Charles Hilton and commissioner James MacDonald voiced concern for the proposed location. "I can't understand anybody putting a dump near a water supply," the chairman said.

Mr. MacDonald urged a protest be registered unless Mr. Manlow is completely satisfied no danger to water supplies exists.

Mr. Manlow said the department of environment informed the PUC by letter some time ago, that adequate tests would be done. Results have not been made available to the PUC. The dump site is located one mile south of the Brighton turnoff at Highway 401.

Casual Chat in New Coffee Shop

Coffee and Gift Shops Now in Operation

"Attractive, appealing and pleasant, was the theme of our design in the coffee and gift shops," said Mrs. Ben E. Burley, past president and planning committee chairman of the shops. Saturday marked the official opening of the Administration wing of Belleville General Hospital which includes the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Coffee and Gift Shops.

Green and gold create an especially pleasing decor in this room which has been completely furnished by the auxiliary. An informal relaxing atmosphere for hospital staff, patients and their visitors is created.

Within the coffee and gift shops 75 auxiliary members and eight junior volunteers assist in the operation.

"We do not sell the same products as the CWIB which is still in operation," said vice-president and operation chairman.

The shops are completely furnished by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. All cafeteria supplies and equipment are also provided by the auxiliary.

Coffee shop hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. — Monday to Friday; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. — Saturday and Sunday, the shop is open from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Beverages, soups, sandwiches and desserts, freshly made, are sold in the coffee shops.

Misses Lynne MacLoud and Lucy Stokmans, both high school students volunteer in the coffee shop. "The best part is meeting the people," said Lynne MacLoud. Lucy said "You get a lot of experience with food and people. It's not hard work and it's good experience."

"Sweet Trees are a popular item sold in our coffee shop," said Mrs. W. D. Leslie, convener of the gift shop on its opening day.

Found in the gift shops are lingerie, and slippers. There is even a variety of jewellery accessories and leather goods. Sundry items, cologne, dusting powder and perfume are also sold.

Included in the shops are not only women's giftware but men's and infants and children. Ties, socks and jewellery cases, knitted wear and children's wearing apparel is provided.

Gift shop hours are 1:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. — Monday to Friday and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Breast-feeding Impossible For Adoptive Mother

Dear Readers: This will be the longest Confidential I have ever printed. It takes up the entire column. It is intended for those who told me I was wrong when I said there is no scientific evidence that a woman who has never been pregnant can breast-feed a child. You men lovers out there who have no interest in the subject can skip Ann Landers today. Go look at the sports page.

The mail was fascinating. I did not hear from even one woman who said she had done it. I did hear, however, from dozens of women who said her neighbor had done it, her cousin had done it, a lady in the Lech League knew of six women who had done it, and one man from Bad Axe, Michigan, said his uncle had done it.

It is easy to understand why an adoptive mother might fervently wish to believe that her own milk is sustaining her child. The psychological as well as the physiological benefits of breastfeeding are well known. La Leche League has done a superb job of disseminating information on breastfeeding and is to be commended for the help it has given new mothers. But the facts are as follows:

There is no existing scientific evidence that a woman who has never been pregnant can successfully nurse a child.

Dr. Marcel Newton, a reputable and well-respected physician in Chicago who disagreed with me, was good enough to speak with and write to two of my principal consultants, one in Washington, D.C., the other in Boston. Both physicians expressed high regard for Dr. Newton's credentials. But after following up on Dr. Newton's list of references, the conclusion was unanimous.

I quote Dr. John P. Merrill, for 25 years a professor at Harvard Medical School: "Dr. Newton's suggested material has returned up any scientific documentation that lactation is possible in a woman who has not been pregnant. I did read 'Primitive Culture, 1940' or 'Experiments in Animals, 1831,' since I do not believe they are pertinent. I noted that of the ten women mentioned by Dr. Newton he did not personally observe any one of them."

Readers from Denver, Miami and Detroit sent me clippings and photographs of adoptive mothers "nursing" their babies. Anyone who read the Miami story should have caught the gimmick that has misled so many people. It is called the "Lact-Sack."

The Lact-Sack is a pouch that contains the baby's formula. Attached to the sack is a tube which the mother slips down alongside her breast. The end of the tube goes into the baby's mouth, along with the mother's breast. This is called "supplemental feeding."

A Miami doctor whose name appeared in the article said on the phone, "I personally will recommend a fluid coming out of the baby's mother's breast." When asked if he was sure it was milk he replied, "I haven't got around to analyzing it."

Dr. Cornelia Channing, well known endocrinologist and professor at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, said: "I have seen no proof that an adoptive mother can breast-feed a child. Newspaper feature stories cannot be regarded as scientific documentation."

Dr. Jessie Marmorston, distinguished endocrinologist and clinical professor of medicine at the University of Southern California Medical School, invited me to quote her "in unequivocal terms." (Dr. Marmorston also serves on the staffs of four hospitals and is senior attending physician at the world's largest hospital, County General in Los Angeles.) Dr. Marmorston had this to say: "It is not possible for a woman who has never been pregnant to breast-feed a child. I asked several physicians if they had ever heard of an authentic case, and not one of them had — nor do they believe it can be done."

Dr. Marmorston also said, "Even if a woman who has never been pregnant is able to produce a few drops of milk, it is not enough to sustain a baby. Only a woman who has had a baby can produce enough milk to nurse a baby."

Dr. Newton's list of "successful" cases is impressive. But I am not impressed. Not one of the women he listed has been examined by Dr. Newton. He has not even talked to them. He has merely received letters from them. Dr. Newton's list of "successful" cases is impressive. But I am not impressed. Not one of the women he listed has been examined by Dr. Newton. BC NDP Approves Women's Ministry

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia New Democratic Party approved a resolution Saturday recommending establishment of a provincial department of women's affairs following a fighting speech by the wife of an NDP cabinet minister.

Yvonne Cocke, wife of Health Minister Dennis Cocke, told the NDP's annual convention that full equality for women in the nation, the province and even within the party "just is not happening."

The resolution said the women's affairs department should be responsible for implementing laws giving women equal rights with men in employment, salaries and in legal matters.

The provincial civil service and all other government agencies should be directed "to treat women as a disadvantaged class to be given preferential treatment in hiring for positions at all stages of the decision-making process until the imbalance in the numbers of male and female persons filling these positions is corrected."

In an interview Sunday, Premier Dave Barrett said he did not view the creation of a ministry of women's affairs as a high priority.

The party is bound by decisions taken at the convention, he said, but the government remains the final arbiter on what action will be taken

Ordeal Takes Toll

Delayed Shock Hits Stewardess

FRANKFURT (CP) — Air Canada stewardess Margit Sommer remained in seclusion today at a friend's home in this West German city after collapsing from delayed shock of a "ground hijacking" by a deranged man that lasted 21 hours before police killed him.

Air Canada officials said the 31-year-old stewardess from Toronto seemed in good shape Saturday after a police sharpshooter killed Viktor Widera, 38, and freed her from the Air Canada DC-8.

The two had been alone on the plane, parked on a runway of Frankfurt airport, from Friday morning until shortly before 9 a.m. EST Saturday.

Miss Sommer, born in Czechoslovakia of German parents, suffered delayed shock on Sunday and was put to bed at the friend's home.

"She started to cry and shake and . . . couldn't even stand up," an Air Canada spokesman said.

A doctor prescribed sedatives and ordered Miss Sommer to bed for two or three days.

The DC-8 returned to Canada Saturday with its crew of eight. The 21 passengers who had left the plane shortly before Widera took over also returned to Montreal Saturday and had nothing but praise for their treatment by the airline and airport personnel in Frankfurt.

One of the passengers, Martha Kennedy of Ottawa, said: "I don't ever want to see, in on another hijacking again. It really puts you off."

Cecil Knott of Montreal said the passengers saw little of the actual hijack attempt. "The hijacker got on when we got off. Nobody saw the guy."

Lionel Robin, another Montrealer, said that if the woman who demanded security check had not done so "the hijacking wouldn't have happened."

The security check was made after the woman passenger said she did not like the looks of one of her fellow-passengers and demanded that everyone's bag gage be searched. The airline complied.

Robin said that if the passengers had not left the aircraft Widera would not have been able to board it.

"People as nervous as that woman shouldn't be travelling," Robin said.

While the passengers were off the plane, Widera, clad in overalls, came aboard and ordered all the crew off except Miss Sommer.

An Air Canada spokesman said that the fact a security complaint had preceded an actual case of commandeering was merely a "strange coincidence."

Furrier Fleeced

MONTREAL (CP) — A furrier was robbed of at least $50,000 worth of goods here recently, by thieves who hammered their way through a wall. Police said a sledge hammer was used. The burglars fled with 506 blue fox furs, 93 mink stoles and 14 grey fox furs.

New Zealand to Send Ship to A-test Area

WELLINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister-elect Norman Kirk said today New Zealand will send a frigate into the Pacific test area if France resumes nuclear-testing next year.

There will be a call for volunteers within the navy to man the ship," Kirk told his first formal news conference since his Labor party's landslide victory in Saturday's general election.

"I don't know if I will be able to sail in it myself but at least one cabines member will be on board," Kirk added.

Kirk also said that an Australian government representative would be invited to join the ship, if such a bid is requested.

Jim Cairns, Australian Labor MP, is reported to have cabled Kirk seeking such an invitation on the strength of the Australian Labor party's hopes of winning in the general election Dec. 2.

Lions' Tournament Roaring Success

The first Belleville Lions Midget Tournament went off without a hitch Sunday, as the Lions received nothing but praise from participating coaches and managers.

Tom Merier, coach of the Kingston midgets, said of the Lions organization: "nothing but first class, this is the first time we've been back after from the very time we got into the city. We've been to other tournaments where the organizers just let us look after ourselves. The Lions should be commended."

Cornwall's coach Paul Markell said that the organization was "100 per cent. They've done a great job of organizing the tournament."

The Lions themselves were "very pleased with the outcome" as Jack Lapp, president of the Lions club said. "We would like to make this an annual event, but spread over three days."

Preliminary estimates obtained, the turnout for the tournament was between 1000-1300 people, some of whom travelled from as far as Burlington to their teams play.

The youngsters of Belleville were perhaps the happiest as there were many gleeful looks when they discovered they could watch the games without charge.

Kingston Tops Favorites To Win Midget Tourney

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Memorial Arena resounded with cheers, as Kingston Rotary - Kiwanis' Gord Botting and Mike Gilpin scored at 18:08 and 18:28 respectively of the third period to tie up the Lions Midget Hockey Tournaments "A" series Cornwall Anchor Motel Mavericks 4 - 4.

The tie forced the game into a 10 minute over - time period, in which Cornwall's right winger Robert Ouellette scored what proved to be the Mavericks' winning goal on a slap shot from the point. Ken Chadwick scored Cornwall's other over-time goal on an open net to give the Mavericks a 6-4 victory and the Paul Pressidee Trophy as series "A" champions of the first annual Lions Midget Hockey Tournament.

The Cornwall - Kingston game was several tournament firsts, as no other match had gone into over-time or had been entirely without penalties. Cornwall's John Markell, who scored the Mavericks' first third period goal, was seriously, but accidentally clashed in the cheek with a stick. Stitches were required to close the wound.

Cornwall's other tallies came from centre Marc Doyon with two, and Denis Rochon with one, while Danny Marshall and Larry Murphy scored for Kingston.

In the consolation series "B" championship match, Brooklin - Whitby defeated Brampton 5 - 3 to win the Campbell Rest - All Trophy. Brooklin - Whitby came off a 2-0 victory over Oshawa in second round action, while Brampton defeated Brockville 6 - 1 to reach the "B" finals.

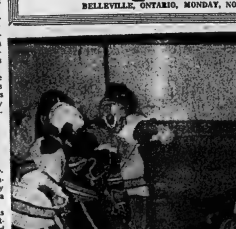
In the series "A" championship second round competition, Cornwall defeated Burlington 3-2 in a hard hitting, fast paced hockey match.

Burlington held a 2-0 lead going into the third period, when at 1:22 Roger Campeau finally put the Mavericks on the board. Right winger Robert Ouellette tied it up 2 - 2 at 9:10 beating Burlington goalie Rob Harris. John Markell scored Cornwall's winning goal with 1:15 left in the game, sending the Mavericks into the final round with Kingston, who defeated Belleville Blake Kerr Imperials 7-2 in second round action.

First round competition saw the Belleville - Imperials defeat Oshawa 4-2, while Kingston Rotary - Kiwanis shut out Brooklin - Whitby 4 - 0. Goalie Steve Dine earned a silver medallion for the shutout.

In further first round action, Burlington walloped Brockville 12-2. Dan Blum beat Brockville goalie Chris LaFreniere for a hat trick, while centre Mark Lipnicky, and left winger Kevin Caddy tallied two apiece. Singles for Burlington came from Lance Nerberry, Rick Crawford, and Glenn McFadden. Dave Boyd and Dave Moran netted Brockville's only goals. Cornwall moved into series "A" competition with a 4-1 win over Brampton.

Imperials Out Early



Belleville's Blake Kerr Imperial midgets went as far as the second round in the "A" series in Sunday's Lions Midget Hockey Tournament before they were knocked out of contention for the championship by a 7-2 loss to Kingston Rotary - Kiwanis.

"If you're smaller, you have to skate to make up for it," said Imperials' coach Robb Burrowes of huge Kingston team, "and we weren't skating. In our first game, we played better hockey."

Belleville defeated Oshawa 4-2 in first competition at Memorial Arena, earning an "A" series berth against Kingston. When coach Burrowes saw the afternoon competition, he said ruefully "that'll be a game and a half."

It proved to be just that as Kingston's Larry Murphy netted a hat trick, while Gord Botting, Robert Parnell, Kim Elliott, and Bryan Alexander beat Imperial goalie Jeff Merrill for singles. Belleville's tallies came from Steve Kirby and Mark Foster.

Foster netted another single against Oshawa, while Peter Crawford scored two, and Rick Growden one. Both Oshawa tallies came from Ron Laurin.

Dine's Effort Too Late

Kingston Rotary-Kiwanis goalie Steve Dine makes a dive for the puck in the Lions Midget Hockey Tournament series "A" final against Cornwall Mavericks. Dine's effort came too late as Cornwall centre Marc Doyon's slap shot had already lit the red light. Cornwall won the Paul Presidente's trophy as series "A" champions with their 6-4 overtime win against Kingston.

Midget Graduates Pick Three Stars

Kevin Joudrey and Peter Smrke, both members of the Western Tire juveniles, sat watching Belleville Blake Kerr Imperials play Oshawa midgets in the first round of Sunday's Lions Midget Hockey Tournament, not simply as spectators, but as judges.

Joudrey and Smrke were picking the game's three stars who would receive either the gold, silver or bronze medallions for their play on the ice.

Late in the third period, Joudrey said: "Well, Peter Crawford (Belleville) will get the gold, unless someone gets two days. Crawford has five check marks in his favor."

Crawford earned the gold medallion as he scored two goals in Belleville's 4-2 victory over Oshawa, while Oshawa defenceman Brian Smith received the silver and Imperials' goalie Jeff Merrill garnered the bronze.

Joe Edwards, a Western Tire defenceman, said that the decisions were made so that "a player doesn't have to make an outstanding play. If he's checking well, that's enough. That's his job."

The Imperials failed to receive medallions in their second round "A" series 7-2 defeat at the hands of Kingston as Bryan Alexander, Larry Murphy and Rob Gerrard starred in the Kingston versus Brockville Whitby contest, and Danny Marshall received the gold, silver and bronze respectively.

Cornwall's Ken Chadwick, and Burlington's Mark Lipnicky were the only two players in the tournament to receive two medallions apiece. Ken Chadwick took the bronze silver against Burlington while Lipnicky garnered the gold against Brockville and the bronze against Cornwall.

Robb Burrowes, coach of Imperial Midgets, and Gord Bell, former MacFarland agreed on the same star when they picked Brooklin-Whitby goalie Tom Connelly. Burrowes' decision gave Connelly the bronze medallion for his goal tending against Brampton in the "B" series championship match. He also captured Gord Bell's assessment as the tournament's outstanding goalie.

Cornwall's Allan St. Louis received the trophy as outstanding defenceman as well as a gold medallion in Cornwall's 3-2 win over Burlington in "A" series second round action. Kingston's Danny Marshall received the individual trophy as outstanding forward.

David Lewis Wins National Title

Trenton Secondary's junior football quarterback David Lewis walked out of Hamilton's Ivor Wynn Stadium a national champion.

David won the National Final for the Spalding Achievement Award for Football Canada Fundamentals after his 14-year - old age group.

In the final place kick in the pass - punt - kick distance and accuracy contest, during half-time at the Hamilton - Ottawa eastern final, David kicked a 32-yard place kick.

"It's the best I've ever done," said David, "I beat the other guy Winnipeg's Robert Lelievold, by 40 points. Before going into half - time I was behind by about 30, but he kicked the ball off the side of his foot. It wasn't as accurate as mine."

However, David does not know where the Spalding Trophy is at the moment. "My father took it to get the top engraved back on" said David. "I was waiting for the bus back to Trenton when it broke. I put my suitcase down on the ground and my trophy beside it. A gust of wind knocked over the suitcase, which knocked over the trophy and the top broke off."

David's win netted him a football, cleats and a helmet in addition to the Spalding Trophy.

Short-handed Bobcats Tie St. Mike's

The Belleville Bobcat's came out of a Metro Junior "B" contest hockey match with St. Michaels with a 4-4 tie despite playing short-handed with 11 players and one goalie.

Andy Ricketts is out with an ankle injury, while Wally Dainard is out of the line up because of illness. Darryl Cole is still under a six game suspension, while Rick Meagher is in West Virginia.

"Everyone put out a real good effort," said Bobcat coach Moe Prentice. Jon Yolin played defence for about 50 minutes, and Bob Moore played a strong game in net."

St. Mike's started the scoring in the first period with two quick ones. It would have ended 2-0 if Paul Lavender had not taken a clearing pass from Ken Holmes for the Bobcats' only first period tally. Rob Fournier scored the first tie up mark on a rebound while Mark Coates, skating on a broken skate for 5½ major part of the second and third periods, scored on a 25-foot slap shot.

B. B. take 2 na indeet en

The 3-2 Bobcat lead did not stand, however, as Jamie Dewhirst tied it up with the second goal of his hat trick performance.

The second period 3-3 tie was broken by Paul Lavender, with his second goal of the evening at 1:30 of the third. Toronto tied it 4-4 at 10:31 of the third with less than a minute left in Wayne McGeachy's high sticking and fighting penalties.

Diplomats Display Talent

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Canadian Harlem Diplomats basketball team Saturday night carried away top points in a game against the combined efforts of local high school teachers at Bayside Secondary School — in more ways than one.

On occasion, they carried the teachers, literally.

From start to finish the game was lighthearted, to say the least. No one really gave a hoot about the final score, although rumors have it that it was somewhere close to a 72-64 finish for the bouncing comedians.

The Diplomats carry on in the style made famous by the Harlem Globetrotters. In fact, one of them, Neal Humphrey of Willowdale, is a former trotter. Appearing most often in the U. S., the team will average 180 games this year says Humphrey, although their base is in Toronto.

Gags galore kept the crowd of more than 200 in stitches. Everything went in the game, from weighted basket balls, balls that bounced back on elastic, and a running repertoire of funny lines.

Take for example, the 6' 7" height of both 'Jumpin' Charlie Cook and 'Pop' Humphrey and match that against the 5'5" Phil Meeks and 5'7" Varki Korah, and something's bound to happen. It did!

At one point Korah was boisted onto the shoulders of two Diplomats, just to give him an equal chance at tall ball playing. He missed.

BCI Girls Win

BCI girls swept basketball honors at the Bay of Quinte COSSA championships Saturday.

The junior Collegians downed Nicholson 36-23 in the semi-finals and then scored a 48-26 victory over Picton for the championship.

In senior action, BCI dumped Nicholson 39-18 in the semis before counting a 50-11 win over Picton in their final game. Deborah Kerr paced the title win with 15 points while Cathy Doty added 12.

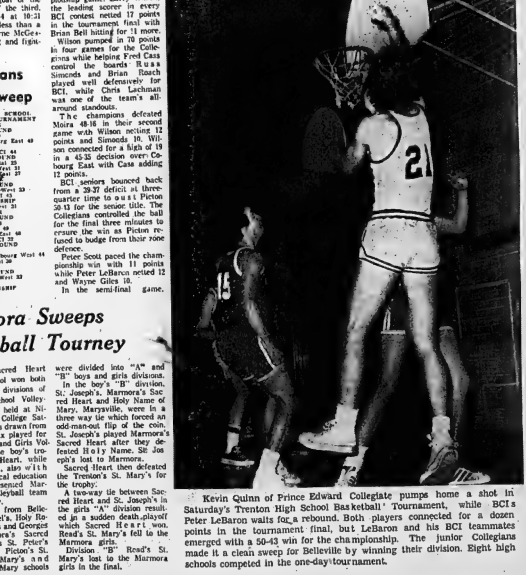
BCI Cagers Win Trenton Titles

TRENTON — BCI's junior and senior basketball teams took different routes but got the same results in the Trenton High School Basketball Tournament Saturday.

The junior Collegians were never really pressed as they breezed through four games to win the championship. The seniors, on the other hand, were involved in some chin wangers but still managed a 3-1 record and the championship.

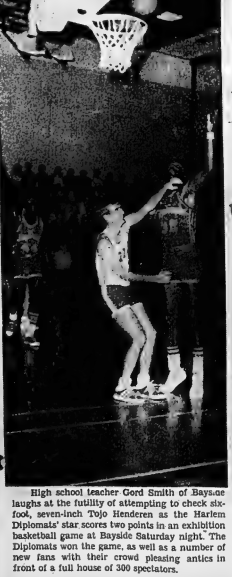
The BCI juniors met Cobourg West twice in the tournament, winning 44-15 in the opener and 47-31 in the championship game. Larry Wilson, the leading scorer in every BCI contest netted 17 points in the tournament final with Brian Bell hitting for 11 more.

Wilson pumped in 70 points in four games for the Collegians while helping Fred Gore control the boards. Russ Simonds and Brian Rauch played well defensively for BCI, while Chris Lachman was one of the team's all-around standouts.



The champions defeated Moira 48-18 in their second game with Wilson netting 12 points and Simonds 10. Wilson connected for a high of 19 in a 45-38 decision over Cobourg East with Case adding 12 points.

BCI seniors bounced back from a 29-27 deficit at three-quarter time to edge Picton 50-43 for the senior title. The Collegians controlled the ball for the final three minutes to ensure the win as Picton refused to budge from their zone defence.



Peter Scott paced the championship win with 11 points while Peter LeBaron netted 12 and Wayne Giles 10.

In the semi-final game, BCI saw a 34-32 lead go down the drain before finally emerging with a 39-36 win over Trenton. Scott with 11 points and LeBaron with nine managed to offset an 18-point effort by Trenton's Don Armstrong.

LeBaron hit for a dozen to spark a 43-33 win over Moira earlier in the tournament. Bill Henry connected for 17 in a losing cause. BCI had opened play with a 32-22 win over Cobourg West. LeBaron with eight points and Gary Donovan with seven were the leaders.

Kevin Quinn of Prince Edward Collegiate pumps home a shot in Saturday's Trenton High School Basketball Tournament, while BCI's Peter LeBaron waits for a rebound. Both players connected for a dozen points in the tournament final, but LeBaron and his BCI teammates emerged with a 50-43 win for the championship. The junior Collegians made it a clean sweep for Belleville by winning their division championship. Eight high schools competed in the one-day tournament.

High school teacher Gord Smith of Bayside laughs at the futility of attempting to check six-foot, seven-inch Tojo Henderen as the Harlem Diplomats' star scores two points in an exhibition basketball game at Bayside Saturday night. The Diplomats won the game, as well as a number of new fans with their crowd pleasing antics in front of a full house of 300 spectators.

Marmora Sweeps Volleyball Tourney

Marmora's Sacred Heart Elementary School won both boy's and girl's divisions of the Separate School Volleyball Tournament held at Centennial Catholic College Saturday. Youngsters drawn from grades four to six played for the Junior Boys and Girls Volley'e presented the boy's trophy to Sacred Heart, while Joan MacDonnell, also with St. Peter's physical education department, presented Marmora's girls volleyball team with their trophy.

The 20 teams from Belleville's St. Michael's, Holy Rosary, St. Joseph's and Georgetown; Marmora's Sacred Heart, Trenton's St. Peter's and St. Mary's; Picton's St. Harryville St. Mary's and Holy Name of Mary schools were divided into "A" and "B" boys and girls divisions.

In the boy's "B" division, St. Joseph's, Marmora's Sacred Heart and Holy Name of Mary, Marryville, were in a three way tie which forced an odd-man-out flip of the coin. St. Joseph's enjoyed Marmora's Sacred Heart after they defeated Holy Name, St. Joseph's lost to Marmora.

Sacred Heart then defeated the Trenton's St. Mary's for the trophy.

A two-way tie between Sacred Heart and St. Joseph's in the girls "A" division resulted in a sudden death playoff which Sacred Heart won. Read's St. Mary's fell to the Marmora girls.

Sims Collapses At Airport

OTTAWA (CP) — Defensive end Rudy Sims was resting quietly today after collapsing in Toronto International Airport Sunday while returning from the final Eastern Football Conference playoff game in Hamilton.

Sims collapsed of exhaustion while waiting for a air transportation back to Ottawa after the Rough Riders dropped a 23-12 decision to the Tiger-Cats that gave Hamilton a 30-27 two-game, total-point victory and a berth in the Grey Cup Sunday against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

He and team trainer Dave Smith stayed in Toronto until a later plane and then moved on here.

It was not expected Sims would need any treatment other than rest to recover completely.

Golden Bears Win College Bowl

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Kates is a tall, lean safety man, captain of the University of Alberta Golden Bears, and he has been to the College Bowl three times.

In 1967, the year the College Bowl became Canada's inter-collegiate football championship, Kates celebrated with the Bears as they defeated McMaster University of Hamilton 10-9.

In 1971, he tasted defeat with the white and gold team from Edmonton as they bowed by a similar single point—15-14—to the University of Western Ontario at London.

But Saturday—as the Bears defeated the Golden Hawks of Waterloo Lutheran 39-17Dave Kates sat on the bench in his No. 22 uniform, ineligible to play after striking his team name from the roster.

"We went through an emotional ringer getting ready for this game," said coach Jim Donlevy.

"We prepped for Waterloo with a full complement of 38 men. I had an arrangement with Tuffy Knight (Waterloo coach) that we would each carry 38.

"But the CIAU (Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union) put us in a terrible position by insisting that we go by the rule book which says you can dress only 32 men."

Both the Bears and the Hawks had to lop six men from their lists.

"I had to tell our boys just a few hours before the game that we couldn't all play," Donlevy said.

"The first man up was Kates. He's our captain and he wanted very badly to play. But he took himself out, because he felt that he might not be in 100 per cent top shape."

Kates was a pleasant and surprise returnee to this year's Bears. He was drafted by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference last year and was a late cut by the pro club.

He can play either offensive or defensive halfback and specializes in punt and kick-off returns and is adept at punting. He was named to the safety spot on last year's All-Canada college team.

"I felt I could have stayed with anyone on the field," Kates said after the game. "I really felt good.

"But I was concerned about my right knee. I hurt it in the Loyola game. I knew I could do the job, but I didn't know how the knee would stand up to punishment. Rather than take a chance, I sat it out."

Coach Donlevy said it was "quite a sacrifice" for Kates—"this was to have been his final college game."

Sitting out with their captain were halfbacks Kim Duncan and Don Zabloski; guard Walt Kuzyk and tackle Brian Moen, and end Bruce Buchynski. Fullback Mark Baldasaro also did not play, but he was sitting out an injury.

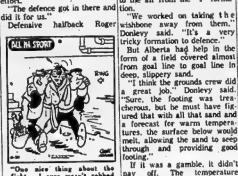
In the emotional Alberta dressing room, Donlevy called for quiet and got it and told his club "that was a beautiful team effort."

"The defence got in there and did it for us."

Defensive halfback Roger Comartin and linebacker Andy Machowski were named jointly for most-valuable-player honors after the game—the first time in College Bowl play that there have been co-winners.

"That's the best indication," Donlevy said.

"The award could have gone to all 32 guys on the defensive squad."



The Bears' defence hammered the tricky Lutheran withbone formation with its multiplicity of options and finally forced the Hawks—not noted as a passing club—to take to the air from the "T" formation.

"We worked on taking the wishbone away from them," Donlevy said. "It's a very tricky formation to defence."

But Alberta had help in the form of a field covered almost from goal line to goal line in deep, slippery sand.

"I think the grounds crew did a great job," Donlevy said. "Sure, the footing was treacherous, but he must have figured that with all that sand and a forecast for warm temperatures, the surface below would melt, allowing the sand to seep through and providing good footing."

If it was a gamble, it didn't pay off. The temperature throughout the game was near the freezing mark.

Sunter Kicks Hamilton To Comeback Over Rough Riders

HAMILTON (CP) — Ian Sunter literally kicked off the Grey Cup festivities here Sunday when his talented boot propelled Hamilton Tiger-Cats into next weekend's Canadian Football League championship.

The 18-year-old placekicker from nearby Burlington kicked five field goals, one into the face of 25-to 30-mile-an-hour winds that breezed through Ivor Wynne Stadium, as the Ticats romped 23-8 over Ottawa Rough Riders for a berth in the annual Grey Cup on the same grounds Dec. 3.

Although Hamilton has been in nine previous Grey Cup games since 1953, winning five, it will mark the first time they have had an opportunity to play before a home field.

And they did it the hard way, wiping out a 12-point deficit Riders built in the two-game series opener for the Eastern Football Conference with a crown 19-7 win at Ottawa.

Their opponents, Saskatchewan Roughriders, lost 24-1 to the Tiger-Cats in 1967, the last time a Hamilton club reached the CFL championship. Saskatchewan upset Winnipeg Blue Bombers 27-24 last weekend in the Western Conference's sudden-death final.

Sunter added a convert, to Lewis Forter's touchdown on a 28-yard return of an Ottawa fumble in the second quarter, and a single on his only missed field goal that gave Hamilton a 10 lead.

The Riders got two field goals from Gerry Organ after Ticats had swollen their 17-0 half-time lead to 20 points.

Hamilton punter Bill Van Burkleo conceded a safety touch in the third quarter that tied the series 27-27 but enabled Hamilton to retain possession with the wind coming up in their favor.

The main difference in the two meetings was Hamilton's ability to put the pressure on Ottawa quarterback Rick Cassata, contain Ottawa's running game, and capitalize on their opponent's mistakes.

Porter's touchdown, the only one of the game, was such an instance where the Hamilton defence keyed on miscues. Just as it has been doing most of the season.

"I could see when Al (Brepner) and Gerry (Sternberg) hit (Allan) Thompson he was going to fumble," said Porter. "It was just a matter of snagging when it was going to pop—before or after he hit the ground.

"When I saw that ball pop loose I knew I was goin' all the way. I could just feel it. Smitty (Bruce Smith) threw a key block and Angle (Moaca) threw another just before I went across."

Conference, in large portions, appeared to form the basis of Hamilton's sudden reversal of form.

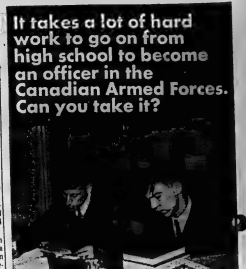
Before the game, Moaca informed coach Jerry Williams he had enough left in his gimpy knees to play two more games—Sunday's and the Grey Cup game.

Sunter, who had a so-so season while hitting on 14 of 38 field goal attempts, said he started feeling it "when my first one went through" from 45 yards out to give the Ticats an 11-0 lead.

He commenced to bit on another four consecutive field goals from 22, 42, 14 and 44 yards.

The 17 points was far from an individual points record for a playoff game. CFL statistician Greg Fuller, from memory, recalled that Lorne Benson, playing with Winnipeg, scored six touchdowns in a 43-5 win over Saskatchewan in the 1953 WFC semi-final. The touchdown then was worth five points.

The confidence came after Sunter discovered he had mastered the tricky crosswinds.



"I thought I was going to have trouble. . . . I wasn't getting too many good ones away in the warmup," he explained. "But in the game they were falling in. I guess that whirlwarmups are all about."

The loss turned the tables on upset minded Ottawa that beat Hamilton convincingly the previous Saturday after suffering three losses during the season—their only three losses in the schedule.

"I still think we're the best football team in the country," coach Jack Gotta claimed in the subdued Ottawa dressing room.

Cassata, scrambling for yardage with his receivers covered, completed 26 yards on eight carries to top the Ottawa running

Hawks Muscle Habs

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's been some time since Jerry Korab and Keith Magnuson combined to dispense their own brand of justice for the Chicago Stadium fans.

Sunday night changed all that, however, and it was doubly effective in that the Black Hawkes' victims were Montreal Canadiens.

The two Chicago musclemen used a match-up between teammate Phil Russell and Montreal's Marc Tardif to kick off the swing of things.

When the ship settled, Korab had a double minor, Magnuson a fighting major and Montreal defenceman Guy Lapointe a fighting major along with an earlier minor. The two initial combatants also were assessed five-minute penalties.

The altercations, in the third period, followed a brutal hard-hitting game in which Chico Maki scored twice and Bill White once, offsetting two Montreal goals by Yvan Cournoyer.

In other Sunday games, the scores were Minnesota North Stars 3 Vancouver Canucks 1; New York Rangers 7 Toronto Maple Leafs 4; California 6 Detroit Red Wings 4; Atlanta Flames 6 Pittsburgh Penguins 2; Boston Bruins 6 Philadelphia Flyers 4.

Lights - scoring Toronto swamped California 11-0 Saturday, amassing the biggest single-game production by a team this year.

Elsewhere, New York Islanders held the Penguins 3-3. Detroit defeated Philadelphia 6-4, Chicago beat St. Louis Blues 4-2 and Minnesota blanked Los Angeles Kings 3-0.

Toronto visits St. Louis, Vancouver entertains the Rangers and the Islanders are at home to Buffalo Sabres in Tuesday night's only games.

The Leafs, who enjoyed their unusual scoring harvest at home Saturday led by Rich Kehoe's three goals, reverted to form against the Rangers. Ex-Leaf Pete Stemkowski and Jean Ratelle paced the New York blitz with two goals each as the Rangers opened a 6-2 lead after two periods.

Detroit fans, expecting their favorites to catch California on the rebound, were upset by the seemingly lack of desire shown by the Red Wings as the Seals opened a 5-2 lead.

HENRI RICHARD

Richard May Quit Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Henri Richard may have played his last game in a Montreal Canadiens' uniform Friday night in the Habs' 9-1 National Hockey League win over Vancouver Canucks.

The newspaper says Richard whacked team-mate Serge Savard across the face with an open hand after a dispute over whether to allow reporters into the dressing room after the game.

Richard did not play in Montreal's 3-2 loss in Chicago Sunday night.

Jacques Laperriere initially suggested that the newspaper men be kept out and was seconded by Savard, the newspaper says. Then Richard, Montreal's team captain, is quoted as saying:

"Let them in. They have a job to do just like anybody else."

A few moments later, the Gazette says Savard told Richard: "If you like them so much, why don't you sleep with them"

Seconds later Richard slapped Savard. Players separated them before any other physical violence and the players vowed not to mention anything about the incident. But word leaked out.

Richard did not attend the Canadiens' pre-game meal or workout in Chicago Sunday and remained in his hotel room.

"I have nothing to say about the affair," Richard said, when contacted in his room. "I didn't tell you about it and that's the way it stands."

Hull Has Jets Jumping

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With playing - coach Bobby Hull a member in good standing, at least for the time being, Winnipeg Jets have become some breathing space atop the World Hockey Association's Western Division.

Hull's intermittent appearances in the lineup, dictated by the various court orders in the United States, don't seem to have upset his teammates, who now have a six-point lead over Alberta Oilers and Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Hull scored once, but veteran Dunc Rousseau with two goals was the big producer Sunday night as Winnipeg turned back Les Nordiques 4-1 before 7,427 fans in Quebec City.

Elsewhere Sunday it was Alberta 2 Ottawa Nationals 1; Los Angeles Sharks 6 New York Raiders 2; Minnesota 3 New England Whalers 1.

Houston Aeros upset Cleveland Crusaders 3-1 Saturday while Chicago Cougars trimmed Philadelphia Blazers 4-3 and Alberta dropped a 4-2 score to New York.

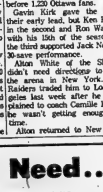
The Jets spotted Quebec a 1-0 lead on Michel Archambault's goal at 1:16. Rousseau's first, at 2:28 of the opening period, tied the score and Carl Brewer's power-play marker 11 minutes later was the winner.

The Oilers, who lost league scoring leader Jim Harrison last week with a broken knee, also had to stage a comeback before 1,220 Ottawa fans.

Gavin Kirk gave the Nats their early lead, but Ken Baird in the second and Ron Walters with his 15th of the season in the third supported Jack Norris' 30-save performance.



Alton White of the Sharks didn't need directions to find the arena in New York. The Raiders traded him to Los Angeles last week after he complained to coach Camille Henry he wasn't getting enough ice time.

Fred Speck scored the winner and set up an insurance score by defenceman Dick Paradise as the Fighting Saints opened a 3-0 lead for 4,853 Duluth-Superior fans.

Mel Pearson gave the Saints a 1-0 lead. Larry Pleau averted the shutout when he scored for the Whalers on goaltender Mike Curran in the second period.

Hornets Climb Into First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets have moved into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, chiefly because of their ability to beat Oakville Oaks.

The Hornets downed Oakville 7-5 Saturday night in Galt and 3-1 Sunday in Oakville.

The victories moved Galt two points ahead of the runner up Orillia Terriers, who lost 6-3 to Barrie Flyers in Saturday's other action.

In other games Sunday, Owen Sound Downtowners nipped Brantford Foresters 7-6 in overtime and Kingston Aces downed Belleville Quintes 4-2.

Hank Monteith scored three times for Oakville. Ron McNeil and Dunc MacDonald added one each.

Billy Hway scored twice for Galt Sunday, with Reier, Steve Hunt and Miller adding one each. Dave Nicholishen scored for Oakville in the third period.

Barrie scored three times in the first period and then coasted to its victory over Orillia.

Gary Marsh, Jim O'Brien and Ron Clark scored for Orillia.

In Owen Sound, the Downtowners won in overtime against Brantford after only five seconds.

Rod Bloomfield scored the winner when he won a face-off, took two strides and fired a low slapshot past Brantford goalie Bob Aitken, for his third goal of the night.

Kingston Power Play Sinks Quintes 4-2

KINGSTON (Special) — Kingston Aces' power play lived up to the name Sunday night accounting for all of the home team scoring in a 4-2 win over Belleville Quintes.

Losing coach Wayne Brown felt that his team performed hard enough in Kingston's end.

Defenceman Jack Cherry scored two of the Aces' power play markers including the winner at 9.59 of the third period.

DOUG SENIOR

Bob Clayton had given Kingston a 1-0 lead after the opening frame and Cherry upped that count to 2-0 with his first goal of the game at 4.21 of the second.

Ray Johnston put the Quintes into contention with his second goal in as many games, before Cherry made it 3-1. The Belleville power play accounted for a goal of their own with Doug Senior connecting on passes from George Godson and Al Ferguson.

Right winger John Mercer iced the Kingston win with a tally at 14.44 after Quintes' goalie Karl Bagnell had been penalized for delay of game. Bagnell performed well in the shots, while Mike Lowell saved 30 times for Kingston.

The Aces' victory came before 880 fans, the smallest crowd to see a Kingston game in more than six years. It leaves the Aces with a 4-8 mark two points behind Belleville, who are now 5-10.

Johnston and Senior played strong games for the losers, who drew five of the game's nine penalties. The Quintes face a home-and-home series with Owen Sound this weekend.

Vietnam Truce Job Would Prove Costly

TORONTO (CP) — It will be cost Canadians tens of millions of dollars to send a peace-keeping military force to supervise a truce in Vietnam, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday.

"If we undertook the role we would be making a contribution of this kind to world peace and that would be very substantial indeed," Mr. Sharp said in an interview taped for the CTV network television program W-5.

However, he said he was sure the Canadian people would support the expenditure since the war has "done infinite damage to the world."

NDP Meets Women's Lib

VANCOUVER (CP) — The nomenclature used at the three-day annual convention of the British Columbia New Democratic Party during the weekend got a little confusing as delegates groped for new words in an effort to avoid being tagged as "sexists" by women's liberationists.

"Mr. Chairman" was a definite no-no. It became "Mr. Chairperson." That drew hisses from the women delegates. So did "Brother chairperson." And "Comrade chairperson" had a funny ring to it.

"Sister chairperson," and "Ms. chairperson" also were heard at various convention sessions, but all of them seemed to be lacking something and the 800 delegates never did settle on a definite title for the individual behind the podium, sometimes a man, occasionally a woman.

DREE Record Defended

HALIFAX (CP) — Guy Henson, chairman of the Nova Scotia joint labor-management study committee and director of the Dalhousie Institute of Public Affairs, said Sunday that remarks by Ed Broadbent, Ottawa-Windsor New Democratic Party member of Parliament, are creating the impression that a job taken in the Atlantic provinces is a job lost that Ontario might have lost.

Mr. Henson was referring to recent comments by Mr. Broadbent criticizing as unnecessary a $223,500 grant by the department of regional economic expansion (DREE) to Iveco Industries Ltd. of Dartmouth, N.S.

Jay Cees Oppose Youth Opportunities

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Walter Lastowka, national president of the Canadian Jay Cees, said Saturday that if the federal government does not end its Opportunities for Youth program next year, his organization will press the government to do so.

Mr. Lastowka, of St. Catharines, Ont., told the Great Lakes region Jay Cees that the program was a waste of money and should be discontinued.

He said the Jay Cees favor the formation of youth councils that would let young people raise their own money for worthwhile projects. Contrary to what the government believes, he said, youth is not looking for handouts.

Changes Role

ROME (AP) — Italian film star Gina Lollobrigida has switched from posing for photographs to taking them.

Neglecting her acting career almost entirely for three years, Gina used thousands of rolls of film to photograph Italy. Her work will be published in a book entitled Italian Mia. The picture book contains 200 black and white photographs.

Miss Lollobrigida says she travelled incognito all over Italy to take her pictures, using two prune pits to fill out her cheeks and wearing a wig as disguise.

"After a while I changed the pits for two buttons," she said. "My mouth was getting sore."

Still in Fjord

OSLO (Reuter) — Some Norwegian naval vessels were still in the west coast Sognefjord today despite the escape three days ago of the mystery submarine they had hunted for two weeks.

The defence command announced Sunday night that the submarine had escaped into the Atlantic Friday. Its nationality had not been established, nor had it been determined whether it was a conventional or a nuclear submarine, a communique said.

Woman Raped

BROCKVILLE (CP) — An 82-year-old woman was attacked and raped Saturday night in her apartment in a senior citizens housing project in the city's north end. The woman was taken to hospital suffering from bruises and shock. Police arrested a man, whose identity they did not disclose, for questioning.

Shun Wildcats

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Bob Sage, vice-president of the Sarnia Postal Workers Union, said Saturday that the national office of, the union has warned against wildcat strikes.

He said the warning was a direct result of two recent walkouts at Toronto's main post office. Mr. Sage said he is confident the postal workers will not strike before Christmas but noted that the union is prepared to strike wherever necessary.

The union and the treasury board have been negotiating a new contract since March 26, and Mr. Sage said telex units have been placed in union offices so that a strike can be called at a moment's notice.

Teen Queen

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Melissa Marie Galbraith, a 16-year-old high school junior from Clarion, Pa., was named Miss Teenage America Saturday night. She was chosen from 50 other competing for the title during the 12th annual pageant.

Talking Books

LONDON (CP) — A library stocked with tape recordings of books has been opened with an aim to help disabled and elderly persons enjoy listening to their favorite books. On loan at the library are hundreds of tape recorders for member to play back the tapes. "We want to make the enjoyment of books as accessible as possible to our members," library head Frank Clarke said. "This way, they can just sit back and listen to readings."

Box of Tricks

POOLE, England (CP) — Funny things happened when postman Fred Hallam threw a parcel into his van. The parcel hissed and began to grow. Finally the paper covering burst and out popped a self-inflating life jacket—fully inflated. To the sole amusement among Devon post office workers, the recipient, Anthony Poole, didn't find it funny. He's a life-saving instructor.

Doctor Dies

Dr. Magee took a special interest in fighting cancer years ago when his son died of the disease at the age of 6.

Dr. Magee became chairman of the Ontario Medical Association's cancer committee and later chairman of the Canadian Medical Association's cancer committee.

It was during his tenure with the CMA, from 1962 to 1965, that he started Canada's first anti-smoking campaign.

He leaves his wife, Dr. Agnes Moffat, two daughters and a son.

JEAN-LUC PEPIN

Pepin Says He Won't Become Ambassador

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, former federal minister of trade commerce and industry said Saturday, that contrary to published reports, he will not become Canadian ambassador to the United States.

Speaking in his home riding of Drummond, Mr. Pepin said he had cut the "umbilical cord" with the government and he planned to return to private industry to work at serious and original projects.

Mr. Pepin was defeated in the Nov. 10 judicial recount of the Oct. 30 federal election in Drummond riding.

Couple Dead

MONTREAL (CP) — A young couple were found shot to death in their home in nearby Laval Sunday.

Michel Julien, 22, and Danielle Julien, 23, were shot with a 30-30 rifle, police said. They are investigating the possibility of a murder and suicide.

CLAUDE WAGNER

Wagner Not Blamed

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite a disappointing performance as Quebec campaign leader for the Progressive Conservatives in last month's federal election, Claude Wagner seems to be receiving little criticism from top figures in the party.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, sparking in Edmonton last week, blamed the party's lack of organization in Quebec and "errors in judgment" for the setback.

Meanwhile other leading Tories have blamed lack of emphasis on party platforms and candidates and incompetence on the part of the party's Quebec director.

Before the federal election, the Conservatives had three MPs from Quebec but emerged from the voting with only two—Mr. Wagner, in St. Hyacinthe and Heward Grafftey in Brome-Missisquoi.

A Big Lock

LE HAVRE, France (AP) — A lock 1,539 feet long and advertised as the world's largest will permit ships of up to 200,000 tons to enter the extension of the port of Le Havre.

Let's talk about a car loan.

And how we can get you rolling.

If you're thinking of trading your car, we should talk.

We've been involved in financing cars for a long time.

And we've worked with probably every dealer in town.

So we can put together a loan that'll suit you without getting you in over your head.

We can even talk about one type of loan that gives you the full price of your car.

Even if you're not a customer.

We do that because we know helping you do something is the best way to make you one.

Come on in.

And let's talk cars.

Let's talk.

'Angel of Death' Could Be Located

HAIFA (AP) — An Israeli Nazi-hunter claims he knows the general whereabouts of Dr. Josef Mengele and could capture the notorious "Angel of Death" of the Auschwitz concentration camp if he had financial backing.

"I would get another passport and fly to South America," says Avia Friedman. "Yes, I'm positive I could find him—and bring him to justice."

People have called Friedman "insane" and "adult"—eccentric and fanatic—but never crazy.

Since the Second World War, Friedman, working first out of Austria and later from his Haifa Documentation Centre, has figured in the capture of 250 Nazi war criminals, including Adolf Eichmann.

"Mengele's trial, and execution—in Germany, perhaps—must be quick," says Friedman.

Friedman refuses to be pinned down, however, on another missing Nazi war criminal, Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy.

"To me, he is dead," he said. "I want to think him dead. If he is alive, he is a dead man anyway, running in fear of his life, looking over his shoulder all the time. Don't forget he is over 70 now."

He conceded that if Bormann is alive he is probably in South America, in Argentina, Paraguay or Uruguay.

He said there should never be another Eichmann-type trial in Israel.

"Besides costing Israel $1 million, the Eichmann trial was terrible for our people too. Many of them could not bear to relive those horrible years in the camps. They cracked."

The 50-year-old native of Radom, Poland, spent five years in Hitler's cesspit, where he lost most of his family.

"Where is Mengele? We understand he is living freely in Paraguay under the protection of rich German Nazis and current officials."

The Israelies held special hatred for the chief doctor of Auschwitz who has been quoted as saying: "Here the Jews come in by the door and go out by the chimney."

Vatican Denies Church Helped Bormann Escape

VATICAN CITY (A) — The Vatican said Saturday it has no knowledge of any assistance reported given by the Roman Catholic Church to help Martin Bormann escape to Latin America at the end of the Second World War.

The Vatican spokesman, Federico Alessandrini, said, however, that Bormann under some other name might have received the same ecclesiastic aid that the church gave to many other refugees.

Floating Ports Urged For Huge Oil Tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special study for the Federal Maritime Administration has recommended construction of floating superports off the Delaware and Louisiana coasts for huge tankers to unload oil imported from abroad.

The offshore port facilities are necessary to accommodate the growing fleet of deep-draft supertankers that require water depths of 100 feet, the report said.

The report, issued Sunday, is the first of several being prepared through federal agencies and by some states. In addition to the maritime administration, it is being studied by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Council on Environmental Quality.

It was prepared by Soros, Inc., a New York consulting firm.

Beach, Del.; Lester Johnson, was quick to criticize the recommendation for a superport off the Delaware coast, warning of possible oil spills off the beach resort.

"I understand it's impossible to unload without spills," Johnson said Sunday. "And it's been proven that anything out there washes ashore."

The recommendation of the Louisiana site was welcomed by P. J. Mills, executive director of the Louisiana Superport authority. "The study put Louisiana five or six jumps ahead of the nearest competitor," he said.

A group of oilmen announced in New Orleans last week they have formed a corporation to build a superport off the Louisiana coast if the state gets federal permission.

The report said the offshore ports are the best solution to the oil import problem from both an ecological and economical standpoint.

The report said the costs of dredging existing harbors to the necessary 100-foot depth and maintaining them would be prohibitive. At present, only ports in Puget Sound in the Pacific Northwest can accommodate the supertankers.

East-coast refineries, which already depend on foreign crude for more than 50 per cent of their production, currently are supplied by tankers docking at conventional harbors no more than 65 feet deep. These tankers are 65,000 deadweight tons while the supertankers are 250,000 to 500,000 tons.

CHURCH HAS BAR

LONDON (AP) — Anglican Canon Allan Auckland has built a bar at his church, St. Catherine's in south London district of New Cross. The bar is the only one in the sector and is part of a $384,000 neighborhood centre he built in the church compound.

Western Tire Ties Kingston

Kevin Joshwa put Belleville's Western Tire juveniles ahead 1-0 over Kingston Township with his second period goal, but Ross Griffith of Kingston tied it up 1-1 in the third. The Sunday evening OMHA game ended in a 2-2 tie as Joey Edwards netted a Joshwa assisted goal while John Caldwell tallied for the Township.

The Kinsmen Club bantams took the victory laurels as they defeated Trenton 4 - 1. Weeks, Pope, Waterson, and Hutchison tallied for Belleville, while Wilson scored Trenton's lone counter. The Dixie Fried Chicken peewees minors proved too difficult for the opposition to vanquish, as the Belleville peewees defeated Trenton 7 - 1 Saturday, and Kingston Fort Henry 3 - 0 Sunday.

Darryl Coleman and Shawn Mulroney netted two apiece for the winners while Sieve Mofina, Brad Miller, and Bruce McBrien tallied one. Trenton's only goal came in the third period from Curtis Smith.

In Sunday's action Mark Crawford, John Henry and Billy Rowe put the goals on the scoreboard. Donald Cook and Bob McGuire share the shutout honors as they saved 22 shots on goal to Kingston's 36.

Belleville Rollina peewees played to a 3-3 tie with Prescot Saturday as Danny Jacquet, Mike Bryant, and Danny Duffy tallied for Belleville. Dan Jubert, Brent Nartan, and Joe McFarlane scored for Belleville's goals with three of their own.

The OMHA Towers Food City novice majors won both their games over the weekend. Trenton Rotary fell-at the hands of Bobby Wolfe, Lawrence Hankon, Jeff Birch and Burkholder who chalked up the final goal to give Belleville a 4-3 victory over the Rotarians. Trenton goals came from MacDonald, Moore and Keck.

Saturday's contest saw the Towers Food City novice majors take a 5-3 victory from Gananoque McClements Bus Lines. Dony Parks tallied two while Louis Crawford, Jeff Birch and Bobby Wolfe collected the single goals.

Jim's Dusty Dusts Off Opposition

Peter Kemp's eight-year-old Jim Dusty won his second straight over the ¾-mile dash at Frontenac Downs Sunday in a time of 1:22, the slowest of the three dashes to date.

The mild covered track, however, did not slow down John Murphy or Orville Coville, as they continue to move closer to leader Hugh Werne with 27 wins in the wins, money and percentage race.

Murphy upped his total to 25 wins as Elisa Jimmy (in the third race) and Dominion K Rose (sixth) brought Murphy over the finish line. Coville brought Two Mountains Dear (fourth) and Kin Din's Knight (sixth) to raise his total to 18 wins.

Thursday Township driver Al Vance took second behind Skippy Rush in the fourth and third behind Mr. Rod in the eighth.

Attendance at Sundays 10-race card was 840, mutuels $34,425.

The fifth to final race continues Wednesday with a 7:45 post time.

Lupenette Scores Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saturday night, the Royals humbled Laval Nationals 7-3 at Laval and returned home Sunday to edge Montreal Red, White and Blue 6-5 in overtime. In other games Sunday, Quebec tied Sorel Black Hawks 5-5, as a rl dumped Shawinigan Bruins 4-2 and dDrummondville Rangers outlasted Sherbrooke Saturday 7-5.

The Royals now have 38 points on 19 wins and five losses while the. Remparts' record is 18-3-1 for 37 points. Laval is third with 23 points followed by Sherbrooke and Sorel who each have 22.

It was McGregor's second goal at 5:43 of the sudden-death overtime period that gave the Royals the win over the last-place Montreal club, who got a pair of goals from Blair Mackasey and singles from Robert Bezin, Michel Belisle and Raymond Bibeau.

McDonald was a two-goal man for the Royals in their win over Laval as was team mate Stu Davison. Brian McCullough, Al Sims and Robert Geoffrion added single goals for the Royals while Gilles Therrien, Marcel Dumais and Jean Trudeur replied for Laval.

Ohio State Takes Rose Bowl Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The goalposts were gone from Ohio Stadium as the clock ticked off the final seconds, destroyed by ecstatic Ohio State fans, but it made no difference to the Michigan Wolverines, who disdained them earlier and goal was now torn to far away.

"That was out of our field goal range," coach Bo Schembechler sighed after his third-ranked Wolverines ran into—but not through—a pair of inspired Ohio State goal line stands and bowed to the ninth rated Buckeyes 14-11 Saturday and could only get to be winners' 41-yard line as time ran out, thereby losing out on an unbeaten season and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

Instead, Ohio State will go to Pasadena on New Year's Day to Face Southern California, the No 1 U.S. college football team, while the Wolverines must be content with a share of the Big Ten title.

While Southern Cal and run-ning-up Alabama, the only teams with perfect records, were idle, sixth ranked Penn State clobbered Pitt 49-27 and No. 8 Louisiana State was tied 2-3 by Florida when freshman John Williams kicked a 35-yard field goal with 7:08 left.

No. 10 Auburn and No. 11 Notre Dame had the weekend off while No. 13 Colorads, No. 14 UCLA and No. 19 Washington State finished their seasons a week ago.

Elsewhere, 12th-ranked Tennessee turned back Kentucky 17-7, No. 15 North Carolina trounced East Carolina 42-19 and Arizona State, rated 18th, won the Western Athletic Conference title and a berth in the Sun Bowl by beating Arizona 38-21.

Trailing, Michigan had a first down on the Ohio State one yard line just before half-time but a fourth down fumble by quarterback Dennis Franklin at the two killed that threat.

Track Officials Face Shuffle

SASKATOON (CP) — Directors of the Canadian Track and Field Association (CTFA) have dismissed and reappointed within a few hours Saturday at the annual meeting of the association.

A vote of non-confidence was passed in the morning after the central Ontario delegation, led by chairman Fred Sayers, over selection of the Canadian track and field team for the Munich Olympics last summer.

CTFA president Harvey Pearce called for a vote on the central Ontario motion. The non-confidence vote was carried and the directors resigned. They said they would not stand for re-election.

However, most of the morning was spent considering the consequences of the action. Mr. Pearce said, and the B.C. delegation moved during the afternoon session that the morning vote be rescinded.

"It got out of hand before people knew what was going on. A national secretary Crystal Blackie of Ottawa said after the meeting.

It started off directed at Harvey Pearce and Bill Bruthers, who were both on the national selection committees, but the board stood together."

After the rebellion was controlled, the association agreed in principle to advertise for a national coach to assume full responsibility for development of the Canadian team, but Mr. Pearce said this will not change the position of Lionel Pugh, currently the national coach.

"We're hoping to go professional in our coaching," said Pearce. "All our coaches are professional now, and in some instances it is costing them money. . . ."

Applications will be received until Feb. 28 and a decision is likely by April 1.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, NOV. 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your concentrated attention on the most urgent problems eventually gets you over a rough spot. Delay is normal in all activities.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): During today's lull, nothing is gained by worrying over appearances. A fresh way of seeing life and your share of it occurs to you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): If there is a way of getting into a cross-purpose sort of situation, you will find it. The next task is remaining serene.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Showing concern is not the same as doing something about matters. You are susceptible to the moods of others.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22): You take a firmer stand than usual; be gentle along with it. Financial profit shouldn't be mixed in with friends, plans.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Helping others turns up as your main role in life today. Be willing to lay aside some of your own plans for the moment.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take care of it yourself if you can; if you can't postpone it. There is no substitute for common sense and steady work.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Material resources occupy your main attention. There are many demands from all sides on whatever you have or stand to gain.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 22): Expect schedules to fall apart in today's incidents. Give first priority to the welfare of those around you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): For you the day seems slow; just fast as well devoted to resolving problems relating to past events.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today's general discussion may annoy you, but also reveals the flaws in your planning in time for you to do something about them.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Deal with small groups or individuals rather than crowds or corporate entities, where you can. Seek co-operative links.

Hyperactive Child Needs Treatment

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss hyperactivity in children. What are the symptoms a mother should look for? Can she do anything about it?

I have heard these children are poor learners in school. Is this a reflection on their intelligence? Do they ever outgrow it?

I have heard they can be controlled better with drugs. Is this the answer? Do they have to take the drugs the rest of their lives? Can a brother or sister become hyperactive? I am concerned about my four-year-old son.—Mrs. J.B.

The hyperactive, or hyperkinetic, child is one who has so much get-up-and-go that he just can't stay still. Always has to be doing something and much of the time it has to be something different.

When young they may break things, or tear things apart, just because it is a thing simple and different to do. But always bursting. Too often this urge to be moving or doing can mean mischief (not necessarily or even usually malicious).

Yes, the hyperactive child is a poor learner in school. It's because his attention span is short. Instead of concentrating for 10 minutes on his reading or writing or arithmetic, he's in and out, at the wastebasket and in the aisles, poking the youngster next to him, talking, making noises.

It's not because of lack of intelligence. It's a neurological fault—part of him hasn't grown up, neurologically speaking. He's slow to learn himself, because of his rapidly shifting attention, and he's a pain in the neck to everybody else who is bothered by his restlessness.

Yes, they outgrow this as they approach adulthood, but that's a long time to wait. Their own learning has suffered, and they've made pests of themselves to others, and missed some important points in making friends.

Yes, drugs are used to control hyperactivity, but not necessarily the drugs you think. Occasionally sedatives or tranquilizers may be helpful, but sometimes they just make the child more uncomfortable, plus perhaps drowsy. Drugged into sitting still, if too much is used.

Curiously, the opposite type of drug more often is useful, some of the so-called "pep pills," such as amphetamine, or the coergizers.

For whatever unknown reasons, these drugs help the child mobilize or focus his energies to help him focus his attention on whatever he is doing instead of having his attention bounce from one thing to another.

It isn't a contagious condition. Nobody can "catch it." But controlling the hyperactive child until he has outgrown it means years of careful medication—enough to control it, but not enough to hurt him or let him become dependent on medications.

If you have such a buzzing, attention-switching child, by all means get expert guidance. Specialists in child psychiatry are ideal; counselling through one of the numerous child guidance clinics is an excellent source of help. Many pediatricians are well-skilled in this type of problem.

Proper treatment can spell the difference between a child who grows up into a useful citizen and the child who, because his problem isn't recognized, is pushed aside as a "troublemaker."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking birth control pills. Is it possible to become pregnant during the seven days in between taking the pill?—P.

No.

Opening lead - king of hearts.

It certainly seems reasonable to assume that, when two teams sit down to play for the world championship, the caliber of bridge displayed would be representative of the best.

While it is true that this expectation is generally met, it is also true that there are invariably a few hands to shock the faithful and make them realize that even the expert foul is made of clay.

These rare transgressions are not really surprising when one considers that each participant plays several hundred hands and makes several thousand decisions in the course of a long championship contest. An occasional fall from grace must therefore be accepted as par for the course.

For a good example of how bridge should not be played, consider this deal from the Great Britain-U.S. match in 1955.

The bidding went as shown when a British pair held the North-South cards. Why South jump-shifted in hearts rather than clubs or spades, or whether four notrumps was Blackwood, I don't know, but the fact is that North-South mangled their way into six notrump.

West led the K-A of hearts and Uncle Sam rang up 50 points on the register.

The bidding was equally odd when the U.S. held the North-South hands. South opened the bidding with three notrump and South responded with six notrump. The American pair were using three notrump as a gambling bid that showed a long solid minor suit with not much on the side.

East chose the jack of spades as his opening shot and North made all the tricks for a score of 1,020 points. So, in somewhat less than brilliant fashion, the American team gained 1,070 points.

Jobless Benefits Control to Tighten

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang has hinted the government will introduce legislation to tighten administration of the unemployment insurance program.

Mr. Lang said that while he would not forecast contents of the throne speech in the next session of Parliament it is not hard to pinpoint areas where Liberal supporters were unhappy in the last election.

One of these problems was abuse of the unemployment insurance scheme. "So we as Liberals know we have to put that right so there's not a great mystery about that."

Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey, who said Friday he is leaving the cabinet, has frequently remarked that he regards the unemployment insurance program as "sacred." He has said that as long as he was minister he was dedicated to preserving the p l a n in its present form.

Mr. Lang's comments came on the CTV television network program Question Period which was taped for broadcast Sunday.

A text of the interview was released to the press in advance.

Mr. Lang said that many Liberals were unhappy that persons who were not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits were still managing to get it.

"We believe in unemployment insurance and a good unemployment insurance reform," he said. "If it is handled badly or if it is abused in any way, it is in danger as a scheme and a plan."

Cocaine Is Seized At Niagara

WASHINGTON (AP) — The customs bureau Saturday announced seizure of 32 pounds of cocaine in an automobile which had just been driven across the Rainbow Bridge into Niagara Falls, N.Y., on Friday. The announcement said the drug had a wholesale value of about $250,000.

Vernon Acree, U.S. commissioner of customs, said the confiscation is believed to be the largest made along the border in several years.

He said Luis Hernando Marino, 36, and his wife Marie, 32, both Colombian nationals and resident aliens in New York City, were taken into custody by the U.S. marshal at Buffalo.

A preliminary hearing before U.S. Magistrate Edmund Maxwell was held Friday, Acree said. The couple was remanded to the U.S. marshal in lieu of $10,000 bond each.

Ontario Orders Belleville Hospital to Reduce Its Beds by 52

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

The Ministry of Health has ordered Belleville General Hospital to cut its budget $748,850 before April 1, 1973 by reducing the total number of hospital beds.

Fifty-two beds must be removed from service in the next four months.

The partial shut-down will effect approximately 100 members of the hospital's 1,000-member staff.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, said today he hoped staff cutbacks could be handled through attrition instead of layoffs.

He indicated the hospital board has begun discussions with the ministry over its directive to slash costs.

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter is aiming for a 4.5 beds in 1,000 of population ratio in Ontario hospitals.

Mr. Rickard said "we are under the impression we have less than 4.5 beds per 1,000," adding members of the hospital's administrative staff will be comparing their calculations with those of the ministry.

"Our calculations do not agree," he said.

"The executive director stated $748,850 is three percent of the BGH $9,044,000 operating budget for 1972. The health ministry has imposed a five percent ceiling on hospital budget increases for 1973.

He said it will be up to the board of governors on advice from its medical advisory committee and the hospital administrative council to determine which areas of the hospital will face cutbacks.

As far as effects of the austerity measures are concerned, the executive director said they will lead to a lengthening of waiting lists for those needing admission to hospital.

Mr. Rickard said he is pleased the board has been given a few months' notice to cope with the changes, adding "we sympathize with the ministry's position and will co-operate to the utmost."

Cabinet Contains Eight New Faces

Woman in Cabinet

Newly-appointed Minister of State for Science and Technology, Jeanne Sauve, speaks with Prime Minister Trudeau and new transport minister Jean Marchand during swearing in ceremonies for the new Liberal cabinet in Ottawa Monday. OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau stayed with a hard core of cabinet ministers Monday but added eight new faces in shaping a team to face a tough minority-government battle when Parliament resumes Jan. 4.

The cabinet included the first woman since Judy LaMarsh bowed out in 1968. In an apparent shifting of emphasis, Quebec-based ministers were taken from political hot spots with responsibility for regional economic grants, the bilingualism program, the RCMP and prison paroles.

But, reacting to the Oct. 30 election that cut the Liberals from 147 Commons seats to 109 against 107 progressive Conservatives, Mr. Trudeau substantially retained and strengthened his ministry from English Canada to bear on economic problems both domestic and foreign. New Democrats hold 31 seats, Social Credit 15 and Independents two.

He named Alastair Gillespie, former Toronto businessman, to take over the vital department of industry, trade and commerce from the defeated Jean-Luc Pepin of Quebec.

That was the major portfolio increasing expertise to maintain the economy's forward advance. The task involves hard negotiations with the U.S.

Mr. Gillespie, who joined the cabinet in February, 1971, to form the new portfolio of science, handed over Monday to Jeanne Sauve, a well-known Quebec writer and broadcaster whose husband, Maurice, was former minister under Lester Pearson in the mid-1960s. She is a newcomer.

These were the key members retained:

—John Turner, finance minister since the Liberal cabinet shuffle Jan. 28 and rewarded by some as heir apparent to Mr. Trudeau.

—Mitchell Sharp, external affairs minister and former finance and trade minister.

—Allan MacEachen, privy council president and acting House leader, reassured from the Pearson days in minority government.

—Donald Macdonald, minister of energy, mines and resources, with knowledge of energy matters vital to forthcoming and long-stalled trade negotiations with the United States.

—Charles M. Drury, treasury board president with broad knowledge of over-all spending and of bargaining with government unions.

—Otto Lang, justice minister, also responsible for grain exports and still the key Prairie government spokesman.

Mrs. Sauve is one of four Montreal MPs newly-appointed. The others:

—Warren Allmand, 40 solicitor-general, succeeding Mr. Goyer;

—Andre Ouellet, 33, postmaster-general, succeeding Jean-Pierre Cote, now a senator;

—Marc Lalonde, 43, health and welfare, succeeding John Munro, now labor minister.

Mr. Lalonde earned a reputation as the grey eminence behind the prime minister, when he was Mr. Trudeau's chief aide before his successful electoral win.

The remaining new faces are:

—Hugh Faulkner, 29, parliamentary secretary of state, succeeding Mr. Pelletier.

—Dan MacDonald, veterans affairs, succeeding Arthur Laing, now a senator;

—Stanley Haidasz, minister of state responsible for multi-culturalism.

—Eugene Whelan, agriculture, succeeding H. A. Olson, defeated-Alberta MP;

Paper Says Peron Got Nazi Loot

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express reported today that Martin Bormann found refuge in Argentina in 1948 by paying $200 million to then dictator Juan Peron. But a spokesman for Peron said earlier that Argentina's former ruler knew nothing about Hitler's wartime deputy.

The Express reported:

Bormann, realizing the war eventually would be lost, secretly arranged for German ships and a submarine to deliver a huge treasure to Argentina in the final stages of the war in Europe.

The treasure-currency, jewels, platinum, art works and gold that was mostly taken from the teeth of Nazi concentration camp victims—was deposited in four Argentine banks under thatname of Eva Duarte Ibarguren, Peron's mistress who became his wife in 1945.

Mrs. Peron made a trip to Europe in 1947, met Bormann in Rome and helped arrange his flight to Argentina.

By the end of 1948, Peron surrendered one-fourth of the treasure to Bormann, retaining nearly $200 million for himself and his wife.

O'Connell PM's Aide

OTTAWA (CP) — Former labor minister Martin O'Connell, beaten in the Oct. 30 election, will join Prime Minister Trudeau's personal staff, Mr. Trudeau told reporters Monday. He will announce new appointments to his staff in a few days, and "I guess it's fair to say Mr. O'Connell will play some role in connection with me."

Nixon to Visit Mideast

BEIRUT (AP) — President Nixon will visit Egypt and Israel next spring, the Beirut newspaper An Nahar reported today from Washington. The paper said that Nixon, in making the trip, hopes to enter history as a man of peace in the Middle East as well as Vietnam." It added that he could also be motivated by an increasing U.S. need for Arab oil.

Rocket Kills Policeman

BELFAST (Reuter) — A policeman who killed today when raiders in the Irish Republic launched a rocket and gun attack on a police station just inside the Northern Ireland border. Police said a rocket fired from across the border crashed through a steel shutter on the first floor of the station in the town of Belleek and exploded on a stairway, fatally injuring a policeman.

Nixon Commences To Change Cabinet

The president disclosed Monday that Laird was leaving the government rather than take another post after serving four years in the Pentagon while Romney made his own announcement that he is resigning from the cabinet.

Nixon indicated in a talk with reporters that several changes are being made and that heads are going to roll in a massive shake-up of the government before he takes the oath of office for a second term on Jan. 20.

He singled out the White House staff itself as the chief victim of his purge, saying it had grown like Topsy and that most of the personnel outs he planned would be made there.

Nixon gave a close glimpse of his thinking about the circumstances under which he would best—on a mountain top, far away from the formality of the White House.

IRA Chief Treated by Army Doctors

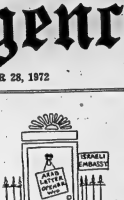
DUBLIN (CP) — The fate of, the ailing guerrilla leader Sean MacStiofain was in the hands of military doctors at an Irish army camp today.

The 44-year-old MacStiofain, now in the 10th day of a hunger and thirst strike, was ferried by helicopter Monday from Dublin's Mater Hospital to The Curragh, the army camp and detention centre about 20 miles away.

Irish Justice Minister Desmond O'Malley said the surprise move was made to safeguard the staff and patients of Mater Hospital, where a gang of gunmen failed in a daring bid Sunday to free the repeated leader of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army.

On the question of possible force feeding of MacStiofain, O'Malley said medical treatment of a prisoner "is a matter for determination by members of the medical profession."

His statement said: The transfer of Mr. MacStiofain to military custody did not imply any change in that position."



MacStiofain was sentenced by a special Dublin court Saturday to six months' imprisonment for belonging to the outlawed IRA. He was reported by hospital officials to be in "quite good" condition after nine days of total fast.

But the Roman Catholic archbishop of Dublin reported his condition was deteriorating rapidly.

Archbishop Dermot Ryan visited MacStiofain in hospital Monday at the latter's request.

MacStiofain announced after his arrest to go without food and water until he was freed or died.

Although the IRA is banned in Northern Ireland as well that British province with the Irish republic, the guerrilla army also is outlawed in the republic. The Dublin government is stepping up action against its members and has jailed more than 100 this year.

Trudeau To Confer With Health

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau plans to meet British Prime Minister Edward Heath here within the next few days for a wide-ranging discussion of Anglo-Canadian relations, British sources said today.

It will be Trudeau's first official visit to Britain since Heath was elected in 1970 although the British leader has been in Ottawa twice.

The meeting will likely touch on the controversial issue of regulations governing white Commonwealth migration here after Britain's entry into the European Common Market Jan. 1.

The Heath government was defeated in a parliamentary vote last week on its proposals for tightening up rules on Commonwealth immigration.

Trudeau last visited Britain officially in 1969 to attend a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

Stanfield's View Embarrassing Ministers Are Shifted

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet changes were aimed at removing ministers who were causing the government embarrassment, Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Monday.

"Obviously, ministers who were causing the government embarrassment were stripped of their portfolios," Mr. Stanfield told a news conference.

The Conservative leader named Jean-Pierre Goyer, switched to minister of supply and services from solicitor-general, and Gerard Pelletier, to communications minister from secretary of state, as two such ministers.

Mr. Stanfield said Bryce Mackasey, who resigned as manpower minister Friday, has been switched off all together."

The Tory leader, in Montreal to confer with party organizers, said the new cabinet was "less representative than the government was before the election."

"There's nobody, for example, from Alberta, and very little representation outside Ontario and Quebec.

"I have to say that as leader of the Opposition, the new government doesn't frighten me," he added. "We'll have to see what kind of program they produce."

Cheese and fresh curd will go on sale Wednesday at the show, following completion of judging.

Council OKs Fence, Lights

City council has agreed with a parks board recommendation that the Jones Creek ditch north of Tracey Street should be forced but it feels the developer of a newly row housing complex should make a financial contribution.

Council yesterday moved that a six-foot wire mesh fence be erected along the west side of the ditch as a safety precaution for children living in the housing complex.

But the motion directed that the matter of costs be negotiated with the developer.

Council also went along with the traffic committee recommendation calling for the installation of traffic lights at the corner of Foster Ave. when Dundas Street East is reconstructed next year.

Driver Unhurt

TWEED (Special) — A Marlbank man was uninjured when his car left the road and struck a rock on the Marlbank Road, 11 miles east of Highway 37 at 4.45 p.m. Sunday.

Manpower Promotes Yule Jobs

The Belleville - area employment scene shows few fluctuations as Christmas nears.

But Canada Manpower officials are concentrating efforts to boost part-time Christmas job opportunities. Belleville and District Employment Committee was told Thursday.

H. W. Karn, manager of the Belleville Manpower Centre said his staff now is developing much time in reminding consumer industry employers it has personnel available to help meet the stepped - up pressure of Christmas sales demand.

Meantime, the job scene remains stable with no strikes, large cutbacks or expansions in local industry.

Employment statistics issued earlier this month showed 1,432 persons listed for work with the centre, compared to 1,062 in October and 1,509 for October, 1971.

The Canada Manpower Belleville area includes the city, Hastings County and Ameliasburgh township.

Delegation to Inspect Plans

Residents of the Elizabeth Crescent area in East Belleville will be given another opportunity to learn the details of a new housing subdivision planned by Maurice H. Rollins for currently vacant land in their area.

Following strong objection by a two - member team, Mrs. Vera Heimbach and William Hockley, city council yesterday tabled a rezoning bylaw which would have allowed construction of 81 townhouse condominium housing units in the area east of Elizabeth Crescent.

"The two objectors claimed city council was ignoring residents' wishes in pushing through the bylaw.

On recommendation of Aldermen Stanley Allen, council voted to table the bylaw to allow the advisory planning committee to call another meeting with area residents to allow them to see drawings and site plans which were available for the first time yesterday.

The delay, she felt certain, would serve to create a better feeling between the parties involved.

Mrs. Heimbach listed a number of specific objections and areas of concern on the part of area residents concerning the proposed housing subdivision.

She claimed the proposed townhouses would lower property values, that insufficient park space was being provided, that sewer capacity was insufficient; that residents would be unable to handle the additional traffic and that increased noise would be made for school requirements arising from the higher density housing area.

Mrs. Heimbach accused city council of refusing to listen to their complaints and the planning board of refusing vital information regarding the proposed subdivision.

Mr. Hockley, who said he was acting as spokesman for an East Belleville task force on planning, said city council was uttering a steady stream of platitudes centred on "people participation" in civic affairs.

However, he said, many citizens were finding out that people participation, deputations or plain old fashioned complaining, just weren't welcomed but only tolerated as a necessary nuisance.

He said council records appeared to indicate that the people lose out every time.

"The case in point is no different — the wishes of the people have been ignored," he maintained.

Mr. Hockley said council has bent over backward to accommodate the wishes of the developers, an example of which could be seen at Prince of Wales Drive and College Street where houses have been crammed into a corner space with the back of the house facing the sidewalk and living rooms located out into each other across a rectangular area that looks more like a prison exercise yard than the result of carefully conceived planning.

Mr. Hockley said his group was not against developers as such, agreeing that they have an important role to play.

But the feeling was they have to be firmly controlled in that they should not be allowed to abuse the feelings of the people by building structures in established areas that do not have the approval of people already living there.

After their presentations, Mrs. Heimbach and Mr. Hockley left the council chambers and declined to wait for Mr. Rollins to show his development plans.

On the other hand, Alderman E. A. Orr, chairman of the city planning advisory board maintained citizens of the Elizabeth Crescent area had been given every consideration before the proposed zoning change had been recommended.

Relating claims by Mrs. Heimbach Ald. Orr said a new school for the area was planned by the board of education which had no objection to the zoning change.

To fears of future traffic congestion, Ald. Orr said the street traffic pattern had been amended and traffic officials now had no objection.

A park area of 3½ acres was being planned in the area, and the developer had agreed that single family residences would be constructed as a buffer zone between residences on Elizabeth Crescent and the townhouses.

The single family residences to be built would be in the $30,000 to $40,000 range.

The developer said he wanted council to understand the land was given only cursory consideration.

However, he charged some people had chosen to ignore the facts and make the matter an election issue.

"Even if I lose votes, I stand behind the committee recommendation (for a zoning change)," he said.

Mayor J. Russell Scott agreed there had been a lot of misconceptions regarding the proposed zoning change.

An example of this was the claim that the new development would mean an additional 1,000 families in the area when in actual fact plans called for but 122 families.

"It is more than just an inaccuracy," he said.

He noted that it was difficult for council to go against the recommendation of expert staff members.

Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the parks board, said the claim that the parks board had compromised with the developer regarding park area was a "very unfair statement".

He said the parks board had obtained the required five per cent park area from the developer as well as cash to assist in purchasing additional park land.

"If anyone compromised, it was the developer," the alderman asserted.

The motion to table the bylaw until after another meeting with area residents was held, was passed unanimously.

The meeting will be called as soon as possible, but this will not be before the civic election.

Counsellors Meet Here

Loyalist College last week played host to delegates from six community colleges who met to discuss their mental retardation counsellor programs.

Loyalist is one of the six colleges across Ontario to offer the two-year course, and it is expected the training model devised by the college and Prince Edward Heights will be adopted across the province.

Delegates were also present from the institutions for the retarded co-operating with the colleges in offering the program.

An official of the Ministry of Colleges and Universities earlier met with representatives of students enrolled in the course at the six colleges to bring their opinions to the seminar.

Sentence Suspended

A Quebec man found Sept. 26 in a stolen car on Highway 401 was awarded a suspended sentence and two years probation in Provincial Court Monday.

Peter Girard, counsel for Gerald Grenier, 19, of Sherbrooke, told Judge John L. Clendeming that Grenier was hitchhiking when he came across the car, a 1972 Austin Mini, on the shoulder of Highway 401. It had been left outside a Brockville hotel the previous evening by its Waterloo owner.

Girard said Grenier found keys in the ignition and set out in a westerly direction, picking up another hitchhiker before pulling off the road near Belleville for a rest. A Provincial Police officer who spotted the parked car recognized it was stolen and arrested Grenier.

Under terms of the probation order, Grenier must keep the peace and be of good behavior. He also received a $50 fine for possession of a small quantity of hashish.

Prepping for the Parade

With Saturday's Santa Claus Parade drawing closer and closer, students at Queen Alexandra Public School are hard at work preparing school float. Resembling a giant Christmas card, the float is being built under supervision of special arts councillor Mrs. Florence Watson. Santa Set for Saturday

This year's Belleville Santa Claus Parade will have more community participation than ever before.

For a variety of reasons, more schools are participating in the parade than ever before in the history of the Yuletide pageant.

Frank Foley, past chairman of the Santa Claus Parade Committee, said at Monday night's meeting, "this is really what the parade should be all about. The older children giving something to the younger ones."

The meeting was the last before the parade, Saturday, Dec. 2, at 10 a.m.

The committee this year launched an energetic drive to include as many young people in the parade as possible. A focal point of youth participation will be four floats from area high schools competing for Miss Santa Claus Parade.

Each school will be judged on its carpentry and the young lady who rides the float. A prize will be awarded to the winning school's student council.

In all, 12 schools will be in the parade, 45 floats, 14 bands, majorette groups, antique cars, horses, more than 150 clowns, funny bicycle riders and, naturally, Santa.

"Some of the floats may not be as elaborate as in past Christmas extravaganzas but will represent the efforts of the community," said Mr. Foley.

The efforts started Monday night as Ben Bleecker auditorium filled with the soun of the saw and the hammer when construction crews began decorating some of the parade's major floats.

Farm wagons were quickly being transformed from carriers of hay to winter wonderland spectacles, weighted with paper mache horses, cartoon characters, gingerbread houses and giant sleighs.

Crews will work each evening until Saturday morning when their efforts will be placed in line to form a parade expected to begin at 10 a.m. and last two hours as it winds down Front Street, through downtown Belleville and back up Pinnacle Street.

Community involvement is the selling point of the parade and 150 young and not so young people are invited to be part of the parade by donning a costume.

Clown suits are being dispensed at the police station Friday afternoon to anyone with the Christmas spirit.

As the returns came in for the parade, all looked well at the meeting. Plans are going smoothly and finances are going a lot better after a cheque was delivered on behalf of the Belleville Yardmen.

All the headaches of a month ago are beginning to subside, with plans falling neatly into place for Santa's debut in Belleville.

The proof of the labor will be Saturday morning for the 30-member parade committee, who will not meet again until the following Wednesday to present the 12 trophies offered in parade competition.

Rapid Transit

When Premier Davis called a halt to the Spadina expressway project in Toronto a year or two ago he said it was a decision in favor of people over the automobile and announced that the Government was considering rapid transit systems to fill the void.

Now Premier Davis has unveiled plans for such a system — initially for Toronto as well as Ottawa and Hamilton — together with more than a billion dollars in subsidies for municipal transit systems generally.

Gasoline doubleless will be be able to take advantage of such subsidies, along with other municipalities — as one utilities manager put it, to retire old buses and replace them with new equipment.

It was inevitable that at some point someone would have to cry "halt" to the continuing rape of the countryside and cities by concrete superhighways and place more emphasis on the concept which Premier Davis has announced.

Europe is ahead in this regard, although Canadian Transit Association president James Kearns may be forgiven when he says that Ontario is leading the way in revitalising thinking regarding urban transportation. Leading in Canada, that is, and it may be noted that one of the transit vehicles being considered for use here is of German manufacture and runs on a magnetic field.

It will be recalled that this newspaper ran an article some months ago from The South African Financial Gazette dealing with this very subject. It described experiments under way in Freiburg, Germany with vehicles of this type.

Another vehicle under consideration here is a medium capacity train, running on an overhead rail supported by concrete pillars, which is vibration-free and non-polluting. Whether it also is of European origin or not is not made clear, but that is really beside the point. We can only look with approval on any system of rapid transit that takes the strain off highways and cities and cuts down on auto use and consequently pollution from exhaust fumes.

It is a system that will help push this province further into the forefront of the technological age as far as transportation is concerned

Cost Squeeze

While rapid transit plans receive a financial boost in Ontario, the Government is putting a squeeze on hospital operating budgets (they are being limited to a maximum increase of five per cent in the coming fiscal year) and on grants for new university and college construction.

This move is a reflection of rising costs in both these fields, of inflationary trends generally and — important as health care and education are — a need to arbitrarily limit spending on both.

Difficult as it may be too, the public is going to have to try and school itself into not running to the doctor for every ailment, or treat or think it is going. While no sick person should be denied treatment, those people who seem to deliberately encourage illness, by excess of one kind or another are to whom Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter referred recently, may now come to realize that moderation is a better course. They may come to realize that drugs, alcohol, over-eating and the sedentary life are all bad news and that fitness is something that may be achieved by personal discipline.

Aside from this personal responsibility facing the people of Ontario, Dr. Potter says there will be "a new emphasis on such things as extended care service, home care, the inclusion of nursing homes in the insurance package, step-by-step providing more chronic care beds and, in an innovative field, such facilities as self-care units.

How far these, taken together, will go toward easing the strain on hospitals and providing a more efficient and economic health service remains to be seen. As Dr. Potter acknowledged recently, self-care units such as the Queen's, had not yet made any appreciable dent in health costs. All require staff, as each and every new service that is established — even with an eye to economy — do.

At least we have a start being made toward greater economy, allied, hopefully, with efficiency. We don't want to see any slackening in essential care, or anybody being neglected who is in vital need of medical attention, for whatever reason, but if this can be achieved within the bounds of these new concepts, so much the better for health care in Ontario.

Budget Up Again-and Separatist Elements Remain

CYC-Cut Down to Size-Has Talent for Survival

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If there is one federal agency that is blithely unconcerned about which party prevails in this new Parliament of minorities, it has to be the Company of Young Canadians.

It believes it can live — and what is more, prosper — under any government, Liberal, Conservative, or even some sort of Grit-NDP informal, if operative, working understanding.

And it may be right, for if the Company of Young Canadians is skilled at anything it is in the art of political survival.

Not long before the election was called, the Company's executive director, Peter Brodhead, at a press conference announced the CYC would be "alright Jack" since all it was trying to do since its controversial creation in the 1960s was to "change communities".

And all parties, reported Mr. Brodhead confidently, were in favor of community change.

Apparently he forgets easily. Because it was precisely for its "community changing" activities, some of them verging on violence, that the Company was cut back to size — half size financially.

It was the creation, you will remember, of former Liberal Prime Minister Lester Pearson, who commissioned it as a kind of junior Canadian domestic peace corps.

He gave it $3 million and assigned it to go out across the land and work for peaceful social change.

It latched quickly onto the social change part of it, but somehow did not seem to have heard the Prime Minister's admonition to keep it peaceful.

The Company, an embarrassment to the government from the start, was invited, as an unwelcome trouble-maker, to depart several communities in haste where it had been busy with its usually controversial and not always peaceful process of changing social patterns.

Then there was the awkward question of salaries and expenses using up so much of the $3 million there was little left for much do-gooding.

Finally, Lucien Saulnier, executive director of Montreal's governing executive committee, cial trip to Ottawa with aides, witnesses and baskets of evidence to charge before a parliamentary committee that the Company was involved with the terrorists Quebec Liberation Front.

The Company's apologists said well, shucks, only a few revolutionary hot-heads were involved, and anyway, boys will be boys, won't they?

Parliament did not think so, was not taking any chances, cut back the Company's budget to $1,500,000 and the CYC was reorganized, given a new director and executive.

Since then the Company has been keeping a low public profile.

But politically the CYC must have friends in high places.

For despite its confirmed involvement with the terrorist FLQ, it somehow went clear of State Secretary Gerard Pelletier into bumping up its budget this year by $78,000.

It was not much in comparison to the $1,500,000 budget, but it was a sure sign that the Company, separatist involvement or not, was emerging from the government's dog house.

At least that must be the way Peter Brodhead reads that $78,000 signal.

Vastly encouraged, he has announced the Company in the government's new fiscal year—starting next April 1 — is going for a 50 percent increase in its budget.

That would get it roughly another million for a total take of $3 million.

Sure, announced Mr. Brodhead affably at a press conference when he set up the new $3 million target, he would not deny, even now, that there are separatists in the Company.

Working in Quebec, too.

But what the heck, the Company is not worried—and trusts the government is not worried because, as Mr. Brodhead explained, those Young Canadian separatists would be "working openly on community projects in Quebec" and would not be involved in anything "political".

Presumably one of the "social changes" which the Company has wrought, at least in its own eyes, is to transform separatism from a form of violent revolutionary politics into some sort of watered-down community reform cult, perhaps a socio-activist or welfare sort, or maybe even a new kind of political theatre.

Domestic Scene Has Priority in Nixon Reshuffle

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Up in his mountaintop Camp David retreat in nearby Maryland, President Nixon is working on a plan for reorganizing his administration.

Here in the capital and elsewhere, thousands of high-level bureaucrats and even cabinet members are nervously awaiting word from the master.

In his first official act after his landslide re-election victory Nov. 7, Nixon called for letters of resignation from all the more than 2,000 persons he appointed during his first four-year term.

Now he's deciding which ones to accept, how he will shuffle his cabinet and how to cut fat out of the overweight bureaucracy he created. His White House staff alone is said to number about 60 more than the 500 positions approved by Congress for fiscal 1972.

This city is full of rumor and speculation but the only point on which all seem to agree is that the new lineup will reflect a greater Nixon concern for domestic affairs.

The president's first love has always been foreign policy, as demonstrated by his first-term visits to Peking and Moscow and his negotiations, through adviser Henry Kissinger, toward a Vietnam peace.

It is unrealistic, some observers suggest, to expect that he will shift his personal priorities in the second term from foreign to domestic policy entirely, but he certainly will seek to improve the performance of the domestic departments and agencies.

In this way he may find the Democratic-controlled Congress more difficult to deal with than the United States' adversaries abroad. While Congress has tended to applaud his initiatives in foreign affairs, it generally has been hostile toward his traditionally conservative approach to domestic and social policies.

What Nixon would like to do, observers suggest, is cut the number of domestic departments and give a handful of top White House aides a greater grip on policy-making.

In this context there is the suggestion that Nixon might also appoint a sort of czar of domestic affairs, someone with the same talent and competence in home affairs as Kissinger has demonstrated in foreign affairs. John Connally, free-wheeling former treasury secretary from Texas, heads a short list of possible candidates for the role should Nixon decide in favor of it.

Although Nixon has authority to make certain changes by executive order, any major change would require congressional approval. Many in Congress who argue that Nixon has already taken too much power into himself are bound to fight such a scheme.

Unlike the Canadian system, where members of Parliament are traditionally named to cabinet posts, the U.S. President draws his cabinet from outside government, enlisting professors, economists, businessmen and other specialists for cabinet duty.

Congress has tended to reject a whole range of Nixon domestic policies on grounds they are too meagre to meet the welfare, educational and social needs of the country. Nixon, in turn, has fought — and occasionally vetoed — congressional ideas on the grounds they are too open-fisted and that the budget cannot stand the burden.

Although Nixon got a massive personal mandate in the election, widespread vote-splitting contained the Democratic majority of Congress, even increasing it in the Senate.

Many Democrats interpreted the result as a mandate for Congress to keep up its watchdog surveillance of Nixon administration policies, a role many congressmen thoroughly enjoy.

Now the battle will be joined when the new Congress and the new cabinet are introduced early next year.

British troops occupied Mandalay 87 years ago today—in 1885—and deposed King Thibaw, last monarch of Burma. Mandalay had been built as the Burmese capital only 28 years before. After the British had twice occupied Rangoon in wars to protect trade developments, Thibaw had refused to accept the British ambassador and instead invited the French to build a railway from Mandalay to the Indian frontier. Sixty years later, Burma became the first former colony to leave the Commonwealth.

Mayor Scott and His Critics

The Intelligencer.

After reading William Hockley's letters in this paper, it makes one wonder what he does for this city, other than stir the people, up and make bad paper.

Maybe he should have passed the Nazi party in the 2nd World War and run in competition with Lord Haw Haw on the BBC.

If I was deeply vexed as Mr. Hockley on Thursday's rabble line program with Mayor Scott. What business is it of anyone what the Mayor owns or his family. At least he is looking after his family, which is more than I can say for a lot of parents in this city.

So what if the Scott family does own a piece of land. Who are we to criticise what anyone owns. I am sure he has worked very hard to reach his present position — what do you do Mr. Hockley?

As far as I, and many citizens of Belleville, are concerned Mayor Scott has done wonders for Belleville, what with industry he has brought to Belleville — which I must state is not poor paying as Mr. Hockley thinks — the parkland which is a credit to the city; the many improvements on the arterial leading into the city; the improvements with sewers, and many other things which I could not have space to write about. After all Mayor Scott is not a magician, and things take time to improve.

Mayor Scott has always been a devoted man I feel. He was a medical officer serving his country and fellow man, in the 2nd World War. He now is a medical doctor serving his fellow man in civilian life. He is also our Mayor serving us in this city.

So what more could we ask for? Not once has the Mayor used "dirty politics" in his campaigning, like the Provincial government has and others.

Incidentally, I am not being paid by our Mayor or anyone, in writing this letter as many people think.

We do need some new councillors, that is for sure. Maybe some of the young people running will help, but we need an old dog to lead them.

I will not say to vote one way or the other — but think before you vote.

Pollution Probe's Plan

Pollution Probe Oakville has asked for and obtained a resolution from the Oakville Town Council requesting that the Province of Ontario ban the sale of disposable soft drink containers. This resolution will be sent to all Ontario municipalities in towns of population over 100,000 for their endorsement before going to Queen's Park.

We had hoped that it would be sent to all municipalities but, our council limited it to those of population over 100,000 because of a heavy work-load and expense.

However, if you and the citizens of your town feel you could persuade your own council to send a similar resolution to the Provincial Government, it would reinforce our effort and increase the likelihood of a ban on soft drink containers actually being imposed.

We hope that any interested people will make their views known to their council or to our group.

A moderate increase in the price of anthracite coal will go into effect in the city on Monday. The increase, which will be carried by all dealers in Dominion-wide agreement, some cities and towns have already boosted their anthracite prices. The jump in price, according to the announcement, is due to the increase in miners' wages which came into effect a short time ago.

The 42nd annual meeting of the Wharf Street Debating Club drew a quiet and orderly capacity audience, possibly because of the comparatively few aspirants to civic government this year. Missing were those barbed quips which hitherto made these gatherings a riot of fun and frolic.

Bible Digest

By H. B. DEAN

"For it is written, as I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God." Romans 14:11, 12.

Judgment will be a time of reporting, reaping and remembering. Let us so live that when our last report is filed, He will say — "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of the Lord." We can be certain today, by putting our trust in Christ, that the Father believes on the son hath life — and shall not come unto condemnation."

No Holds Barred at Wharf St.

'Civic election campaigning enters its peak phase this week.

In Belleville the home stretch includes the unavoidable hurdle known as the Wharf St. Debating Club.

The style with which aspiring city hall office holders take it in stride may or may not have an impact on their election chances.

But none will ignore it.

The little clubhouse on South Front St. can jam in only a handful of the total electorate.

Yet its significance is not measured by physicial proportion but by tradition. .

It's an institution in local government affairs — and one probably unique in Canadian politics on any level.

It's the only known public assembly where a voter can tell a politician precisely what he thinks — or would like to think— in words of his own choice, however choice and blunt they may be. And it's a measure of a politician's mettle how well he takes, and returns, the verbal volleys.

The result, for more than a half - century, is a basic outing in participatory democracy that long predates discovery of that phrase.

Not even the presence of modern television sound cameras at the last election meet in 1969, intimidated the debate — an event that has been staged so long most can not clearly recall its beginnings.

This week's assembly of the all-male rally is billed as the 63rd. But exactly when the tradition began is uncertain.

The passing of senior club members in recent times has broken a personal link — and precise recollection — of its earliest years.

One source places the first debate about 1910.

Club trustees George Seames and Alderman Arthur Keegan say the event has its roots in a regular gathering of local waterfront residents in a nearby boathouse known as The Chinaman's Camp. This expanded into a regular club with its small own quarters. This became known as the Wharf Street Debating Club.

Grant Given For Dam

The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has approved a grant of $4,500 to the Moira River Conservation Authority to purchase lands for its proposed ice control dam in Belleville.

Announcement of the grant was made today by Hon. Leo Bernier and Hon. Richard T. Potter, MPP for Quinte riding.

Authorities official said today the provincial granted represented 50 per cent of the cost of a vacant lot on Station Street, part of which will be necessary for the dam project.

The property has a frontage of about 44 feet on Station St. and will provide access to the river. Parts of several river lots will be necessary for the project when it gets underway but the decision was to purchase the vacant lot because it was now available.

The annual appearance of city election candidates there had become so popular within years that the premises were rebuilt to the present dimensions in 1921.

This year there also have been some improvements.

The clubhouse has been repainted inside and out. The bulky stove that over-heated the assembly for years has been succeeded by a gas heater.

It's a modern installation looked down upon by portrait prints of public personalities whose bygone popularity recalls the club's lengthy existence — Queen Victoria, King George V, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Belleviliian who briefly became Prime Minister after John A. Macdonald's death.

Despite its raucous electiontime reputation, the club also has been involved in more serious social ventures during its long years.

Mr. Seames recalls regular euchre games being organized there during the 1930s Depression with groceries as prizes.

But its lively ongoing role in civic elections remains its prime function. Not even the appearance of women candidates has altered its attitudes. The club solved that problem when women first began running in the mid 1950s. Common practice now is to permit them first speaking slots on the night's program—after which they depart and the men settle expectantly down to business in the years-old style.

It's a tradition that will be renewed again this Wednesday as city hall candidates troop before the vociferous assembly jammed into the little meeting hall.

"It's exercising your rights as a citizen," says club treasurer Jim Matthews.

"It's a real exercise in democracy," echoes acting president Jim Zakos.

A Hanging at the Club

King George V portrait is hung in place in newly-decorated Wharf Street Debating Club by acting president Jim Zakos (left) and trustee George Seames. as premises are readied for Wednesday night's meeting with civic election candidates. The club was a going concern when the king began his reign before World War 1.

Christmas Ideas Given

By DORIS CLARE

As you read this we will be in the middle of the count down — just 25 shopping days until Christmas — or 23 — or 22 or whatever it is, because people are always looking for ideas I have done a little thinking for you.

On one sheet which I call "Suggestions For Santa" there is a list of ideas about gifts for children and young people. On another are several "Christmas Games", because even in happy family gatherings the right kind of a game is a help in getting everyone loosened up and enjoying themselves

On another sheet I have "Three Christmas Candies You Can Make", and on a fourth "Instructions For Making Christmas Fireplace Logs."

If any of you want any of them, get your letter off quickly, in care of this newspaper; enclosing 20 cents for each leaflet you want, and a large eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: Since before our eldest daughter was born, I've been sorry I married this man. But since I was brought up in a traditional type home, divorce is out and I sit home nights wishing I had a home I would sing and it would be the place to say there had been an accident and my husband was dead.

About a year ago I was feeling down in the dumps and a friend, a bachelor, offered to listen to my troubles. Although I have talked to this man a few times and it has cleared the immediate problems, the underlying one is still there and because things are so congenial between us I

Jiffy Afghan

Cloud-soft warmth is just what you want on those chilly, damp nights. Use scraps or 3 colors to crochet strips in gaily checked afghan. Pattern 7448: easy directions.

Seventy - five cents for each pattern — cash, cheque or money order. Add 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing and special handling — to Alice Brooks, care of The Intelligencer, Needlecraft Dept., 60 Front Street West, Toronto 1, Ontario. Ontario residents add 5c sales tax. Print plainly Pattern Number, Name, Address.

with him, although I'm sure that he has never given me a second thought.

If my husband knew how I feel about him he'd only be happier because he seems to delight in other people's troubles. He's always looking to get even with someone, which usually keeps me so hot water too and I dread such times as it is me who will be home to take the phone calls after he has had his revenge. — Sorry

Dear Sorry: The other man should not carry your feelings; you find him kind, but leave it at that. If he lets you blow off steam, good for him. But if there is any more than that, the first move must be his.

Before you declare that love is dead, have a try for a talk with your husband. He may be surprised, even stunned, that you feel so bitter; since obviously you have never given him the impact of your resentment. People have been known to change, to grow, to even appreciate each other; and we are groping up all our lives.

Present statistics indicate that about one-third of marriages end in divorce. Whether you want to add yours to the number is up to you. And tradition be hanged, if you finally decide Life with Father is no go.

To Ironstone Dishes: I'd love to help you find your replacements, made by Alfred Meakin, England, in 1930 with nasturtiums and leaves of orange and green; with white background, little blue dots, and eight-sided shape! But I cannot do more than just this much, or we would be crowding out our human relations chats and dilemmas. Try what the antique dealers and flea markets can do.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Following the gift presentation, Mr. and Mrs. Hough thanked everyone and lunch was served.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Should a couple play chess?

YES; but not against each other unless a husband and wife can play chess for the simple enjoyment of playing the game. Once the element of one player beating the other enters the game, the married couple are playing with fire. Chess is not only extremely absorbing it also seems to create a rivalry between players that is completely opposed to the sense of "togetherness" that is the heart of every successful marriage.

Are dreams unfulfilled wishes?

SOMETIMES they are, but the meanings behind dreams can be as countless and varied as the dreams themselves. When they are wishes, though, dreams generally cannot be given simple interpretations. In many cases, the dreamer may be dreaming of a suppressed wish for something so "way out" that he disguises it from himself in a dream so puzzling that even an expert couldn't trace the wish the dream is masking.

Will kids ever have heroes again?

THEY have them now. Children need to have models to try to emulate. Some of the heroes many kids look up to hardly meet the approval of parents; yet that might be precisely why a youngster idolizes such unheroic heroes. A child, perhaps sensing that he could never live up to the ideals his parents have set for him, will adopt as a hero someone entirely different from the person his mother and father want him to be.

Its new program will concentrate on a large-scale distribution plan directed at the ethnic population in Canada.

Ann Landers

'Unhooked' Feels Better

Dear Ann Landers: Am I particular girl who just completed high school. My parents have smoked a pack-and-a-half of cigarets each, every day for the last 20 years. I smoked a pack a day for two years. Until a few weeks ago I kept saying myself that tired old expression "someday I'll say 'this is it' and quit cold."

Then I decided to put the facts down on paper to see what they look like. Here they are: A person who smokes a pack a day for 10 years has smoked 73,000 cigarets. If you've smoked a pack a day for 20 years, you've smoked 146,000. If you smoke "only" a half a pack a day, that's 3,650 cigarets a year. If you keep it up for 20 years, that adds up to 73,000 cigarets.

The cigarets I used to smoke cost 55 cents a pack. That was $3.85 a week. One year amounts to $200.75. Ten years comes to $2,007.50. For 20 years it's a whopping $4,015.00. My mom and dad combined have burned up $12,045, not to mention the holes in their clothes and the rugs and furniture. Heaven knows what they've done to their lungs.

I haven't smoked for three weeks and it's fantastic how much better I feel. I've stopped coughing and I smell much better. But most important—I don't feel weak and helpless anymore. I don't know why in the world it took me so long to get hooked. Spread the word, Ann.—Unhooked

Dear Un: I've been spreading it. And I've been doing something else. I've stopped inhaling silently, while inconsiderate people around me pollute the air. I now ask them to please move the cigaret so the smoke doesn't get in my lungs. When they offer to put it out, I say, "Fine—do us both a favor."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 42 and I have been happily married for 20 years. Her teeth have always been crooked but she never said she was bothered by this. I was surprised when she started talking a few days ago about having her teeth straightened.

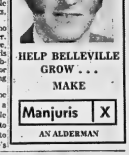
Does it make sense for a woman of 45? It seems to me that if she has gone all these years with crooked teeth, she should forget about having them straightened at this late date. Not only is it expensive, but a nuisance. Also, how would it look for a grown woman to wear braces on her teeth? Your views might help her decide. Thanks.—Stumped

Dear Stumped: There is nothing wrong with braces on an adult's teeth if they will help her live a happier, healthier life. Your wife should consult an orthodontist for an expert opinion. As long as she understands the time, trouble and expense involved, as well as the potential benefits, you should support her decision.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell your readers that fat people are human. We have feelings. We believe it or not.

I'm a college student who worked at a resort this summer. About 10 girls worked there, alongside me. One of the girls was about my size. We look absolutely nothing alike except for height and build and the long hair.

It just about killed me to be called by her name 12 times a day. It let me know that people do not look at a face or listen to a voice or pay any attention to personality. If a girl is fat she's a blob, a nothing. Why are people so rotten?—Fat and Miserable.



Dear Girl: If you hate what you are, then be something different. Others have won the Battle of The Bulge and so can you. Get going.

Horticultural Society Marks 75th Birthday

STIRLING — The Stirling Horticultural Society observed its 75th anniversary on Monday evening with 120 adults in attendance. A smorgasbord potluck supper augmented with fried chicken preceded the program.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall was profusely decorated with bouquets of colorful 'mums and, the guest tables were centred with flowers and souvenirs. A large anniversary cake was especially made for the occasion, with cake cutting ceremony.

President Mrs. Floyd Armstrong welcomed the guests as they arrived and presided for the program. Following the blessing by Rev. Roy Taylor, pastor of the church, Mrs. John Doran read a telegram of greetings from past president Fred Houchin and his wife Mildred who are now residing in England.

Special guests were introduced following the singing of the theme song written by Phil Dodds in 1971 with Mrs. Roy Taylor as musician.

Messages of congratulations were received including one from Phil Dodds, past president of the Ontario Horticultural Association, who was also seat due to illness; also a message from Hon. George Hees MP with a generous donation. Rev. James McGarvey of Frankford was unable to attend and he sent a message of encouragement to carry on the work.

Previous to the cake cutting ceremony, Rev. Charles E. Staples proposed toasts to the town and the Stirling Horticultural Society. The president read the names of the 1972 officers and directors and all were in attendance except one, Mrs. Ashley Brooks read a poem.

This completed the year's work and the next meeting will be held Monday January 15, 1973 when the nominating committee will bring in the new slate of officers.

Gamble Pays Off for Mohawks

A shrewdly placed bet has paid off for Indian students from Tyendinaga Reserve.

The federal department of Indian Affairs put up the money last year and the Hastings County Board of Education Council took the gamble.

With the urging of trustee Carl Brant, they placed an Indian liaison officer at Moira Secondary School to cope with the students from the reserve attending Belleville schools.

Leslie Claus, an elementary school teacher on the reserve for many years before becoming Indian liaison officer, Monday reported to the board on the success of his activities.

Fourteen Indians from the 1971-72 graduating class are attending post-secondary institutions, he reported. In any previous year the total for the reserve had been two or three.

"From the reserve, a total of 23 students are taking advantages of higher education," he said. "Of this total, seven are attending university. Some of these we may lose, but, hopefully, a good proportion will stick and graduate."

Indian students have long had the option of attending city secondary schools and receiving assistance to attend post - secondary institutions. But the motivation wasn't there. Mr. Claus provided it.

"I am parent, friend, counsellor, adviser, attendance officer to the students," he said in his report. "So that no Indian student is deprived of the opportunity to take part in sports I purchase equipment which is stockpiled for use next year, for those students who would be unable to purchase them."

With funds from the department of Indian affairs, Mr. Claus makes sure no student is deprived of participation in driver education, extra classes, outdoor education and excursions.

He has equipped Moira's library with books, audio-visual aids and craftwork for students who want to undertake projects in Indian studies.

Now, he is engaged in negotiations with Trent University to allow his students to explore an archeological dig on Irwin Island at the east end of Desoronto.

Mr. Claus' duties range from bringing in special speakers on Indian affairs to arranging boarding homes in the city for those students who cannot remain on the reserve and continue their studies.

Last year he took students in the graduating classes on a tour of colleges and hospitals.

"Usually we were able to meet the directors of admission and in some cases (this) has meant the difference between acceptance into the course or rejection," he said.

Of the 14 students who went on to higher education during the first year of the Indian liaison officer's appointment at Moira, three are in university, one is at the Ontario College of Art, one is in training at Brockville General Hospital, seven are in community colleges and one is taking a course in hair dressing.

This year, a social counsellor, Miss Kay Hill, is also taken responsibility for all post-secondary students from the reserve.

PACE Protests State of River

The local PACE organization (People Against a Contaminated Environment) will be prepared to prosecute on its own any person or company dumping salt - laden snow into the city's water supply this coming winter.

This was the warning given yesterday by Clarence Young, PACE organization member, who addressed city council on what he claimed was the "deplorable state of the Bay of Quinte and the Moira River."

Mr. Young specifically referred to the incident two weeks ago when he said employees of Leo Construction dumped the contents of a fuel oil tank into the river.

He said this deliberate and persistent polluting of the city's dwindling water supply by irresponsible citizens and careless industries posed the biggest and most serious threat.

Mr. Young said PACE fully endorsed the validity of claims made by Stu Meeks regarding the buildup of silt in the harbor from the coffer dam placed in the river to enable installation of the trunk sanitary sewer up the Moira.

"We are not crackpots or eccentrics," Mr. Young concluded, "just average people who want to secure the basic needs for life, not only for ourselves but for coming generations."

Mr. Young also referred to the $500 which he said had ostensibly been put aside last spring by city council for the use of PACE in obtaining an independent analysis of bay water supply.

The money was provided in the budget of the council solid waste disposal committee under the chairmanship of Alderman Jean Smith.

Alderman Smith said, however, that she had no direction from council to spend the money.

Trustees Defer Early Dismissal

Early dismissal of students one day a month to allow teachers time for professional development was shelved last night by public school trustees.

Apprehension of parents' disapproval was the reason for deferring the recommendation of the director of education.

The original proposal came from the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board. It proposed to arrange in-service, professional development courses for teachers once a month, from 2:30 to 5 p.m.

Because separate and public school pupils share the same buses in many areas, the separate school board asked the public board to arrange similar courses on the same day on a co-operative basis.

But, aware of possible public reaction, trustees shied away.

"If we sent kids to school at 1:30 and let them out at 2:30 we'd get some comments," said James Clarke.

Milford Waller of Thurlow added that: "Parents do like to keep their kids in school."

The recommendation was deferred until after the new year.

Middleton Park Cats to Be Tagged

TRENTON (Staff) — Cats as much as dogs constitute a large percentage of the animal control problem in Middleton Park, and the Canadian Forces community council has announced levies for licencing cats as well as dogs.

Retiring Middleton Park Community Council Mayor, Captain W. Yates says the new $2 cat licence will be sold strictly as a matter of economics. He believes because of the percentage of cats in the military subdivision, owners should bear costs of animal control the same as dog owners.

He said the present revenue from dog licences does not cover the cost of an animal control officer.

But handing licences is one thing, getting the cats to wear them is an entirely different matter. Apparently tags are unsuitable for the average cat, so owners will be issued with just a receipt.

In addition to the cat licence, council is considering increase of dog licence fees from $5 to $6 for bitches, and from $3 to $4 for males and spayed bitches.

RE-ELECT MAYOR SCOTT

Picton Reeve, Deputy Clash

By MARGARET HAVLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton reeve Albert Piroth yesterday declared he does not believe that "some of the actions of council will bear up under close scrutiny."

At an all-candidates session sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club the reeve criticized a proposed addition to [illegible] Hall which was eventually rejected by council. He said both Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman and deputy reeve James Bird stressed the need for this addition which would have included town offices and lockup facilities. Later the cost of the construction were prepared and "quite a large sum of money spent" for them but the proposal was dropped when council learned lockup facilities would remain available at the former county jail.

Reeve Piroth said the addition would have been built on quicksand with no soil tests made first. The estimated cost of the new construction was $75,000.

He questioned the outcome of the situation if a citizens' committee had not formed to circulate a petition opposing the addition. A total of 1,179 names was signed.

Reeve Piroth also rapped the demolition of the former Ivy Street school which he claimed was built by one of Prince Edward's best craftsmen in the mid 1930s.

The school was demolished at a cost of $2,500. Although very little roof leakage had occurred before it was torn down.

The building was demolished by a vote of council to make room for parking but reeve Piroth said he has never counted more than seven vehicles on the site since the school was destroyed.

"It's a sea of mud. No car dares to park there now," he contended.

Reeve Piroth said, "It was just a case of we're going to tear it down come hell or high water."

Remarks made earlier by his opponent for the reeveship, deputy reeve James Bird prompted Mr. Piroth to state he had searched council records to prove certain inaccuracies.

At a recent ratepayers meeting Mr. Bird said that on one occasion he voted alone to retain Mr. Ivy Street school. Reeve Piroth last night declared he had examined all records for almost the past two years and could find no instance where Mr. Bird voted alone to save the school building.

He added that he did discover a similarity in voting on this issue between Mr. Bird and Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman.

The reeve again challenged the reconstruction of Hill Street to regain sewerage infiltrations and stressed the work could have been done without building a new street. He suggested the construction, completed at a cost of $147,000, was not justified and a repair job at an estimated cost of $25,000 would have sufficed.

The concept of one - way streets in Picton, once a topic for council discussion, gained further criticism from reeve Piroth last night. He emphasized that if Main Street had been made a one - way street "the Picton businessmen might as well have packed it up and gone home."

Reeve Piroth said his statements were all accurate and noted if he had made any errors he would be the first to apologize and "the first to withdraw." If he could not back all that he had brought to the ratepayers' meeting.

Deputy reeve James Bird, who later replied to reeve Piroth's remarks, termed council "a democracy." He said the will of the majority must rule and once a decision is made it must be carried out.

As chairman of the public works committee, Mr. Bird claimed he was "the sitting duck" for criticism. He stressed that he is simply "an ordinary person" capable of making errors.

Deputy reeve Bird observed when council's decisions sometimes override his opinions he attempts to amend his thinking to conform or "sits out on a limb."

He emphasized that comprise is democracy and in a democracy the will of the people is supreme.

Mr. Bird also commented that figures are open to several interpretations and "you can use them to almost any end."

The deputy reeve admitted reeve Piroth forwarded several statements of fact but said he was disturbed by the inference that he was not at times using his best judgment.

Mr. Bird said he has done his best at all times and observed that no matter what course of action the individual takes, praise seems rare.

He urged electors to vote remarking that "elections are a grave responsibility upon citizens."

Trenton Mayoralty Hopeful Wants Committee System

TRENTON (Staff) — Return of the committee system to Trenton would not only give council a chance to pay closer attention to special issues, mayoralty candidate Ray Martin said on a CJBQ Radio open - line program Friday night. It would also provide communication between members of council and the electorate.

"As well," he said, "the voters could put their problems on the shoulders of one person and then judge how he handles it."

Mr. Martin said he is firmly against the number of closed - door sessions Trenton council holds under its present system. In attendance at most council meetings for several years, he says he has felt frustration at the "rubber stamp" methods used by council.

Referring to the regular bi-monthly committee of the whole meetings, followed the week after by a council meeting during which the reports of the previous week are usually approved, Mr. Martin told listeners there "is a place for committee of the whole meetings, but only in certain areas."

He feels discussion of future industrial development in the town, might spark under the committee if discussed in public. As well, hiring of public servants such as police chiefs or town office employees, should be held in camera.

One of Mr. Martin's election platforms calls for a smooth - running municipal machine, offering better cooperation between council and the community. It is into this scheme that he fits his recommendation for re-establishment of the committee system with one councillor responsible for areas such as parks, another for recreation or public works.

Stating he would not welcome "yes men" to council, Mr. Martin said constructive opposition to proposals is necessary. However, while he believes council members should air their views, and vote for or against a motion, he does not approve of the opposition continuing once a motion is passed.

"Once it's been passed, it should be supported for the good of the community."

He was referring to the battle for development of the former post office site in downtown Trenton.

"We've had two plebiscites — an indication to council of what the people wanted.

"I'm disappointed and dissatisfied as to why nothing has been done. We've lost how many bucks in lost tax revenues," he stated.

"The first plebiscite was the time to do something about it."

Sewage Election Issue

PICTON (Staff) — Election platforms were advanced last night at an all - candidates session presented by the Picton Kiwanis Club.

Invited to air their views were mayor Margaret Ackerman, her opponent Harvey J. McFarland, Picton reeve Albert Piroth, deputy reeve James Bird, incumbent school trustee Ruth Hart, her opponent Gladys Porter and incumbent town councillor Bessie Ward. All elected election candidates were invited to answer questions from the floor.

Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman answered comments concerning the large quantities of untreated sewerage discharged annually into Picton creek. She said there were weekly tests at the water purification plant and two hits each month as well. She problem comes only at the peak of the rainy season, according to mayor Ackerman. Infiltrations are being treated by repairing trouble spots such as fill Dutch was reconstructed this summer.

Former town mayor Harvey J. McFarland advised electors to look "east and west" to view community progress achieved under his administration. He urged ratepayers to vote, commenting that this represents their freedom.

School, Town May Develop Vacant Lot

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans for joint development of a piece of town-owned land beand Queen Elizabeth School, has been supported in principal by the Trenton Board of Parks Management.

The proposal, put forward by the Hastings County Board of Education, calls for raising of the level of land next to the school, to the same height as that of the school grounds.

This would provide adequate ground surface for construction of two new ball diamonds and a second soccer field.

However, before final approval is given, the parks board wishes to study costs of the project with George Umbach, deputy comptroller of planning for the school board.

As well, the proposal for new ball diamonds and soccer field, have not met with final approval, pending further discussions with Ian Smith, co ordinator of community school programs and Dero Gratton, director of parks and recreation in Trenton.

The board of education has also agreed to the proposal, in principal, but wishes further discussion with the parks board, including discussion of cost estimates. The plan calls for development of both town and school board land as a community recreation area, to be used by the parks and recreation committees when not in use for school activities.

Cabinet Keeps Legal Finish

Prime Minister Trudeau, himself a former law teacher, added three more to his council of ministers Monday, bringing the total of lawyers to 15, exactly half the cabinet.

Since law-making is a major function of the cabinet, the dominance of persons trained in the legal profession may be appropriate. There is a similarly heavy representation of lawyers in the Commons itself.

Four businessmen, three economists, three journalists, two farmers, a doctor, a teacher and a union organizer balance the new Trudeau cabinet.

The lawyers on average are younger than the other ministers. Their average age is 43, compared with 47 for the whole cabinet. Average age of the cabinet Mr. Trudeau formed after the 1968 election also was 47.

With only four ministers from west of Ontario, the new cabinet fails to meet an ideal regional representation of six to eight MPs from the four western provinces. But Mr. Trudeau had little choice: The Oct. 30 election left him with only seven MPs from the Prairies and British Columbia together.

Atlantic-area representation was increased by one—Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald—to four, reflecting a gain by the Liberals of three seats to 20 in that region.

Twelve ministers are from Ontario, up from 10 before the election, and 10 are from Quebec, up from nine.

It has been a tradition that every federal cabinet should include one English-speaking Protestant from Quebec, a French-speaking member from outside Quebec and a Roman Catholic of Irish descent. These spots are filled, intentionally or otherwise, by Charles Drury in treasury, Jean-Eudes Dube in public works and Eugene Whelan in agriculture.

Easterner Understands Farmers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 21st agriculture minister, genial Eugene Whelan from Amherstburg, Ont., is an eastern farmer who anticipates few problems dealing with counterparts in the West.

"I don't think it makes much difference where you come from as long as you understand farming problems," he said, minutes after being sworn into the portfolio in Government House.

"I don't think I understand every one of them, but I think I have a good working knowledge of agriculture."

Mr. Whelan, Irish Roman Catholic and MP from Essex, is only the second agriculture minister to be chosen from Eastern Canada since the beginning of the century. The other was J. J. Greene, now a senator, who held the position between 1963-68.

And he is not without western connections. His older brother, Edward Charles Whelan, is a NDP member for Regina North West in the Saskatchewan legislature.

Since graduation from technical and vocational school in Waterville Ont., Mr. Whelan has been on the Ontario Federation of Agriculture's board of governors, president of the Essex County Federation of Agriculture, a director of the United Co-operatives of Ontario, and of the Ontario Winter Wheat Producers' Marketing Board.

JEAN MARCHAND

Marchand Moved

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal cabinet minister Jean Marchand leaves the regional expansion portfolio at a time when his department is at the centre of political debate.

He is switching portfolios with Transport Minister Don Jamieson because the former Newfoundland broadcaster is a "very good communicator" who will have to explain regional expansion policies to the public. Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

The prime minister, who announced the cabinet changes Monday, told reporters that Mr. Marchand had done a good job. But because a Quebec minister headed the department, some people said regional expansion policies were particularly favorable to Quebec.

Reshuffle Increases Antes

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet reshuffle Monday means pay increases for four of 30 ministers involved and especially for the lone woman, Science Minister Jeanne Sauve.

The pay scale goes from $22,000 to $33,000.

The raise is not because Miss Sauve is the first woman in the cabinet since Judy LaMarsh quit in 1968.

Mrs. Sauve, a Quebec and national broadcaster and writer, began earning $26,000 a year on Oct. 30 election as a member of Parliament. On joining the cabinet as science minister, she earns $33,000 plus an additional $10,000 for expenses, or a total of $43,000.

Marc Lalonde, the former personal secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, is the only other new MP who is a cabinet minister. He was earning about $33,000 and as health and welfare minister he'll get the same as Mrs. Sauve—$43,000.

The four other three who can expect pay raises are Stanley Haidasz, minister of state; Eugene Whelan, agriculture; and Warren Allmand, solicitor-general.

ROBERT ANDRAS

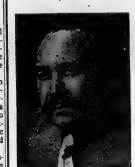
Economy Aid

LONDON (CP) — One post office worker was so perturbed by Britain's recent financial troubles that he donated his newly-awarded pay rise to the treasury.

Car Dealer In Hot Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Andras, a 51-year-old former Thunder Bay, Ont., car dealer, moved Monday from the comparative obscurity of consumer affairs minister into the hot seat of responsibility for the unemployment insurance program.

He replaces Bryce Mackasey, who said Friday he was leaving the cabinet.



As minister of manpower and immigration, one of Mr. Andras's first duties will be to decide whether there should be changes in the unemployment insurance program in response to criticism of that program during the last election campaign.

"Basically, the unemployment insurance act is a good act," he said in an interview shortly after his appointment.

"The plan is a generous plan. Very obviously, there has been an indication that some things have to be examined."

He declined to give details, but said people who can work and have jobs available to them should take those jobs.

He said one reason the unemployment insurance system created so much controversy was that it was faced simultaneously with legislative and administrative changes, including new computers.

Research Style Undergoes Change

OTTAWA (CP) — Scientists doing applied research have tended to stress the scholarly approach of pure research in their applications for grants. But now that the fashion is to do more applied work, applicants are stressing work relevant to industry.

"That's called grantmanship," says R. F. Park, director of the office of grants and scholarships for the National Research Council.

Research is research, he said in an interview Monday, and it can't always be divided into that which has immediate application—"which is good for the country"—and that which is necessary background to science and which may, eventually, lead to science breakthroughs.

The council goal "during the last nearly 50 years has been to support good research," he said. "In years past there might have been an emphasis on pure research, but I think there is a reasonable balance now."

He was commenting on the annual NRC report on support of university research for the 1971-72 fiscal year, which was released Monday.

The 618-page volume listed all university research projects receiving council funds—about $70.2 million.

Support ranged from a special $134 grant to enable one scientist to buy computer time for a study in cellular biology to a group grant of $500,000.

The report was released at a time when some government sources are predicting that the granting function will be removed from the NRC.

The council has, during the last year especially, come under strong criticism.

A statement on the NRC was expected before the end of the year from the science ministry, but with a new ministry, this may be delayed. Jean Sauve Monday replaced Alastair Gillespie as minister in an extensive cabinet overhaul.

The Senate special committee on science policy, under chairman Maurice Lamontagne, recommended last March that the granting function of NRC should be separated from the operation of its laboratories."

Mr. Gillespie said in June that he was "impressed with . . . the argument for separating the granting function from NRC."

Judge Rules Chief of Police Wrongly Fired

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Police Commission exceeded its jurisdiction last summer when it declared Jean-Jacques Saulnier incompetent and unfit to be Montreal police chief, Mr. Justice Rodolphe Pare of Superior Court ruled Monday.

Mr. Justice Pare authorized the issuance of a writ of evocation which would require the commission to turn over to the court within a month the transcript of evidence it took during a six-week investigation of Mr. Saulnier's conduct that ended early this year.

Mr. Saulnier has been on a leave of absence since he was relieved of all his duties as city police chief in August.

The commission absolved Mr. Saulnier of any corrupt practices but found he had "neither the competence nor the aptitude" to run the 4,000-man police force.

Yankees, Mets Make Trades

HONOLULU (AP) — New York Yankees made a big hit and New York Mets completed

Before the last man was out Monday, 18 players, including such big names as Tommie Agee and Graig Nettles, had changed teams as the free-swinging officials got the annual session off to a fast start.

Even before the major league draft list off official business Monday, the Yankees dropped an early-morning bombshell announcement involving Nettles and five others.

The Yanks, badly in need of a slugger, snatched the power-hitting Nettles from Cleveland Indians along with catcher Jerry Moses for a covey of young hopefuls—catcher-first baseman John Ellis, outfielders Charlie Spikes and Rusty Torres and infielder Jerry Kenney.

We traded tomorrow for today," New York general manager Lee MacPhail said. "The fans have waited long enough for a pennant.

"We want to win it next year—Yakee Stadium's 50th anniversary.

"I don't want to put our manager, Ralph Houk, on the spot. But I must say that now we've got as good a club as anybody in baseball."

Houk, who apparently didn't mind being "on the spot," added: "We're going to go out and get the American League pennant next season."

The Yankees certainly seem serious about securing that long-elusive title. The major deal was the second trade the American League club has made in three days here.

The Yankees opened for business not long after their arrival by obtaining right fielder Matty Alou from Oakland Athletics Saturday for pitcher Rob Gardner and a player to be named later.

The Mets, meanwhile, pulled off a double-barreled swap Monday with Houston Astros and the Indians.

The National Leaguers shipped centre fielder Agee to the Astros for outfielder Rich Chiles and pitcher Buddy Harris. The Mets then completed their day's business with the announcement that relief pitcher Phil Hennigan had been obtained from the Indians for minor league pitchers Brent Strom and Bob Reynolds.

Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers got into the act with a four-player deal only a few hours later. The Pirates obtained two minor league pitchers, left hander Jim Foor and right-hander Norm McRae, for outfielder Dick Sharon and an undisclosed minor leaguer.

The trade-happy baseball people weren't finished, however. Cincinnati Reds then dealt outfielder Bill Voss to St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Joe Jaquez.

In other business Monday, the hierarchy of the major and minor leagues, held several administrative huddles, including the draft of players from baseball's massive farm system.

Stowe Stings Cards

MIAMI (AP) — Young Otto Stowe smacked one of Phil Warfield's shadow Monday night to catch two touchdown passes for Miami Dolphins and vowed not to remain backstage much longer.

"I love playing in Miami and winning is wonderful," said the sophomore pro from Iowa State, "but I'm not planning to sit on the bench for another season."

With Warfield resting an injured leg, Stowe ran past befuddled St. Louis cornerback Norm Thompson to catch a 37-yard touchdown pass from Earl Morrall and a 27-yarder from Jim Del Gaizo.

Miami and the Cardinals 31-10 in Monday night's National Football League mismatch that ended in a circus atmosphere with fans running amid players during the closing minutes.

"These fans are crazy," said sportscaster Howard Cosell, who turned a threatening letter from a Miami follower over to the FBI earlier in the weekend.

"It took cops and police dogs to handle them."

The Dolphins are 11-0, three games from becoming the NFL's first undefeated regular season team since the 1942 Chicago Bears. Ahead on the schedule are New England Patriots, New York Giants and Baltimore Colts.

Morrall, who's done nothing but win as replacement for the injured Bob Griese at quarterback, refused to take any opponent lightly "... not even the bedraggled, 2-9 patriots coming up Sunday at Foxboro, Mass.

"Once you start looking past them, you're in for a dogfight," said the 36-year-old Morrall. "We're not taking New England or anybody else lightly."

Stowe blasted past the napping Thompson for the first touchdown shot from Morrall. Thompson later was carried bodily into the end zone from five yards out as Jim Kiick smashed for another score.

Then, with the second-year defender from Utah on the ropes, Stowe burned him again as backup quarterback Del Gaizo arched the football into his arms.

"Otto sure gave that No. 43 the business," said Warfield, whom Stowe had credited for much of his improvement with the Dolphins.

Morrall hit 12 of 19 passes for 210 yards against the Cards.

The Dolphins, who began operations in 1966, reached a milestone Monday night. They hit the .500 mark at 46-41-1 in their seventh season, the earliest an expansion team has ever made it.

Coach Don Shula, in his third season at Miami, is an incredible 31-7-1.

Larry Csonka ran for 114 yards in 16 carries. Mercury Morris made 55 in 16 and Kiick chipped in with 35 in eight as the three-back running offence mauled the Cardinals.

Csonka's season rushing total reached 925 yards.

Filion Breaks Own Record

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, harness racing's leading driver, set an all-time record of 544 victories in one year when he won with Eden Ali in the fifth race at Roosevelt Raceway Monday night.

The 32-year-old native of Angers, Que., broke his own world record of 543 which he had set Dec. 31, 1971.

Eden Ali was Filion's third winner on the card. Earlier he won with Fashion Scott, $12.60, and had equalled his old record with Shadway, $12.40. Eden Ali paid $6.80 to win, beating Mount Cook by half a length in a mile of 2:03 3-5.

Speedy Porter

Lewis Porter (24) of Hamilton Tiger-Cats gets good blocking from Mark Kosmos (45) as he heads for the only touchdown scored in Sunday's game against Ottawa Rough Riders in Hamilton. Porter picked up the ball after it was fumbled by the Ottawa offence. Hamilton won the game 23-8 and won the Eastern Football Conference two-game, total-point final 30-27.

Lemaire Sets Fast Scoring Pace

MONTREAL (CP) — Forward Jacques Lemaire has been a prolific goal scorer since he joined Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League in 1967.

But this season the hard-shooting, 27-year-old centre is off to the fastest start of his career.

Lemaire, who counted 22, 29, 22, 28 and 32 goals respectively in his first five NHL seasons, today leads the league in goals—10 after 22 games of the 78-game schedule.

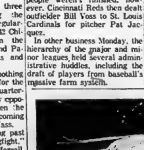
In addition, his 15 assists give him a share of the points leadership—a position he holds with centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins. Esposito has 14 goals and 20 assists for 34 points.

The last player to have more goals in as many games as Lemaire—20 in 22 games—was Bobby Hull with Chicago Black Hawks in 1964-65.

Lemaire has only a one-goal edge over Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres. But despite his 18 goals, Martin remains well down the scoring list with only eight assists.

Rifth winger Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal and Rick MacLeish of Philadelphia Flyers are the next best goal scorers. Both have 16.

In the points parade, right winger Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers is in third place with 32 points, one more than John Bucyk of Boston.



Cournoyer and centre Gilbert Perreault of the Sabres are tied for fifth place with 30 points each.

Butch Goring of Los Angeles Kings, the West Division's leading point man, is tied in seventh place with Montreal's Frank Mahovlich and Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers. All have 29 points.

The goaltending race is a little tighter today.

The goals against average for Montreal's Ken Dryden and Michel Plasse went over 2.15 goals against for the first time this season. The pair have a combined average of 2.17.

Minnesota North Stars—Cesare Maniago, Gump Worsley, and Giles Gilbert—have a combined goals against average of 2.41 for second place.

Ti-Cats Hold Edge on Paper

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For those who get their kicks from statistics, Hamilton Tiger-Cats should be a sure-thing over Saskatchewan Roughriders in next Sunday's Grey Cup game.

The Ticats, during the Canadian Football League regular season, were better on paper than the Roughriders—but so were Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. However, when the chips were down, the Roughriders had the edge where it counted—on the score board.

But let's take a look at some of the statistics.

The Ticats played 14 games and Roughriders 16, with Hamilton winning 11 and losing three, compared with Saskatchewan which had an 8-8 record.

And the Ticats scored more points, 372 to 336, and gave up fewer, 262 to 283.

With its great performance, Hamilton placed seven men on the Eastern Football Conference all-star offensive team and three on the defensive team. Saskatchewan has just two on offence and two on defence in the Western Football Conference.

Hamilton, led by sensational rookie quarterback Chuck Ealey, scored 46 touchdowns and converted 37. Saskatchewan scored 41 and congrted 38.

When it comes to first downs and total yards though, the Roughriders came out on top: Saskatchewan rolled up 293 first downs—119 rushing and 147 passing with 27 on penalties—while the Ticats had 256—10 rushing, 130 passing and 12 by penalty.

Saskatchewan's total offence amounted to 5,287 yards, well ahead of Hamilton's 4,648 yards.

Hamilton, thanks mainly to Dave Buchanan and Ealey, had a 2,932-2,825 yards against edge in passing yardage against Hamilton's 2,932.

The clubs had identical averages on kick-off returns, 4.7, and were close in percentage of passes completed—57.2 for Hamilton and 55.5 for the Roughies.

In punting, Saskatchewan's Bob Pearce and Al Ford had an advantage over Bill Van Burkleo and Paul McKay—40.9 yards a punt to 37.9.

Pearce was leading at field goals, the Ottawa Hamilton final playoff game nevertheless—when Ian Sunter kicked five for the Ticats—Jack Abendschan had a slight edge for Saskatchewan, hitting on 10 of 24 compared with Sunday's 11 of 28.

It's on defence that the Cats really outstrip the Roughriders. The opposition rolled up 311 first downs against Saskatchewan and the Schenley Awards presentations.

Ron. Saskatchewan gave up 5,046 yards to the opposition and the Ticats just 4,361.

Injuries Against Rules

HAMILTON (CP) — "Nobody hurts around here," Jerry Williams observed Monday when asked what injuries his Tiger-Cats accumulated in the windup Sunday of their Eastern Football Conference final. "It's against the rules."

The Ticats overcame a 12-point deficit in the second game of the total points series, beating Ottawa Rough Riders 23-8 to win the championship 30-27.

The Hamilton club has been remarkably free of injuries all season and is probably the healthiest team in Canadian Football League history looking forward to next Sunday's Grey Cup date here with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The most serious injury they've had all season was a broken finger suffered by middle linebacker Mark Kosmos.

"You have to be lucky to go through a season like that," said trainer Jimmy Simpson.

Paul McKay, heir apparent to punter Joe Zuger's job, had his ankle operated on before the season started and never did make the lineup.

Sunday's CFL final will mark the fifth championship meeting between Saskatchewan and Hamilton clubs, dating back to Mike Rodden-coached teams that registered 30-0 and 14-3 wins over Regina in 1928 and 1929.

Hamilton scored a 23-6 win over Regina in 1932, and it wasn't until 1967—the last Grey Cup appearance for the Ticats—that they met again with the same result, a 24-1 Roughrider defeat.

Simpson, incidentally, was also involved with the Hamilton team in all four previous meetings—the first three as a player and in 1967 as trainer.

It will also mark the first time in 28 years Hamilton has entertained the Grey Cup championship. St. Hyacinthe-Donnacona Navy edged Hamilton Wildcats 8-6 in the 1944 final.

There will be a host of formalities prior to the big game, days of Grey Cup festivities precede the Saskatchewan-Hamilton confrontation, including the official opening of Canadian football's Hall of Fame. Miss Grey Cup pageant

Good-Bye Leo

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

Sam Etcheverry is known throughout sports as a gentleman. He has been gracious in victory; poised in defeat and noncommittal on ties.

Leo Cahill has been the "defiant terrible" of the CFL. Criticizing officials; feuding with other coaches and generally letting his sharp tongue and enormous ego wander at will through the sports world, Cahill, has been called many things, very few of which have been gentlemanly.

Not at last. Silent Sam and Loud-mouthed Leo have something very much in common — they are both unemployed.

Strangely enough it is Cahill who represents the greatest loss to the world of sport. Certainly a great many Toronto Argonaut fans wouldn't concur, but Argo fans have become a little unbalanced. And who can blame them? Every year they've won the Grey Cup in August only to lose it in November.

However, at least they've had Leo. The man has supplied that quantity that sport today is sadly lacking — color. While the Argos haven't won a Grey Cup in 20 years fans keep flocking to the stadium. The Alouettes won it in a Cinderella 1970 performance yet fail to draw flies.

Leo has to take much of the credit for this. After all, who was it that in 1969 and those immortal words, "only an act of God can keep the Argos out of the Grey Cup", prompting Frank Clair to reply "Yes and Russ Jackson walked across the Rideau Canal to practice this morning." Anyone who can goad catchy quips out of Frank Clair just has to be something special for him.

Other sports could use a few Leo Cahill's of their own in order to keep the sports pages just slightly different from the stock quotations or the latest beat. We hear of holdouts, players associations, players representatives, bonus clauses, deferred payments, reserve clauses, anti-trust suits and grey financial suits. All of this is very fine in its place, but that place should not be the sports section.

Remember when baseball strikes were those things that Warren Spahn threw at you after pitch, not what players found to replace spring training. Or when Leo Durocher kicked Augie Donatelli's blue-suited shins or when Jim Piersall ran around the bases backwards after hitting one of his infrequents.

Perhaps the saddest thing about sports today is that colorful characters are consciously discouraged. Cassius Clay was put down as a poetry - writing buffon, a draft dodger and a loud mouth, but only Joe Frazier has argued successfully that he is not "the greatest."

Baseball players are thrown out of games almost automatically for arguing with an umpire, but who in the stands really objects to the odd nose - to - nose jawing session

The NFL has passed a rule that touchdown scorers cannot toss the ball into the end zone stands for "protection of the spectators". Wouldn't New Orleans Saints' supporters welcome the chance to get in a few elbow smashes after 70 minutes of watching their home town heroes pulverized by the Miami Dolphins

Athletes like Joe Namath, Derek Sanderson, Duane Thomas and Vida Blue are continually at odds with the sports establishment, but how many fans are hanging daily to the breathless exploits of Charlie Dreeger, Fred Stanfield or Amos Otis

Even "outlaws" in the hierarchy such as Charlie Finley or Bill Veeck are chastised for "trash" schemes like midget pinch hitters or Mousstache Day.

So good-by Leo. You didn't win a Grey Cup and a $25 coach who cuts a ballplayer like Mel Profit may not be Hall of Fame material, but at least you gave us a few lively moments in the white collar, tie-tainted world of professional sports.

Richard Returns To Hab Practice

MONTREAL (CP) — Henri Richard, veteran centre and captain with Montreal Canadiens, will practise today with the team, a spokesman for the National Hockey League club said Monday night.

The brief statement ended speculation that Richard, currently in his 18th NHL season with the team, would retire following a dressing room altercation in Vancouver last Friday night with team-mate Serge Savard.

Richard dealt Savard an open-hand slap across the face after a dispute over whether to allow reporters into the dressing room after the Canadiens 5-1 victory over the Canucks.

He did not play in Chicago and reports indicated he had asked coach Scotty Bowman to remove him from the lineup.

Richard met first with general manager Sam Pollock and then Bowman Monday afternoon.

The Vancouver incident arose when defenceman Jacques Laperriere suggested the dressing room be barred to the press. Richard is quoted as saying:

"Let them in. They have a job to do just like anybody else."

Savard then apparently made a facetious remark to Richard and received the slap.

Power clear through any drift

WITH THE ARIENS

TWO-STAGE SNOWTHROWER

Chewing up snow and blowing it away are two separate actions. That's why Ariens handles 'each one separately, at different speeds... With the two-stage combination of power and speed, you can tackle heavy wet snow, ice crusted snow — even wait-high drifts.

LAWN MOWERS AND OTHER ATTACHMENTS CAN MAKE YOUR ARIENS A 4-SEASON WORKSAVER

STAGE ONE — Churning into the snow and breaking it up is done with a slow, powerful revolving action. Chopped up snow is fed back to the blower.

STAGE TWO — Hurling snow/ice/slush at a much higher speed, the ice gets rid of the chopped up snow immediately, powering any build up from clogging the first stage.

- Available in five models from 4 h.p. to 8 h.p., widths from 20" to 32".
- Self-propelled, with 4 speeds forward, plus reverse.
- Waterized engine proven in sub-zero weather. Discharge chute swings 260°, throws anywhere up to 25 ft.

Power your way clear through winter with

Arnold Stone (on right) holds up his 24-pound muskie while Jim Stalker holds his 12-pounder caught on Sunday. Both fish were netted on the Moira River by Russell Roech.

Muskie Fishermen Have Hot Day in Cold

For nine hours on a wet and cold Sunday, three ardent fishermen sat in a boat somewhere on the Moira River fishing for muskie.

The result of the chilly day's labor was a 46-inch, 24-pound muskie caught by Arnold Stone and a 36-inch, 12-pounder for Jim Stalker. Russell Rosch netted both fish.

"I'm almost ashamed of it," said Stalker half-jokingly of his fish. "Last year both myself and Russell caught 30-pounders. Just last week, Stoney caught a 28 - pound muskie."

All three men use home-made plugs for their muskie fishing.

Women's Lib Hits Athletics

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Supreme Court ruled Monday that girls must be given the opportunity to qualify for previously all-male high school teams in non-contact sports.

The 3-to-2 decision, overturning a 1971 circuit court ruling, came in a suit brought by Johnell Haas, 18, of South Bend, Ind., against the South Bend Community School Corp. and the Indiana High School Athletic Association (IHSAA).

Miss Haas, a pupil at South Bend Riley High School, filed the suit after she was barred from interscholastic competition by an IHSAA rule which prohibits males and females from competing on the same team or against each other.

Miss Haas qualified for third position on her school's male B golf team in 1971.

Justice Donald H. Hunter wrote in the majority opinion that denying a girl a right to qualify for a non-contact high school team is a denial of her right to equal protection under the state and federal constitutions.

Hunter said non-contact sports include golf, tennis, swimming, track and gymnastics. Hunter also said separation of boys and girls in contact sports is a reasonable classification, noting that Miss Haas did not challenge the IHSAA policy in this area.

FLAMES TRADE HOGABOAM

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League announced Monday they have traded Bill Hogaboam to Detroit Red Wings for veteran right winger Leon Rochefort. Rochefort, 33, had scored two goals and four assists the year for the Red Wings. Hogaboam had appeared in only two games with the Flames.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 29

Aries (March 21-April 19): Now is the time to ask co-operation, understanding, and to present issues in your scheme of things for others to fill.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Resist the temptation to keep on in yesterday's ruts with your single-handed effort; get others into the act.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be an enjoyer; gather what you have ready for exhibit, put the show on the road. Bids for sale require immediate action.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Just doing the handiest thing and using the nearest opportunity in preference to abstract theory will work out well.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 21): Early fortunate circumstances leads you into taking something as ruined as fact. Check as you go; later in the day, save confusion.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 22): Co-operation improves as you get on the move. Take a longish errand you've been putting off, your mind open for new details.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Progress is available, according to your attitude. Bring problems to the attention of people who can do something about them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Up early and on the ball puts you in a spot to take advantage of passing nuances, quirks of circumstance, temporary conditions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 22): You have the co-operation of associates in proportion to what you have done for them. Financial caution is no reason for loafing.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Ideas should float rather than get pinned down as definite appointments. You attract favorable notice from important people.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be wary in dealing with people you are not very familiar with and have resources and reasons you do not know about.

Pisces (Feb. 19 & March 20): Joint or group findhelal arrangements are facilitated. Keep a reasonable balance between outlays for investment and resources in reserve.

To Your Good Health

Jaw Joint Noise Proves Annoying

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I eat I get a crunch or click at times, the facial bones close to my ears make noise like my bones are cracking. It is very annoying and I feel that people can hear it, too, but there is no pain at all—T.Y.

The noise you hear is in the jaw joint—and you are fortunate that there is no pain and have escaped the joint.

There are different possible causes, and it is worthwhile to check them out. First is faulty occlusion or "bite." The teeth don't come together correctly, which throws the jaw joint out of line. This can be readily checked by your dentist.

Another possibility is faulty co-ordination of the muscles you use to open and close the jaw.

Third, it could be arthritis of the joint. Just since there would be some pain with this, I dare say you can discard that possibility.

When the trouble stems from poor co-ordination of the jaw muscles, appropriate exercises are in order. Dr. John Ward recommends these: Opening the mouth against resistance (that is, pressing under the chin which can be applied simply by pressing your flat upward against your chin. Then closing against resistance (applying pressure downward on the chin). Also wriggling the jaw from side to side against resistance.

He also recommends chewing on a small piece of wax—more resistance than in chewing gum. These are simple, but have well produced good results.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you print a list of foods for obesity in your column?—Betty

I'd rather not because any reducing diet short enough to be helpful is apt to be too rigid and monotonous, and nobody would tolerate it very long.

An obesity (reducing) diet first will do you some good but has to be flexible. It has to contain necessary nutrients but it can get them from different sources. Exercise, no nibbling, spacing of meals and a lot of other things all go into a reducing plan that will really work.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 25-year-old girl. Can you tell me what causes my navel to give a bad odor and a yellow discharge? I wash every night. Is it important to see a doctor? I've had it about a week.—N.S.

Pretty clearly it's infection of some sort, and could be related to a scrachun—that's the inward extension of the umbilical cord that didn't quite close when you were born.

Whether that or something else, yes, it's important to see a doctor and see what needs to be done to clear up the infection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I fell and fractured my right floating rib. I am 73 and in good health. Movement of my back causes some pain. My doctor said this will heal without any binding or treatment. Is this so?—B.F.S.

Yes, it's so. It may take a little longer at your age than it would for a younger person. A binder will not hasten healing—it will decrease any movement and in that way make you more comfortable.

Fire Destroys Cottage

TWEED (Special) — A new $10,000 Frame cottage on Skeleton Lake (Bass Lake) in Limerick township owned by Thomas J. Hill of Markham, has been destroyed by fire.

Two sons of the owner had been at the cottage a week ago and when they returned this past weekend they found it burned.

Provincial police are assuming the cottage burned a week ago after the two Hill boys left for home.

Opening lead - king of hearts.

Whenever declarer plays a suit contract he is faced with the problem of whether or not to draw trumps. There is no hard and fast rule that governs this recurring problem. The best he can do is exercise his judgment in accordance with the circumstances he faces.

Take this deal where West leads the K-A-10 of hearts, declarer ruffing the third one. If South draws trumps at this point, he runs himself out of them — since the trumps are divided 4-2.

Regardless of what he does next, South cannot go down one. Thus, if he crosses to dummy with a club in order to try a diamond finesse, West wins with the queen and cashes the nine of hearts to score the setting trick.

But if South makes allowance for the possibility that the trumps are divided 4-2, rather than 3-3, he makes the contract. He delays drawing trumps because he is not yet ready to extract them.

Declarer's proper play is to ruff the third heart high and enter dummy by playing a low club to the nine. Then he leads the ten of diamonds and finesses, losing to the queen.

West is now helpless, despite his four trumps. If he plays a heart, declarer ruffs in dummy, comes to his hand with a club, draws trumps, and easily establishes the rest of the trick. If West plays any other suit, South draws trumps that much sooner to make the contract.

In effect, declarer goes out of his way to establish a tenth trick (in diamonds) before drawing the hostile trumps. He does not rely exclusively on a 3-3 trump division to see him home. He also protects against the 4-2 possibility by avoiding the premature extraction of trumps.

Five Big Cities Hold Parley

TOKYO (Reuter) — Five of the world's greatest cities opened a unique conference on urban problems today with a warning that deteriorating cities are blighting the existence and destroying the health of tens of millions of people.

Tokyo Governor Yokichi Minobe, the conference host, said: "The world's mammoth cities have played an important role in national, political, economic and cultural development.

"But technology, which in the past aided urban progress, has today advanced to where it has become the cause of urban disruption, blighting the existence of tens of millions of people. Modern civilization, in creating large cities, has created a host of attendant problems."

It is these problems the leaders of London, Moscow, New York, Paris and Tokyo will discuss and hope to find some solutions for during the next three days.

Each city will present a report on its biggest headaches and successes before detailed discussions begin in the major problem areas—blasting shortag e,garbage and sewage disposal, air and water pollution, water supply, traffic congestion, overburdened commuter transport systems and facilities for the elderly.

In his opening address, Minobe, an economist-turned-politician, spoke of some of the problems created by modern civilization in its search for technological advancement.

Automobiles are choking and polluting cities, plastics pose a disposal problem that eventually may inundate cities "in a sea of plastic waste" and the concentration of factories destroys the environment, he noted.

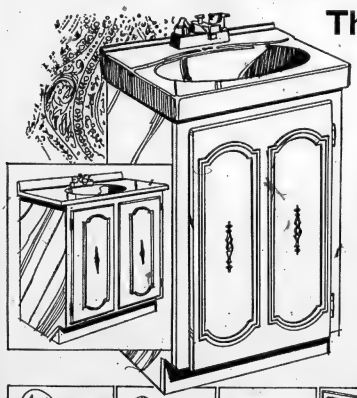
"If the situation is allowed to continue, cities will cease to be symbols of national achievement and instead become symbols of retrogression and inefficiency. They will destroy the health of urban residents and produce a situation so bad that it will carry into the next generation."

Churches Ignored

WINNIPEG (CP) — The assembly of the Canadian Council of Churches begins its first full day of meetings today with a heavy agenda of social ailments for study—poverty, racism and pollution.

But darkening the doors of the committee rooms is a record of limited successes in social-action endeavors since the 11 member churches of the Protestant organization last assembled in Montreal in 1969.

"Perhaps we just lack clout," commented the council president, Dr. A. B. B. Moore of Toronto, when asked why members of Parliament showed no interest in two council questionnaires on national and international issues.



But the public as well showed little interest in council initiatives.

In his report to the assembly, the council's commission on world concerns said business and labor representatives have not responded to invitations to discuss the economics of underdeveloped countries.

CP News Roundup

Joyceville Inmates Confined to Cells

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Four hundred prisoners at nearby Joyceville institution have been confined to their cells for a week following a sitdown demonstration last Monday.

Assistant Warden Larry Rutter said the situation was "not serious" but said everything at the medium security prison was "sensitive and quiet."

He said the prisoners are being fed in the cells and no visitors were being allowed past the gate.

Mr. Rutter said scores of relatives have been phoning to try to visit and others had shown up at the gates, but all had been turned away.

Last week, prisoners refused to enter their cells or work following a directive that ended visiting among prisoners during the evening hours.

C. W. Chitty, director of the institution, ordered all cells stripped of contraband, including extra clothing, wall decorations, pictures and tapes for cassette machines, which have been found destroying electronic locks.

In a directive to staff, Mr. Chitty said he was imposing strict disciplinary measures because of "evidence of interest in violence" found after the sitdown.

The directive said a return to normal conditions at the medium-security institution will be gradual and in keeping with the mood and temper of the prisoners.

End Search

EDMONTON (CP) — An air search for a light aircraft missing in the Arctic since Nov. 8 with four persons aboard has been suspended, a spokesman for the Canadian Forces rescue co-ordination centre said Monday.

The object was a plane piloted by Martin Hartwell on a mercy flight from Cambridge Bay on the Arctic Coast to Yellowknife, capital of the Northwest Territories.

Official Ill

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson was reported in serious condition in St. Paul's Hospital. He was admitted Monday night with what was diagnosed as a recurring lung infection.

He was taken to hospital by ambulance from the home of a friend where he had been attending a reception.

Cuts Ordered

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Three London hospitals have been ordered by the province to reduce the number of beds available to the community by 146 to meet provincial budget restrictions.

The new University Hospital, just activating its facilities, has been told it cannot use 60 of its 451 beds.

St. Joseph's Hospital is to cut back 46 beds and Victoria Hospital 40 beds.

The province is attempting to reduce the number of hospital beds to 4.5 per 1,000 population.

Vote to Quit

SARNIA (CP) — The 537 secondary school teachers with the Lambton County board of education voted Monday night to offer their resignations en masse Nov. 30 if a new contract is not reached by then.

A teachers' spokesman said the resignations would be effective Dec. 31.

The teachers voted 91.3 per cent in favor of the move.

May Resign

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Separate school teachers in Northumberland, Durham, Victoria and Peterborough counties have agreed to tell their school board they will resign after the Christmas vacation unless agreement on a new contract is reached by New Year's Day.

Joel Hogan, chairman of the teachers' salary negotiations committee, said Monday the teachers have prepared a statement in protest against the pace of negotiations. The statement will be delivered to the board Thursday.

The teachers involved are employed at elementary schools and the only secondary school in the area, at Peterborough.

Planes OK

HAMILTON (CP) — Contrary to claims of striking employees, Nordair aircraft are "fully airworthy," a ministry of transport spokesman said Monday.

Kenneth Paks said a check is being kept on the Nordair situation due to the strike "and we are convinced that the aircraft are fully airworthy."

Accused Heard

WINDSOR (CP) — Edna Helen Lefebvre, 48, of Mississauga, Ont., the only woman charged in connection with the $1.2 million Royal Bank robbery here Dec. 18, testified Monday she had no involvement in the crime.

She said she spent the day of the robbery playing cards with her common-law husband George Davison at their apartment in Mississauga. Despite the fact she was in Windsor during December as other witnesses testified, she said she had not been in the city for five years.

Mrs. Lefebvre said she had no idea the $11,000 police found in her apartment had been stolen from the bank. She said that Davison gave her the money, saying he borrowed it from William Ferguson, another accused.

Seeks Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation has sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau asking whether the Canadian government will protest the French nuclear test in the South Pacific next summer. The foundation protested an American nuclear test a year ago at Amchitka in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska and the French test last summer at Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific.

Running in Spray

A tourist, dressed only in swim trunks, runs through the spray from the Victoria Falls. When the Zambesi River, which feeds the 300 foot high falls, is running high the spray is visible up to 20 miles away.

Lakes Advisory Board Selected

OTTAWA (CP) — The composition of a 17-man research advisory board which will assist the International Joint Commission in co-ordination on Great Lakes water quality research was announced Monday.

The board is called the International Canada-United States Great Lakes water quality agreement and signed here last April.

It will co-ordinate such things as identifying objectives for research, making recommendations to government and issuing research information to interested persons and agencies.

The appointments of Stanley M. Greenfield, assistant administrator of the United States environmental protection agency for research and monitoring, and James Bruce, director of the Canada Centre for Inland Waters at Burlington, Ont., as co-chairmen of the board were announced earlier.

Canadian membership:

One-year term: Mary Munro, chairman Save the Lake Shore Committee, Burlington; Dr. Rodger M. Dorland, director technical development, Abitibi Paper Co., Ltd., Clarkson, Ont.

Two-year term: K. H. Loftus, supervisor, fisheries section research branch, Ontario resources ministry, Maple, Ont.; Prof. Arvind J. Dasgupta, environment department, Ecole Polytechnique, Montreal University; Dr. James R. Kramer, Geology department, McMaster University, Hamilton.

Three-year term: Dr. John R. Vallentyne, scientific adviser to the director of the freshwater institute, fisheries research board of Canada, Winnipeg; Frederick A. Voege, executive director, laboratory and engineering division, Ontario environment ministry.

The president of the International Association for Great Lakes Research is also appointed to the board as an ex-officio member.

The association is composed of persons actively interested in research and its presidency alternates each year between the United States and Canada.

Peterborough MP Succeeds Pelletier

OTTAWA (CP) — Culture and multiculturalism in Canada were created Monday into the keeping of a "nationalist" teacher and a trilingual physician.

James Hugh Faulkner, 39, MP for Peterborough assumes the mantle of the former secretary of state, Gerard Pelletier, whom he served for the last two years as parliamentary secretary.

Dr. Stanley Haidasz, 49, MP for Toronto Parkdale, assumes responsibility for the $5 million multiculturalism project Prime Minister Trudeau launched a year ago. He will bear the title of minister of state with special responsibility for multiculturalism.

Neither one was surprised by the appointments, considering recent speculation and an earlier statement from the Prime Minister that Mr. Pelletier would have another portfolio in their emoluments Jan. 1.

Bangladesh Babies Arrive For Adoption

TORONTO (CP) — Eighty children from Bangladesh, all victims of the recent civil war in the Asian country, were met by their adoptive Canadian parents at Toronto International Airport Monday night.

The children, ranging in age from eight months to six years, are in "lousy health," a Toronto physician said.

Some of the children are the offspring of women raped by West Pakistani soldiers during the civil war. Others were abandoned by their families.

Among the waiting parents were five Ontario couples. Two children will go to homes in Thunder Calandria, and one to Alberta.

Dr. Wayne McKinley, a pediatric resident at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto who visited Bangladesh, said the children "have big bellies, 100 per cent have worms, and they are all in less than optimal health.

"The babies we have left behind are going to die. Most of the babies I saw there were starving to death."

Must Produce

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk told city policemen Monday that if they cannot cut crime by five per cent next month he will cut their emoluments Jan. 1.

New Hostage

TRIER, West Germany (Reuter) — A West German newspaper reporter voluntarily delivered himself today to two gunmen as a hostage in exchange for a woman they had been holding prisoner in a gunshop since they raided it Monday afternoon.

Police named the journalist as 28-year-old Horst Reber, who works for the mass-circulation Bild Zeitung.

He walked slowly into the gunshop surrounded by more than 100 armed police—with his hands clasped above his head, and Kaethe Weber, wife of the shop owner, stumbled out, terrified and exhausted.

Mrs. Weber, 36, mother of five children, was taken to hospital for a checkup.

The shop in downtown Trier remained surrounded by 200 policemen.

Slugs Lawyer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Convict Ruchell Magee, accused with Angela Davis in the Marin County Courthouse shootout of 1970, was twice removed from the courtroom on the first day of his murder trial after slugging his court-appointed lawyer and calling the judge a "stupid dog."

Magee spent half the day Monday in a holding cell listening to proceedings by loudspeaker. He was first ousted after repeatedly refusing Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin's request to remain quiet and not interrupt. As bailiffs led him away, he called the judge a "stupid dog."

At one point Magee leaped with an outstretched right fist at his lawyer, Robert Carrow, shouting for his arrest.

Carrow was knocked over in his chair but assured the judge he was not hurt by Magee's body blow.

Tickets Up

STRATFORD (CP) — Cost of top tickets to the Stratford Festival will be increased to $10 each from $7.50 next year, partly because of "disappointing" contributions from corporations.

William Wylie, festival general manager, said after the festival's annual meeting Monday some seats will remain at $2.50 and $2.50 but most others will rise $1 each.

Suggests Fund

CHATHAM (CP) — Mayor Douglas Allin suggested Monday that the Ontario government should establish a disaster fund from which all municipalities could draw funds.

Mr. Allin said the present policy of the provincial government matching the amount of money locally is a "funny kind of game."

Reduce Beds

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario health ministry has asked Brockville's two public hospitals to eliminate 55 of their 309 beds.

The directive which followed an announcement last week of financial restrictions on hospitals throughout the province, called on St. Vincent de Paul Hospital to close 26 of its 163 beds and Brockville General Hospital to reduce its total of 224 beds by 29.

James Wilson, consultant and former administrator of Brockville General, said the ministry has approved a 70-bed nursing home for Brockville and the two hospitals have formed a non-profit corporation to build it. Brockville General currently has 48 beds for chronic patients.

Instant of Impact

Man Deliberately Ran Down Cyclist

TORONTO (CP — James Lawrence King, who has spent more than half his 42 years in prisons or mental hospitals, was sentenced Monday to life imprisonment for running down and killing a young boy cyclist just because he felt like it.

King, who has been confined in institutions since 1948, was charged originally with the non-capital murder of 10-year-old Michael Chauvette of Wawa, Ont., run down while riding his bicycle on Highway 17 near his home July 12.

King pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

In a statement to police, King said he had hate and frustrations within him while driving a stolen car toward Western Canada. He had just left a farm where recently released prisoners are given help. He had no money and was running out of fuel.

"When I saw a young boy on a bicycle, I thought: 'Why not him'" King said in his statement.

He said he passed the boy twice, trying to decide if he should kill the youngster. "I pulled into the side of the road. I didn't want any witnesses. I got up to 70 miles an hour.

"Before I hit him, he tried to pull off. I hit him with such impact he flew over the hood and the roof. I thought he must be dead."

Mr. Justice Edson Haines said King suffers from a state of diminished responsibility, is of above-average intelligence and is used to confinement.

King strikes out when he is frustrated, Mr. Justice Haines said. He has a two-page criminal record and requires a responsible correctional authority to look after him, the Ontario Supreme Court judge said.

He said King's history indicates that he requires supervision throughout his life. The judge said he could not recall a case in which so much psychiatric evidence had been accumulated.

No Scientific Base For Airport Location

TORONTO (CP) — A public hearing into the location of a second international airport just east of Toronto was told Monday there is no scientific basis for the decision to build there.

Lorne Almack, chairman of the technical committee of People or Planes, a citizens' opposition group, said the decision to build the airport at Pickering was made for political reasons.

Mr. Almack, a consulting engineer, said exhaustive studies had been made for four other sites for the airport. Then in the middle of the process, federal government researchers were "directed to go out and find a need for a new airport," he said.

"From then on, all the reports have this flavor, trying to justify a new airport," he said.

Grafftey Feels Chief Snubbed Him

MONTREAL (CP) — Heward Grafftey, Conservative MP for Brome-Missiquoi, refused to be photographed Monday with Party Leader Robert Stanfield or the party's Quebec chief, Claude Wagner, after he felt he was snubbed by Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Stanfield, in Montreal to speak to the Chamber of Commerce, prefaced his remarks by acknowledging the presence at the head table of Senator Jacques Flynn, Mr. Wagner and "other distinguished colleagues."

But Mr. Stanfield made no mention of Mr. Grafftey, also at the head table. He is the only other Tory elected from Quebec last month besides Mr. Wagner.

Mr. Grafftey, who dissociated himself from Mr. Wagner during last month's federal election, was so angry at what he considered a deliberate snub it took sides of Mr. Stanfield more than 10 minutes to calm him down.

During his speech, Mr. Stanfield promised that his party would try harder to improve its position in Quebec.

MacNaughton Denies Trying Obstruction

TORONTO (CP) — Charles MacNaughton, minister of intergovernmental affairs, denied in the legislature Monday that Ontario tried to "stop the consultation process" at last week's tri-level conference here.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon asked the minister to comment on press reports that "indicate you were left stranded, high and dry, in the archaic policy of restricting the federal involvement only to assisting the provinces and not to assist the municipalities."

Mr. MacNaughton replied that the press reports were wrong. He tabled a sheaf of position papers Ontario presented to the three government level conference, held in private, and invid Mr. Nixon to read them and reach his own opinion.

In a brief statement on the conference, he said Ontario sought to convince delegates that their energies should be concentrated at tri-level meetings on a provincial, rather than a national level.

He described national conferences as "simply forums for general discussions." Provincial-level conferences result in "doing rather than the talking."

Mr. MacNaughton said the provinces will require complementary support and co-operation of the federal government in meeting of their certain priorities such as in the areas of transit, pollution control and housing.

He said that was why Premier William Davis last week invited Mr. Nixon to read them Ontario's new $1.3 billion program to reshape public transit in the province.

He said Ottawa's acceptance of Ontario's designing for development program indicates the federal government believes "the time for talk has passed and the time for doing has arrived."

Canadian Directors Rule Said Ineffective

TORONTO (CP) — An act requiring that most directors of Ontario corporations be Canadians is "a completely meaningless gesture," an Opposition MPP charged Monday.

"The easiest thing in the world is to have the director nominally a Canadian and the real control lie . . . beyond the borders of Ontario, or beyond the borders of Canada," Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) told the legislature.

He made the comment as the Business Corporations Act, which requires that a majority of the boards of directors of companies incorporated in Ontario be Canadian, received second reading.

Mr. Singer wondered whether the government thought it could "continue to pull wool over the eyes of the people of Ontario and make them believe that this is going to really affect the change in control of companies."

James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale) said he thought the Canadian directors requirement would be helpful "to a marginal degree."

Having Canadian directors would not basically alter the decisions which corporations will make.

John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, congoed it was sometimes difficult to tell whether boards of directors really had control of companies.

But "you must have someone within the jurisdiction of this particular country that you can get to in the event there has been any breach (of the laws)".

Police Commission Officer Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — The duties of a senior officer in the Ontario Police Commission (OPC) are "under suspension," Solicitor-General John Yaremko told the legislature Monday.

He was asked by Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) what Herbert Thurston's duties were "now that he has been denied access to the security files of the police commission."

Mr. Yaremko said the matter was still under consideration.

HAVE WE BEEN INTRODUCED?

sports & fitness
Instructor

A world of knowledge for the world of sport and fitness

Have you met the Sports & Fitness Instructor, the new publication designed to help motivate you to get and stay fit and—if you're an athlete or coach—to aid you in increasing your sports efficiency?

We're fairly new in these parts and we're still trying to meet people who are interested—really interested—in sports and fitness. Not just stories or anecdotes, but the real facts of training, conditioning, nutrition, sports psychology, development of skills, agility, strength, endurance—all the things that make people fitter, athletes more skilful and coaches more aware of up-to-date methods.

The stories on this page are just samples of the kind of material you can find in the big 15-20 page Sports & Fitness Instructor every month.

The Managing Editor, Lloyd Percival, is the President and founder of the Fitness Institute in Toronto and is generally considered Canada's top fitness authority and all-round coach.

We also have regular guest writers like golfers George Knudsen and Al Balding, world famous sports psychologist Dr. Thomas Tutko, Al Raine, the program director of the Ski Association of Canada, soccer coach Graham Leggat, and many others.

There are articles on all sports, advice on nutrition, fitness exercises, development of strength, hockey conditioning, basketball drills, fixing figure faults, losing weight, gaining weight, keeping your body young, methods of the master coaches and many more engrossing subjects.

We publish every month, and you can get your copy free simply by visiting your nearest Shoppers Drug Mart store and asking for it.

See you soon?

All eyes are on the puck . . . and heaven help the goaltender if his vision is not all it should be. "Eye fitness" is a top priority for athletes in many sports. By the way, can you spot the puck?

What you see is what you get

by
Lloyd Percival

ONE of our most precious possessions is our eyesight. Yet we neglect it and even abuse it almost from the day we are born. Only when it begins to fade do we realize what vital faculty we have endangered by our carelessness.

While this applies to every one of us, it is a matter of particular concern to athletes. In many sports high visual acuity is essential—baseball, tennis, goaltending in hockey, pass receiving and quarterbacking in football, squash and handball are just a few which spring to mind.

How can we talk about total physical fitness if we fail to develop the fitness of such vital organs.

Even though you may not realize it, there could already be something wrong with your eyes, something only an eye doctor can detect. Many people operate at sub-par vision levels for years without realizing it—so the first step in eye fitness is to have yourself tested by a competent eye doctor. It may help you prevent damage to your eyes, and if you are an athlete it may help you to play better.

Dr. Clarence Hill, one of Canada's leading ophthalmologists for many years, had this to say about athletes' eyes:

"Many errors that an athlete makes are caused by faulty vision. Many athletes have been able to play better after having some sort of eye trouble corrected. If you have it too long, your eyes may suffer damage that cannot be fixed properly and this, of course, will interfere with an athletic career."

The next step is to embark on an eye fitness program. If your eyes have been tested and found normal, here are some things you can do to protect your eyesight.

1. Make sure that when you are reading or studying you have a good light in the correct position—coming over your left shoulder. Poor reading habits are a definite cause of short-sightedness.

2. Be careful not to work too often or too long at highly polished tables or other reflective surfaces. The glare could cause tremendous harm.

3. Try to avoid the glare from bright sunlight, snow or water. Use colored or polarized glasses—but do not wear them all the time. If you get in the habit of wearing them too much your eyes will "tone down" to the lack of light and suffer strain when exposed to such glare. Wear them only when in need of protection, such as when skiing or on the water.

How athletes can become 'acid heads'

WHAT CAUSES a headache during a hard workout?

This is a common complaint. It is believed to result from an over-abundance of the acids created by hard muscular activity. When such activity is intense and is continued for a long period of time the body is often unable to disperse or neutralize these acids quickly enough through the alkaline compounds in the body.

This irritates the nerves and causes headaches and sometimes nausea.

Although they can be unpleasant, such headaches should not be a cause for concern. Combined mild activity and massage are the best ways to get rid of the condition. A hot shower helps too.

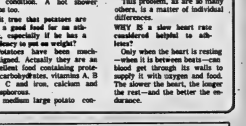
Is it true that potatoes are not a good food for an athlete, especially if he has a tendency to put on weight?

Potatoes have been maligned. Actually they are an excellent food containing protein, carbohydrates, vitamins A, B and C and iron, calcium and phosphorous.

A medium large potato contains only 100 calories, so it is not a high calorie food. However, if you eat them fried or with a lot of cream and butter you increase the calories.

They are best when baked or boiled with their jackets on.

Is IT A GOOD idea to go to bed for two or three hours on the day of a game?



It is quite common for coaches to put their athletes to bed before a game. Whether it is a good idea depends pretty well on the athlete himself. If he can sleep or rest comfortably, then it is beneficial. But if he is jittery and nervous, then he should be allowed to do something that will help take his mind off the coming game.

This problem, as are so many others, is a matter of individual differences.

WHY IS a slow heart rate considered helpful to athletes?

Only when the heart is resting —when it is between beats—can blood get through its walls to supply it with oxygen and food. The slower the heart, the longer the rest—and the better the endurance.

NDPer Approves Trudeau's Choice; It's His Brother

REGINA (CP) — Ed Whelan says he won't have any hesitation about criticizing his brother, Eugene, newly-appointed federal agriculture minister. Ed, NDP member of the Saskatchewan legislature for Regina North West, said Tuesday federal agricultural policies "will get the loudest, roughest, sounding I can give if I think he's wrong." Ed said there are no personal differences with his Liberal brother "but politically we disagree, I think that's obvious to the whole country." The Saskatchewan MLA says his younger brother's appointment to the cabinet is long overdue. "He probably knows more about agriculture than any other member of the government."

Jet Crash At Moscow Kills 61

MOSCOW (AP) — An engine fire during the first critical 800 feet of climb after takeoff appeared to have caused the Japan Air Lines DC 8 to crash and burn at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport, airline officials said today.

The death toll was posted by the Japanese embassy at 61 persons who were bound for Tokyo from Copenhagen Tuesday night after a stopover in Moscow. Sixty badly burned bodies had been counted, a 63rd passenger was missing and presumed by officials to be dead. There were 15 survivors.

A JAL official at the airport said a starboard engine caught fire less than a minute after the DC 8 left a main runway. The plane, struggling for the speed and altitude, plunged to earth before the pilot could radio an alarm.

Belleville Hospital Poorly Used: Potter

By KENNETH SMITH, Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital's facilities are being "very poorly used" and the efficiency picture at the hospital is "one of the worst (in Ontario)" Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter said Tuesday.

The Quinte MPP indicated that increased efficiency is the key to coping with the $248,850 budget cut for BGH. The ministry wants the cost cuts achieved by the removal from service of 52 hospital beds by next April 1.

"Efficiency improvements must be made at the hospital," Dr. Potter said in a telephone interview from his Queen's Park offices.

He contended people are being admitted for treatment to BGH who should not be, while others are being kept in hospital too long.

The health minister stated that the average time spent in hospital by patients here is considerably more than the provincial average and should be reduced.

The efficiency problem also extends to the Queen's Self Care Unit. "The self-care unit is not being used the way it should be," he said.

Occupancy rates there are far lower than in the active treatment hospital. Hospital sources indicate the self-care unit is only being used to between 60 and 70 percent of its capacity.

The minister indicates patients should be moving through hospital active treatment faster, going on to the self-care centre or to their homes.

"At no beds are available in the hospital, they (authorities and doctors) haven't made use of them (self-care beds)," commented Dr. Potter.

He said the College of Physicians and Surgeons recently advised Belleville General Hospital what should be done to boost efficiency.

Dr. Potter said it will be up to the BGH board of governors to cope with the situation. "We (the ministry of health) are not running the hospital."

He stated spiralling health costs must be kept in line and that hospitals in the province can no longer expect ready financing of their programs especially when inefficiencies exist.

"The honeymoon is over," Dr. Potter concluded.

Philip Rickard, the BGH executive director, said hospital administration will "co operate to the utmost" with the ministry of health as it seeks to cut costs.

He said he did not want to comment on the minister's statements as he had not heard them personally.

Mr. Rickard said hospital policies are "continually under review. I am aware of the need of efficiency at all times . . . we will have to use them (facilities) more efficiently."

Dr. Potter announced to the legislature Tuesday that active treatment grants for the support of from 1,200 to 1,500 beds in provincial hospitals are being removed.

MacStiofain Critically Ill

DUBLIN (CP) — Police arrested dozens of supporters of the outlawed Irish Republican Army and its British-born leader Sean MacStiofain, who lay critically ill in an army hospital today after breaking his 11-day fast with sips of water and tea.

MacStiofain's wife Marie, allowed to visit him, said the leader of the Provisional wing of the IRA had suffered a heart attack.

Potter Assailed Policy Is Called 'Outrageous Waste'

TORONTO (CP) — Both opposition party leaders in the legislature joined Health Minister Richard Potter for placing tough fiscal restraints on hospitals. They called Tuesday the move will seriously impair the province's medical health services.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon described the decision to limit the number of active treatment beds in each hospital as "an outrageous waste of public funds amounting to, according to one estimate, $50 million to over and it redefeasate planning on behalf of this administration."

He was referring to published reports indicating that 1,200 to 1,500 hospital beds, worth more than $250 million, would be eliminated in the next year.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, charged that the minister had made "a shambles of the whole delivery system."

Mr. Potter admitted that many hospitals will have to remove some of their beds to meet the new requirement of four beds per 1,000 of population.

He said about 1,200 to 1,500 beds across the province are over-bedded but many of these would be used for other purposes such as than active treatment, such as for long-term care, or convalescence.

"It's not a waste of public funds. The facilities will be used in the future as the need arises, but at the present time, when the need is not there, we're not going to pay $60, $70, or $80 a day for facilities that we don't need."

He said it will be up to the hospital boards to decide whether to close their services through cutbacks in their beds, or through cuts in other services.

The alternatives will be decided by the local administrators and boards of governors in each specific area.

Replying to Mr. Nixon's claim of bad planning, Dr. Potter said that in the late 1950s when he (the minister) was making speeches as a backbencher about the need for reviving the delivery of health services, "it was he opposition that thought it was a darn good idea."

"Now that I'm here and I'm trying to implement these ideas, now they're getting up and saying, why are you doing them?."

Data de the house, Mr. Lewis said the "absence of any alternative" to reducing bed facilities was appalling. The government was faced with a crisis in 1972 based on seriously inadequate planning for the previous several years, and they suddenly cut back arbitrarily."

Rivals in Agreement

Contestants for Belleville's mayoralty — Mayor Russell Scott and Alderman Robin Jeffrey — seem to have one point of agreement as they applaud statement from local election candidate at last night's Chamber of Commerce candidates' meeting. The event, at the Canadian Legion Hall, brought both competitors for city hall's top post together on same public platform, but encounter struck few sparks. For details, see first page, second section.

Nixon Will Tell Saigon Truce Terms Stay Same

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to advise the South Vietnamese today that no further compromises are in store on the tentative ceasefire agreement reached with the North Vietnamese in Paris.

Nixon and his national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, were to meet at the White House at 3 p.m. EST, with a special representative of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Earlier in a week, one official said the meeting with special emissary Nguyen Phu Duc "could very well mean Nixon has decided it is time to tell the score" to the Saigon government.

Underlying the importance of today's meeting was the presence of Kissinger and his top aide, Gen. Alexander Haig. South Vietnamese ambassador Tran Kim Phuong also was invited.

Some U.S. officials have said the current break in the talks between Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho was intended by Kissinger to point out to the South Vietnamese that no more concessions could be gained in the Paris talks.

With varying degrees of intensity, Thieu and his aides have objected to the absence of any firm pledge for withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South.

Kissinger was said earlier to believe the North Vietnamese were adamant in their refusal to agree formally to a troop withdrawal.

Kissinger is to resume the secret peace talks with the North Vietnamese in Paris Monday.

In Saigon, meanwhile, Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said of Duc's meeting today that there have been some "changes and evolution," resulting from the Paris talks.

Saying many points remain to be settled, Lam said there is no timetable yet for signing of a ceasefire agreement.

Principal among the points to be resolved, he said, is the demand by the South Vietnamese for a withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops.

Canada Will Await International Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada will hold up its decision on joining a Vietnam ceasefire supervisory commission until it learns the results of an international conference that won't convene for 30 days after the fighting stops, a diplomatic source said Tuesday.

The Canadian position could pop up a crimp in United States planning since U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger wants a supervisory apparatus in place when a ceasefire goes into effect.

The source, who would not allow his name nor nationality to be disclosed, said Canada has several conditions on joining the proposed new operation.

These conditions include freedom of mobility for the four-country supervisory commission, freedom for each member to report its findings as its sees it, and a guarantee that all four parties in the fighting wants Canadian participation.

Any decision to increase the staff of the ICC delegation will be made unilaterally...by Canada, he said.

Provincial Welfare Ministers Want Far-reaching Reforms

VICTORIA (CP) — Provincial welfare ministers expressed general dissatisfaction Tuesday with Canada's existing income security and social assistance programs and called for far-reaching reform of social policy.

In a communique issued at the end of a two-day conference, the ministers said existing programs do not focus on the eradication of poverty and tend to discourage people from entering the labor market.

To achieve the necessary revamping of social programs, the ministers called upon the federal government to convene a federal-provincial conference before the spring of 1973 to develop social policy on a comprehensive basis.

The discussion should encompass the broad range of programs and program proposals including income security, manpower, unemployment insurance job activity, hard to hire income earners and other related matters.

The meeting was attended by welfare ministers from all the provinces except Newfoundland. Both provinces, however, sent representatives.

Several of the provinces had, during the conference, pushed for more provincial jurisdiction over social programs and the ministers' statement reinforced that stand, saying the provinces should be given the right to develop their own income security and social welfare programs.

These programs, whatever their source of financing must be determined in the first instance, through provincial initiative," the statement said, and added that in order to back up these initiatives, there should be a reallocation of financial resources".

The ministers said this would give the provinces sufficient resources to help them carry out their constitutional responsibilities for social policies.".

The ministers further stated that the elimination of poverty is the common objective of all provincial income security policies and in this context family allowances, personal development of the poor and more effective work incentives are the priorities.

The ministers agreed, that the provinces should have the option without financial loss to administer the family allowance programs within the provincial social security system.

The provinces believe that training programs, increased labor mobility, work incentives, increased job opportunities and better manpower services are among the obvious larger scale tools to assist low income earners," the statement said.

Watchdog Killed, Hunt Dogs Stolen

The last collection of strayed dogs on Nov. 27, 1972 Quinte - area deer hunt arrived in Belleville yesterday — short two dots, stolen by thieves who axed a watchdog to death at a Millbridge holding pound.

The dogs were taken late Monday night from the home of Douglas Richardson, just east of Highway 62, about 15 miles north of Madoc.

Mr. Richardson operates one of three pounds in North Hastings County for the East - Central Ontario Association of Sportsmen. Strayed hunting dogs are held at the pounds for possible reclamation by owners before being transferred to the Ontario Humane Society shelter just west of Belleville.

Tom Helm, chairman of the association's dog pound committee — formed from local fish and game clubs — described the theft as "shocking".

He said the Richardson dog apparently was killed because it interfered with theft of the impounded dogs. The animal was a "good watchdog".

"When a man is good enough to operate a pound to keep these dogs out of the bush, this kind of thing is going too far," he said.

The association also operates holding pounds at Gilmour and south of Bancroft at L'Amable where strayed, untagged dogs are held during and after the hunting season.

In all, five hounds were transferred to the OHS shelter yesterday — making 12 in the past week, the total reclaimed pets at the north - country pounds.

The OHS keeps the dogs one week then puts them up for adoption.

The owner of one hound — its ear bearing the tattoo Robin — should claim his pet as soon as possible, say OHS officials. It's a female — and it's ready to produce a litter.

City Now Has Bylaw Restricting Highrises

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Regulations controlling the construction of new multiple family dwellings in large sections of Belleville are now in effect.

Quinte planning board officials learned yesterday that the Ontario Municipal Board approved bylaw 9189 at a meeting Nov. 15. This land-use bylaw was passed by city council last February but had to await OMB approval before going into force.

Developers of new buildings in most of pre-annexation Belleville (the city area prior to 1959) must now provide 1.25 parking spaces per dwelling unit. One space per unit was required previously.

Another term of the bylaw provides that multiple dwellings must not cover more than 50 percent of the lot area.

A restriction is now imposed on front yard parking for new apartment buildings — parking must be to the side or rear of the building.

Apartment blocks must be set back at least 12 feet from the street property line and the rear yard area must be a minimum of 25 feet deep.

The minimum size of a parking space is defined as being not less than 180 sq. ft.

And where apartment parking lots are adjacent to residential single family properties, they must be separated by a 10-foot strip of land.

Frank Stokmans, deputy planning director of Quinte Planning Board, emphasizes, "we can still have apartments but apartment developers will now be subject to proper requirements."

The Ontario Municipal Board was willing to accept the restrictions as an interim measure — until the new official plan for the city is approved. However, they were unwilling to impose more restrictive rulings before the official plan is completed.

Indirectly, having the new regulations take effect will prevent some undesirable apartment construction, says Mr. Stokmans.

"Some lots are obviously rushed out, so hurriedly it will have an effect," he explains.

The regulations are an answer to the loop-holes in old land-use bylaw 6495 that dated from 1953, the days before highrise buildings here.

At that time, says Mr. Stokmans, the phrase multiple family dwelling was more likely to refer to a large house split into apartment units. No separate category was made for highrise apartments — they have been treated like any other multiple family dwelling.

The regulations will only apply to old pre-1959 Belleville areas zoned for multiple family dwellings. However, this so-called Zone B covers most of the old residential East and West Hills.

Action Requested On 1968 Complaint

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council Monday night urged deputy clerk Arden Royce to look into the question of having the provincial ministry of natural resources conduct a flooding survey plant in the Wooler Road area.

First dealt with in a letter from residents of the area dated Dec. 5, 1968, the matter has been considered bodied until this time. In the letter, accompanied by a petition of 30 signatures, residents complained lack of storm sewers, ditches running with five feet of spring runoff water, and speed limit of 25 m.p.h. be enforced between the school and the subway; a speed limit of 25 m.p.h. on Front Street from Davis to the CN level crossing; and look into the question of having the provincial ministry of natural resources conduct a flooding survey plant in the Wooler Road area.

A letter in reply, dated Dec. 12, 1968, was forwarded by the town. It said town works commissioner Arie Hoornweg had been authorized to investigate the situation and recommend a solution. The reply concluded "it is likely no action can be taken until the commencement of the new year."

In introducing both letters, Councillor Paul Tripp said the annual spring runoff from Mayhew Creek presents a problem, claiming no further action has been taken since building of council's Dec. 12, 1968 letter.

He urged the ministry conduct a survey of Mayhew Creek and its tributaries.

Response Is Slow To On-job Training

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Joe Campbell is branching out in business.

It's all due to a federal program, which, so far, has attracted few Belleville employers.

A year ago Joe started his one-man welding operation on Sidney township's second concession, after years as foreman for a Belleville firm.

Now he's hiring an apprentice.

It may not be a major local economic event. But it has its own significance.

Campbell Welding has become the first Belleville-area business approved to take this year's federal Training On the Job program.

It means Joe can hire an extra hand long before he planned, without straining finances, while simultaneously creating a job.

It's a capsule example of what the federal program is all about. But, as yet, Belleville employers have evinced little interest in it, say Canada Manpower officials who process the program locally.

The on-job training scheme is designed to provide opportunities for workers to learn skills and also gives the employer a chance to prepare for future expansion by training unemployed — but employable — workers for future jobs.

The program can run from six to 52 weeks. During the first half of the training period Manpower pays 75 per cent of the wages and 50 per cent during its second half.

With such incentives, it's hoped jobs will be created earlier than anticipated.

For example: "If an employer plans on hiring a person next year, we may hire him now and we will help pay the cost," explains Belleville Manpower counsellor Susan Brôll.

"It's to create a new job— not to subsidize a vacancy an employer would have anyway."

But H. W. Karn, manager of the Belleville Manpower centre, told the Belleville and District Employment Committee, he was concerned at the seemingly tardy reaction of local employers to the program, despite wide advertising.

"Surely businessmen can see the advantage of it," he said.

Regional Manpower officials in Toronto keep calling about the slow response from the Belleville area "but we can't force employers into this thing if they don't want it," he said.

Manpower counsellor Susan Brôll, who supervises program applications in the Belleville district, says so far only eight companies have filed requests. Last year, the Belleville area produced 30 on-job training contracts involving 99 trainees.

Besides the Campbell application, Mrs. Brôll says she has forwarded only about eight other applications to regional headquarters for approval.

"It doesn't look like that many — considering all the employers in Belleville. It's an expanding city and has lots of employers who should be able to take advantage of it."

One reason for the lackluster response could be that businessmen feel the application procedure is complicated and time-consuming. But there is little paperwork involved — and it's all done with Manpower assistance.

Manpower even interviews the potential job applicants and — if needed — can help set up the actual training program.

The program is flexible on numbers and applications need not involve a large trainee force. Even one hiring is sufficient — like Joe Campbell's.

Joe, who applied after hearing a radio blurb on the program, says it benefits both businessmen and workers seeking a job.

"I can expand now instead of waiting until I have more capital. It's only one job — but it wouldn't have been available for another year."

A big attraction is that he can train a man for up to 46 weeks "the way I want him trained — and I hope to keep him in the company after the grant incentive period."

Deadline for applications is Dec. 31 — although Mrs. Brôll says it's best to file for approval as soon as possible.

There's no exclusiveness about the kind of training involved. Last year the program put more than 42,000 Canadians to work learning new skills in industries ranging from knitting mills to oyster hatcheries.

City Will Back Disposal Study

The city of Belleville will support the concept of a waste management study for the Quinte area.

This was agreed Monday as city council approved a recommendation from the council solid waste disposal and sludge committee.

Alderman Jean Smith, as chairman of the special committee, told council the proposal was to do an area study taking in Prince Edward county and certain southern Hastings county townships.

Cost of the study is estimated at $20,000, half of which would be paid by the province. The recommendation called for the Ministry of the Environment to subsidize the study to whatever extent possible.

Mayor J. Russell Scott commended Alderman Smith for her work and interest regarding solid waste disposal.

Eventually, he said, the sanitary land fill site in Sidney township now being used by the city will be filled, and without such a study on waste disposal the city could be faced with no place to put its garbage.

"It is only proper planning," he said, noting that garbage disposal at a site where it could leach into the bay would no longer be tolerated.

Signs on Poles Stir Complaints

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's bylaw governing posting of election signs on municipal utility poles came under fire Monday night, at the last regular session of town council before the Dec. 4 election.

Retiring Councillor E. M. Parker told council at least one candidate for public office is making use of utility poles on which to post election posters. He asked that a letter be sent requesting their removal.

Mayor Duncan McDonald replied that under the bylaw, it would appear that if permission had been sought and granted, the signs could remain. Town clerk O. W. Larry said complaints had been received, and appropriate letters had been sent.

However, he said, the bylaw is not firm on whether council has the final say, or whether the Public Utilities Commission has.

Council was told that the person in question claimed federal and provincial contestants in recent elections have made full use of PUC poles, and he didn't feel he should be treated differently. Councillor George Greer said he agreed if one type of poster is allowed, all should be.

Councillor Parker replied that "under the circumstances, that bylaw isn't worth the powder to blow it up."

Council voted to have the town administration board study the bylaw and determine if a more effective bylaw need be prepared to govern posting of political, commercial or other signs.

Hospital-area Parking Is Tabled by Council

City council has tabled a traffic bylaw calling for a two-hour parking limit on streets adjacent to Belleville General Hospital.

The tabling motion came following presentation of a brief by hospital employee Anthony Gray who said the restricting bylaw was a direct discrimination against hospital workers.

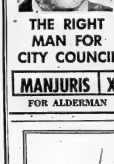
The two-hour parking restriction had been recommended by the city traffic committee following complaints of residents in the hospital area who said that the parking of hospital workers' cars was posing a threat to children.

Mr. Gray said hospital workers fully understood the feeling of residents but claimed the problem was one of planning lack on the part of the hospital board.

He said the proposed parking garage would not answer the immediate parking needs.

Mayor J. Russell Scott agreed that more parking was needed at the hospital but suggested that paid parking was not the answer.

"We need the garage and I hope that it will be free parking," he said.



Alderman Robin Jeffrey said the bylaw also discriminated against residents in the Dufferin Ave. area who did not want two-hour parking.

On recommendation of Aldermen Gerald Joyce, the parking bylaw was tabled to allow a meeting between the hospital parking committee and a special committee from city council.

CFB Divers Raise Antique Anchor

CFB Trenton Yacht Club will soon be graced with a 100-year-old anchor, raised from Lake Ontario near Nicholson's Island.

Four members of the CFB Trenton Flying Frogmen SCUBA Club recovered the big anchor while searching for one of the many old sailing ships known to have sunk around the island 6ast of Presqu'ile. The anchor is made of iron, weighs between 1,200 and 1,400 pounds and measures 7 feet, 8 inches by 8 feet 8 inches. It has not been determined from what ship the anchor came, but it dates back to the mid-1800s.

John Gower of CFB Yacht Club and members of the SCUBA club brought the anchor 25 miles from Nicholson Island, through the Murray Canal and down the Bay of Quinte to the yacht club, where it was raised to land by a crane. It is now being treated for rot and rust.

Earlier this year, three members of the SCUBA club, Murph Irving, Don Salgie and Wayne Denton, located a wreck off Cedardale Beach, believed to be Pioneer. Pioneer, a two masted schooner, plied Lake Ontario in the late 1800s and foundered in a storm. It is one of five old sailing ships located in the Presqu'ile area by divers.

Y's Community Role

The Belleville Family YMCA, we believe, has a place in this community that outweighs the setback the organization has received from the withdrawal, as from the beginning of 1964, of financial aid from the United Community Services.

Largely overlooked by the UCS in its decision is the very real contribution that the Y makes toward community recreational life through its programs.

A sampling from this year's schedule includes the popular summer day camp at Vanderwater Park, which benefited more than 100 children. Swimming and water safety courses have also been held as usual and another course initiated was in judo. Canada Fitness testing was another feature of the year's activities, as was running of a day-care centre.

It is idle to pretend of course that the Y does not face difficult problems. These will become more intense with withdrawal of UCS support. Only recently the Y had embarked on a membership campaign. Now still more members will be required, in addition to further economies plus efforts to raise funds by other means.

Financial insolvency is a phenomenon that is not exclusive to organizations like the Y. For better or worse, it extends right through society and the operations of Government. It is not something to be encouraged, but nor should organizations that have something of value to offer the community shirk from this initiative simply because success may not lie at the end of the rainbow. We mention again in this regard the incomparable Expo 67 and the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

The United Community Services organization is not above criticism either. There is questioning of its dispensations for salaries, property and direct services and, so far as the Y is concerned, of its lack of recognition of the latter's positive achievements.

The objective of solvency of necessity must be paramount, but there is room also for positive attitudes and understanding by the community and its agencies of the Y's role in this community. There is no time for divisiveness or rancor. Rather the community should lend its support to those agencies and programs that are of real substance and value for our citizens. It may be mentioned in passing that inability to pay the Y fee — and this applies mainly to our young people — is no barrier to participation. The Y has channels to cover this situation and it means that youngsters can benefit who would not otherwise be in a position to do so.

Rules of the Road

Few are the drivers who have not had to take evasive action to avoid collision and, not infrequently, older boys and girls who use roadways and avenues as a rights-of-way and play areas.

We are accustomed to this practice and the way the kids play the game — for often it is just that — it boils down to a matter of one-upmanship. In the case of the youngsters it is, "dare us to get out of the way," and in the case of drivers, it is a case of keeping a sharp look out and not getting too upset about the confrontation.

It may be some drivers are not so understanding and blast their way past with more blaring, in which case it is simply a case of adult impatience with youthful hangup. One is as neurotic as the other.

However, the whole situation is manifestly dangerous — and so common that no one hitherto has bothered to do anything about controlling it. By last week though Sodney Pyecroft of Wright Avenue had become sufficiently concerned to put the matter before the traffic and light committee. Mr. Coyne, who made some suggestions, is to be commended for his action and it is all the more encouraging that he is to discuss the matter further with the police here.

Police and safety officers though are powerless without the co-operation of parents and young people. Parents in the first instance must ensure that their offspring obey the rules of the road. Failure to do so could lead, as Mr. Coyne has been at pains to point out, to tragedy.

New Zealand Musters Support Against Bomb Tests

France Will Feel Pressure from 'Pacific Rim' Lands

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

"Pacific Rim" is a phrase we are going to hear more about in the years directly ahead. For the moment, it is used largely by business communities in Canada, the United States and Japan who see the many and diverse nations bordering on the Pacific Ocean as the largest single market of the future.

In Vancouver, Seattle or San Francisco, "Pacific Rim" is now part of the local language, taking on greater strength than ever before as Washington slowly but surely extricates the long-closed doors to Sino-American trade.

President Nixon's recent announcement permitting American ships and aircraft to again service mainland China (after approval from Peking), makes the "Pacific Rim" concept not only Pacific-oriented, but Asia-Oriented.

Japan, the only major capitalistic society in Asia, has boosted this concept of doing business around the Pacific, partly because the huge Communist China market was closed to her. Even that is no longer true as Japan's first major trade mission to China since the 1930s talks up big trade prospects this week in Peking.

But "Pacific Rim" also means Australia and New Zealand, as well as third world countries like giant, resource-rich Indonesia, the troubled Philippine republic and key European Pacific dependencies and territories like New Caledonia.

It's still under French colonial rule, but holds the world's largest known deposits of lateritic nickel—that is nickel which can be mined from surface facilities —refined locally and sold for less than nickel lifted out of Canada's hard rock nickel facilities. About 500 million pounds of nickel annually could come from New Caledonia.

And then there are major South American nations also bordering on the "Pacific Rim." These include Marxist Chile and socialist Peru, two countries ruled by strongly, anti-capitalistic republics which nevertheless must still seek markets for their basic natural resources exports.

Some curious internal relationships have built up between "Pacific Rim" countries with nothing much more in common than the geographical fact the Pacific Ocean washes their coastlines.

Chile finds Australia a convenient place to send young Chileans to learn management and engineering skills. Since President Allende's Marxists were voted into office in September, 1970, Australia, claimed chiefly in private enterprise, have fled Australia to maintain their same kind of employment in a non-Marxist society.

The "Pacific Rim" idea began with the tourist trade and its idea of many exotic tours of the Pacific Ocean countries, including Fiji and Tahiti, as a new way to earn tourist dollars. That concept is in now a major tourist dollar earner, with Fijians, for one, deeply concerned about the proliferation of large hotels in their fabled and once untouched islands.

But that curious, internal country-to-country relationship mentioned earlier is about to take nastier, less-friendly directions. New Zealand's newly-elected left wing Labor Party is going to mobilize official support from enough "Pacific Rim" nations to stop the next French nuclear arms test in the south Pacific.

They will get support. Peru for one had broken diplomatic relations with France over her refusal to end Pacific nuclear bomb tests.

Ideological differences will be no barrier. Both Japan and the right wing Philippine government have protested to Paris most in the unusually against French bomb tests, so far without success.

Evolutionary Theory And Laws of Science at Odds

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In my recent letter regarding the theory of evolution, I had a brief note on modern dating methods, also on the second law of thermodynamics. To be more specific and in keeping with Prof. J. L. Whitelaw, a further comment will clear up some details.

"The second law of thermodynamics states that everything is becoming more and more disorganized that everything tends to become simpler, more random, more disordered; that things are getting old and wearing out; that the universe is running down."

The theory of evolution teaches that there is a universal tendency for things to become better organized, more complex, more highly specialized and adopted."

Thus the theory of evolution is in total opposition to one of the most reliable laws of science.

If evolution were true, there should be literally myriads of transitional forms in the fossil record, showing stages of development of animals — there is none.

If evolution were true and man has had a million years of history on earth, the world population should be now over 10 000 000 000. This is followed by 5,000 zeros.

All that is known mathematically about the long time spans, the random changes and alleged evolutionary trends of the theory of evolution has been programmed and fed into super computers. The result — computers jam. The mathematicians on this basis say that the theory is false.

A new method of dating using the radioactive element carbon — 14 (invented by Dr. Libby in 1947 for which he received the Nobel Prize), shows human and animal fossils, coal, oil and remains of other once living things to be only a few thousand years old compared with the hundreds of thousands and millions of years assumed by evolutionists.

It should be of interest to note that this dating method is in complete accordance with Biblical time, that is the Genesis flood 4340 years ago and creation about 7,000 years ago.

'Conflict' Issue Remains Controversial

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I agree wholeheartedly with the letters published recently in The Intelligencer regarding the Conflict of Interest issue in the city.

Again at the city council meeting of Nov. 6, as reported in The Intelligencer, on Nov. 7, Alderman Soutter renewed his charges, adding documentation of city hall records, showing a definite conflict of interest concerning properties owned by Mayor Scott.

For Mayor Scott simply to dismiss these charges by demanding the resignation of Alderman Soutter and Alderman Jeffrey is no answer at all, especially since Alderman Jeffrey is his only opponent in the mayoralty contest, and Alderman Sopiter has announced that he will not be running, so he would not be seeking re-election in the council in next month's municipal vote.

It is interesting to note that on Nov. 13, Mayor Scott was made an honorary member of the Municipal Homebuilder's Association, and that the retiring president of the Quinte Homebuilders, James Driscoll, urged those in attendance to "get out and vote for Mayor Scott," as reported in The Intelligencer the following day.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the Mayor and council of Belleville will not emulate that of Toronto, whose wholesale giveaways of public property and public interest has been well documented by a series of articles this past week in The Globe and Mail, and also by a spate of new books on urban planning on the same theme, by several urban planners and writers in the Toronto area, as reported in The Toronto Star, Nov. 4 Book Section.

Developments should and must take place, but surely with some proper long-range planning and with workable bylaws governing zoning and building restrictions, which are enforceable and enforced. That they are not so at present is obvious in the incongruity of a 14-storey apartment building towering over the attractive, well-planned and maintained Fenton Park area, or the dignified old buildings and parklike grounds of Albert College. I am sure the residents of Bridge St. E. and the East Hill generally feel an equal pang at the sight of a large apartment building springing up in the midst of an area of gracious old homes. And the governing fear of the public is "where next" Zoning laws are apparently no protection, and the Mayor seems to feel that Mayor Scott is on their side. So the question is:

MAYOR FOR WHICH PEOPLE

A 'Domineering Administration': Senior Citizen

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The spoilers will soon be moving in . . . and will convert the acres around into a retreat for tax elderly people. I am one of the several showing a taxable income, and keep my home on Wellington Green, where 25 per cent are elderly.

I feel we are discriminated against, and forced into association living by a domineering administration, during the past four years. My taxes have advanced 60 per cent. In a few more years we will be forced out of our home, the one we have taken pride in and means so much as a haven of peace and tranquility in our old age.

From 1967 to 1972 our city has been turned into a disaster area — one of frustration — we have read headline after headline about one peaceful section of the city after another being grabbed up by council rezoning for multiple dwellings regardless of petitions, deputations and pleadings by the land owners affected. All this is done for the benefit of certain developers, who apparently have influence with the personnel who are looking after such matters.

Let us visualize the two acres on which (originally) was planned, seven single dwellings, and was not to touch the creek. Now there are to be built 90 units of controlled rent homes (subsidized) also 90 parking places, plus 20 according to the bylaw, which makes 100 cars.

Our experience on the West Hill, where there are several multiple dwellings, the tenants use the streets as a relief of congestion from the apartments; on Charlotte Street now, since the subdivision increased from 25 to 75, at times there is only one lane. With the proposed development, the underground facilities such as sewer and water, as well as fire protection would be overtaxed. The PUC appears to have considerable trouble now in this area.

Quite aptly this land was designated for a greenbelt area because of its topography location and its unsuitability to develop than the developer could get out of the project. Thus the original idea of highrise was out, also single dwellings. Some one must have interested the OHC as the government is the only one with an inexhaustible treasury chest and able to purchase same at the exorbitant price asked by the owners.

We are entering on a new era for 1973-74. Will it be the same old thing; can't we stop Belleville being a Satellite city? The rules of Toronto and Ottawa recommend a limit of 30,000 population. We are above that now, and should call a halt and escape the grief caused by deterioration of transportation, crime and pollution.

What about taxes! Are such buildings given special consideration, and for how long? If this is the case, will the burden on the fixed income group, who are struggling now to the limit.

Have we the ratepayers of the city, but control of the politicie, which protected us against exorbitant spending?

Remember Dec. 4. It will be the only day for the next two years that you will be able to exercise your franchise. Please don't make Belleville a depot for other congested areas.

'Smear Campaign' Criticized

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I hope you will forgive the liberty that I have taken with your letter heading "Smear Campaign" known works:

Our city is a great success
But successes are not made
By saying "Oh how great we are"
And sitting in the shade.

I am sure that people could aptly be applied to the efforts of our present Mayor Scott.

A man of such proven ability and integrity as to be recognized by the mayors of Ontario as a leader among themselves.

A man who, during the term of his office, has led the city through one of its most successful periods.

What a pity for such a man to be subjected to a smear campaign and aside unproven insinuations. What price politics!! We read of such problems south of us with distaste.

What is even a greater pity is the possibility of losing such a man the strength of such unproven accusations.

If we were all to be judged on the remarks of someone competing for our position and not our productions we would end up with convincing talkers and no producers.

A CONCERNED BELLEVILLIAN

Vote for Dr. Scott

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing to endorse the election of Dr. J. Russell Scott as Mayor of Belleville for another term.

Under Dr. Scott's leadership Belleville has built the Foster Street bridge in which we take both pleasure and pride. The entrance to our city bows been made inviting. The sewage disposal plant is now adequate for pollution control and we have increased our capacity for water purification. These are major improvements in the physical standard of living. These are "for all the people". They in turn will be very critical in the city's growth. We need a mayor who is experienced to deal with the problems that will inevitably present themselves. We need a mayor who will protect Belleville's interests in Toronto and Ottawa. We need a mayor who is his own man.

Telling It Like It Is

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I studied Alderman Keegan's recent article in a local newspaper with relish and delight. In the article, Alderman Keegan applauded himself for alleged achievements in his term re-election — at any rate, I guess re-election was on his mind.

The article left no doubt about one fact, however, and that is excessive Belleville, literacy is no longer a pre-requisite for political candidacy.

Well done, Alderman Keegan! You told it like it is.

Police Converge On Belleville

More than 150 law-enforcement officers from across the province will converge in Belleville Wednesday for the Police Association of Ontario's quarterly convention.

This will be the first time the convention has been held here with at least one delegate coming from every municipal police force in Ontario. Some representatives will also be coming from provincial police detachments.

Beginning 10 a.m. in the Four Seasons Hotel, business sessions will cover general work ethics, recent changes in legislation regarding police responsibilities, death penalty and discussion on bargaining problems.

A spokesman for the Belleville Police Department explained pay or benefit would not be an issue but effective solutions to bargaining problems would be outlined during the one-day seminar.

Sid Brown, Toronto police man and president of both the provincial and national police association, will be chairman for the sessions. Mr. Brown, earlier in his career on the Toronto force, gained notoriety for holding a tin cup while in uniform, protesting police pay scales.

Since then he has also served with the North American Police Association.

The Belleville Police Commission and some city dignitaries have been invited to a luncheon during the convention, which will conclude late in the afternoon.

Successful Living

Sentimental Gifts Enjoyed By Giver and Receiver

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am glad you and so many readers liked my little poem "Dual Personality".

You might like to use the following one some time. It came to me as I handled the golden chain which my dearest friend had given me for Christmas just before she died.

The little gift we give
Of lives and forms a link
When we are gone —
A golden chain of memory
Each time it's looked upon.
Ah yes, the gift of yesteryear
May well be immortality
'Twixt thee and me.
— V.A.

Dear V.A.: Such a thought will strike a responsive chord for many of us. And it may also prompt some loving souls to give away, now, some prized heirloom to an admiring niece or grandson, and have the privilege of watching their enjoyment of it while all still live.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am concerned about that mother of five children who wrote to you in such desperation, with nervous trouble. She was even contemplating suicide because of her condition.

Her letter sounded so reminiscent of how I felt 18 years ago, with three small children. I finally had a complete nervous breakdown.

A very kind doctor did a six-hour glucose test on me and found me to have hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). I was put on vitamins and a special diet and began to feel better than I had for years.
— Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Funny thing but I have two other letters reading just about like yours, and with the same concern for the woman who signed herself "Four Terrible Years".

In each case there existed the same nervous fatigue, the same desperation, the same thoughts of suicide. And in all three cases, after much delay a diagnosis of hypoglycemia turned out to be the right one. Then there was treatment with drugs and diet and a return to health.

I have passed on the messages, and hope that some physical trouble may be discovered as the trigger which has caused F.T.Y. all these depressing mental symptoms.

Dear Doris: First of all I want to thank you very much for the letter that you printed in the many papers — The request for stars off whiskey bottles.

The response was just wonderful! So many letters and parcels of stars from wonderful kind hearts from far and near. Over 3000 stars and at least 65 letters; I have sent thank you notes to everyone.

My sister is so happy over the stars and will have lots to work with now, filling in many long hours. — Collecting Stars.

Dear Collecting: I knew it — from the letters I saw passing through here, and from my past experience with our readers.

Please give all our good wishes to your sister.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Will Mom's tears curb teen delinquency?

NO, not if those tears are for Mother rather than for her teenager; and usually, they are, since many a mother seems more concerned about how the teenager's trouble is going to affect her than she is about how it will affect her youngster. If a teenager, however, seeing his mother cry, really believed those tears were for him and his plight, he may resolve never again to give his mother cause to weep over him.

Does a good husband worry about infidelity?

IF GOOD means a husband who loves his wife and is sure that she loves him, he won't ever worry about being unfaithful to her or her being unfaithful to him. There is no doubt, however, that he may specialize about an extramarital "dalliance" and he also realizes his wife may have similar thoughts. But their love for each other is what will always not only help him remain faithful* but keep him wanting to be faithful.

Is it best to boost on job applications?

NO; but neither does it do any good to soft-pedal accomplishments and assets when applying for a job. Actually, it is difficult to do much more than tell the plain truth on today's job applications which are partially designed to elicit the truth in the simplest manner from job applicants. Those who submit applications that are filled out accurately and completely usually get the greatest consideration.

CALGARY (CP) — Despite some expressions of approval, a move to allow ordination of women as priests was shelved indefinitely here by delegates to a diocesan synod meeting of southern Alberta Anglicans.

Ann Landers

Quiet Mums Avoid Truth About Dirty Old Men

Dear Ann Landers: Are you going to deal with this problem in print and help thousands of young people who don't know what to do or whom to turn to? If will you play it safe and duck it? Wall see.

The problem is young girls who are molested by their fathers and stepfathers. What if a girl tells her mother and then the mother doesn't believe it? Or worse yet, what if the mother knows it's true but is afraid to say anything?

Too often the family feels sorry for the old man because he's an alcoholic and gets drunk and doesn't know what he's doing. Or maybe he's mentally "unbalanced," which is supposed to make it "not his fault."

Drunk or sober, insane or not, rich or poor, what do you think ought to be done about these men? And what should be done about mothers who know what's going on but protect the molester at the expense of the child? Someone like you should deal with this hideous problem. How about it?—Treating You

Dear Treating: I have dealt with this problem—many times—and I will continue to do so. First, not every girl who complains is telling the truth. Some are indulging in fantasies and others are seductive little sexpots in competition with their mothers.

My advice is the same to all girls who are bothered by a dirty old man—be it father, step-father, brother, cousin, a "funny uncle" or neighbor. Here it is again: Tell me if he ever comes near you again that you will tell your mother. But you must mean it. If your mother refuses to get him to a counsellor and he continues to bother you, go to an aunt, a teacher, a minister, a doctor, anyone who will listen. If you really don't want a lecherous male who is unquestionably sick in the head to molest you, you can see to it that he doesn't.

Dear Ann Landers: I was disgusted with that letter from Omaha. I always thought you saw the kid's point of view but maybe I was wrong. You found room in your column for that mid-term blast. I hope you can find room for my letter.

Always we hear plaintive cries of parents: "Why don't you earn some money? Get off our backs. Make yourself useful." I would like to offer some suggestions to these same adults who seem to know lots of ways teens can improve themselves.

Instead of asking us to do so many things, why don't you remove the storm windows, rake the leaves, shovel the snow, learn you to cook, scrub floors, read to a blind person or tutor a handicapped child?

Instead of thinking up "constructive activities" for teen-agers, why don't you stay home once in awhile and bake something, cook something or sew something? Get off the phone. Pass up a bridge game, and when you get through with your housework and responsibilities to your family, you can go to the nearest park and pick up the litter. It will be good for your waistline. Most of you are too darned fat.—Advice From A Teenager.

Dear Teenager: Here's your letter and I must say there is a lot of truth in it. Especially your last sentence.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer of RR 1 Trenton wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elaine to Don Thomas Brodie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brodie, Trenton. The marriage will take place on December 20, 1972 at 7 p.m. in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton.

Regional Advisor Speaks At B and P Women's Club

"Let us set our goals and standards high, as well as daily enriching our knowledge and enlarging our abilities. It is not enough to have in one's head today nothing more than was there yesterday," emphasized Mary Lockhart, Regional Advisor, Region 1, Ontario Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Lockhart, a former school teacher in Tyendinaga and Belleville addressed the local B and P Women's Club at a recent meeting held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn and was introduced by Joy Nichols a charter member and past president of the club.

The speaker dealt in particular with publicity and public relations and felt that clubs in general must widen their horizons. This is mainly done by sending as many delegates as possible as well as observers to conferences at all levels. "This is where progress is made — new plans formed and resolutions aired, passed or rejected," she remarked.

Continuing, Mrs. Lockhart related some of the aims and objectives of the club and how these can be promoted. Firstly, warmth and friendship will go a long way. Serving the community is an important role for, all members and from there to branch out to all types of work in aid of one's fellow man.

The regional advisor has had the privilege of serving on the committee for the Ugandan Asians who have been arriving in Ottawa. Nine such committees, in various centres across Canada have been set up — Ottawa being but one.

In conclusion the speaker dealt with the status of women and maintained that all must work on resolutions to this end until, "We are listened to."

She also felt that club histories should be kept up to date. "Many clubs have not updated their histories since 1967" she said. Through the course of her talk she recited two meaningful poems, and also commended three local clubs — namely, Dorothy Brown, Ruth McMullen and Dorothy Ellis for having accepted the challenge of service on the Provincial Board.

Bettie Anderson expressed thanks to the speaker, and following the meeting as chairman of the ways and means she conducted a bake sale and white elephant table.

Next October a regional meeting will be held at Arnprior and at this time the sponsoring of a young career woman will be discussed and brought up at the '73 Canadian Federation meeting. The next provincial conference will be held in Sault Ste. Marie with an expected attendance of 200.

President Marian McFaul conducted the meeting and during business it was decided that the club would continue its Christmas project — the Vi Burwash Basket which will again be given to a needy family. It was noted that four members of the club presented bursaries at four high school graduation ceremonies.

The December meeting will be held a week earlier than the usual time and will take the form of an old fashioned Christmas dinner with an exchange of handmade gifts.

Nursery Rhymes Bad

TORONTO (SP) — Nursery rhymes came under attack here recently. Sherrill Cheda, a Seneca College librarian and a champion of women's rights, told a conference that she had read more than 700 nursery rhymes and she hadn't found one that didn't portray women as "stupid, fearful and addled."

Child Resources

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government should set up a special bureau of child development, says Kevric Marshall, the national director of the Canadian Save the Children Fund. "We must recognize in national planning that the child is our greatest national resource," M a r s h a l l said in an interview.

'Small' Dog Ideal!

TORONTO (CP) — One thing about a dog, you may choose one to suit your living conditions.

Anita Chapman says that is the first thing you should consider when you choose a pet.

"Smaller dogs adapt best to apartments," she said. "They don't need the exercise a big dog does. If you're away from home a lot, they can be trained to use litter boxes or deodorized pads in the bathroom.

"A larger dog needs exercise. If you're not prepared to walk them twice a day, you shouldn't get one. They can be trained, too, but in a basement, not in a bathroom."

Mrs. Chapman owns the Dog Bath and Boutique, a doggy grooming centre, and a pet shop.

She said some dogs, however small, have more difficulty with apartment life than others.

"If you're going to live in an apartment, you shouldn't choose a dog that's noted for barking or screaming. Terriers are noisy. A toy poodle is intelligent and can soon learn the difference between familiar footsteps and someone going to another apartment."

There are other considerations besides noise and size.

"Poodles need grooming at least every two weeks because hair gets in their eyes or their ears need cleaning.

"Dogs should visit the vets at least once a year for distemper, rabies. A dog should have a rabies shot at least a month before you travel with him.

"People seem to think rabies is only needed when you go up north, but it's found in city parks and ravines, too."

If you have a small child, Mrs. Chapman says you should wait before you buy a dog, and don't get one during the Christmas excitement.

"Children have no way of understanding that little animal bones are brittle and can be dislocated easily."

If you do most of your pet's ordinary grooming yourself, Mrs. Chapman said there are a range of shampoos and combs and brushes to help both you and the dog.

"There are some very good shampoos, some medicated, some mild. There are tearless shampoos for dogs with hair on their faces. There are cream rinses for the tangled coats."

If you buy a pedigreed dog, the seller should tell you how to look after it. If you're not sure, there are books and vets and grooming shops that will tell you and sell you equipment designed for use on various breeds.

"Grooming has to be done regularly, once every week or two weeks for brushing and combing. People let it go six or eight months. The cocker is one of the most difficult dogs to keep groomed. They are the worst looked after; then samoyeds and English sheep dogs.

"I think sellers won't explain their upkeep because they're afraid of losing sales. We get cockers whose pads are sore because their paws haven't been cleaned or the hair kept trimmed.

"When you give a long-haired dog a bath the main thing to remember is that it must be brushed and combed first and then again while it's still damp.

"And you do it like your own hair, you don't scrub.

Five Year Warranty on big, tough Gold Seal Motor
The KitchenAid motor, the heart of the dishwasher, is so strong and reliable, that we give a 5 year guarantee against failure. Should it fail during the first year, we repair or replace it free of charge. You are charged only for labour during the following four years.

Libbers' Pay Gloomy

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The ting the headlines. On a world-wide basis, women are believed to earn on average 27 per cent to get support for the principle less than men.

But a fundamental problem is that the vast majority of rank-and-file trade unionists are men, many of whom are not likely to take strike action to support their women colleagues.

The key factor became clear at a recent three-day international conference here organized by the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU), which for years has campaigned for equal pay for men and women doing work of equal value.

But ICFTU chief Otto Kersten said:

"There are still too many men who find it hard to accept that women can receive the same pay for work of equal value, and this sometimes complicates the task of the trade unions, where men are usually in the majority," the report said.

The feeling at the Brussels equal pay conference was that not enough women are willing to become really involved in the trade union movement, even in those industries such as textiles where they are in the majority.

The claim is a well-worn demand that has been gaining ground ever since the women's liberation movement began hitched with the express purposes of bringing the equal pay problem home to the public.

The meeting was organized by battle drawn up for the Brussels conference by ICFTU experts.

Council Refuses to Act On Crossing Guards

TRENTON — Despite urging of school board, home and school, and parent group representatives for the town to retain a full complement of adult crossing guards, Trenton town council Monday night again voted to defer the matter until a report from police Chief David Saunders is received.

It was also decided that when Chief Saunders' report is released, a meeting will be called with school board trustees and representatives, parents and principals.

Questioned after council, Mayor Duncan McDonald said he "did not know" when the police report would be presented.

Earlier this summer, the town fired four crossing guards, planning to replace them with students. However, the Trenton Police Commission recommended rehiring of the men until such time as the police chief could prepare a new school safety program. Acting on this suggestion, council Aug. 16 passed a motion by Councillor E. M. Parker to retain the guards until Jan. 1, 1973, to give the chief time to implement his plan.

The subject of use of school children as guards in at least three street locations, has been the topic of much debate in Trenton since the matter first was presented by council. Because council has been split on its stand on this issue, the school guard question has become a matter of some political importance in the upcoming Dec. 4 municipal election.

At council meeting Nov. 1, Hastings - Prince Edward Roman Catholic School Board trustee Austin Scott read a letter on behalf of his and the Hastings County School Board. In it, he said the separate school board "completely rejects" use of any guards other than adults.

The brief argued on behalf of safety factors, school time lost, legal liability, responsibility of making one child the guardian of another, jurisdiction of both schools over students and the question of which body should provide this service.

Monday night, Thomas E. Bedford, representing Trenton teachers, and David Humm, on behalf of all local home and school associations, presented reports.

Mr. Bedford said the crossings being considered for student patrol guards, were too traffic - heavy to be placed in the hands of youngsters. "After watching the difficulties of the school guards in coping with the safe crossing of youngsters at these intersections, we find it hard to visualize children from ages four up safely crossing the streets," he told council.

He further went on to question whether "the saving of approximately $3,000 a year would compensate for one maimed or crippled child, let alone a life."

The letter concluded: "the adult crossing guards now on duty have a sincere interest in the children and their safety. Why endeavor to take away the feeling of usefulness and the small income these citizens now enjoy?"

Mr. Humm expressed similar sentiments, claiming that despite "several appeals made," permanent retention of guards has been "arbitrarily rejected by council."

Councillor A. J. Aziz urged complete rescinding of the original motion to use students in place of several guards, at least until end of the school year. Other councillors pointed out that because of the August resolution, no action would be taken until receipt of the chief's report and a meeting with the respective organizations.

To this Mr. Bedford replied: "You've spoken of waiting. You have in your possession the views of every one concerned, except the police chief. I can't see what can be gained by waiting."

Councillor George Brown told the gathering of approximately a dozen interested persons, "council has to be guided by the police. We have to act pretty well on the advice of the chief. They hire the guards. They set the policy. (The guards are hired by the town, screened by police).

Thompson Resigns

G. Leighton Thompson, who a month ago resigned his position as regional assessment commissioner for the province at Trenton, has had second thoughts about becoming Belleville city manager.

In a move Monday which caught city council by surprise, Mr. Thompson in a letter of resignation said he did not intend to remain in the employ of the city.

He gave no reason for his change of thought other than to say he felt he would not be happy in the future position as city manager and admitted that he had made an error of judgment.

"My error was one of judgment toward a personal career which I know now must be corrected," Mr. Thompson said in his resignation.

Mr. Thompson had previously been in the employ of the city for nearly 20 years in the assessment department and went to Trenton as regional assessment commissioner when the province took over the assessment function.

It is understood that Mr. Thompson will return to his previous position at the Trenton assessment office.

On recommendation of Alderman Paul Russell and Jack Ireland, council "regretfully accepted" the resignation.

The feeling was echoed by Mayor J. Russell Scott who said all council had been convinced Mr. Thompson would have done an excellent job as city manager.

Mr. Thompson was slated to become city manager on the retirement next June of James R. Reynolds.

Fire Doused By Resident

TRENTON (Staff- — A Princess Street man Monday afternoon used a garden hose roof of his home minutes before the fire department arrived at the scene.

The fire department reports Keith Reynolds of 60 Princess Street was repairing holes on his roof when at 4.17 p.m. fire erupted in hot tar he was using.

His wife called firemen but before they could arrive, Mr. Reynolds had the fire out.

Joel Finlay Resource Manager

A young man who had charge of Ontario's 1972 SWEEP program has been appointed resource manager for the Moira River and Lower Trent conservation authorities.

He is Joel Finlay, a graduate of Brock University and the Ontario College of Education.

In 1971, Mr. Finlay was senior supervisor of SWEEP (Students Working in an Environment Program) projects in the Niagara Peninsula. Earlier this year he joined the natural resources ministry's Conservation Branch and during the summer was in charge of the province's SWEEP program.

He assumes his post with the conservation authorities Dec. 1, taking over from John Wulie resources manager for the past four years who is taking over a similar post with Sudbury - area conservation groups.

OPP Recover Money Orders Worth $13,000

Belleville provincial police recovered more than $13,000 worth of postal money orders near Trenton Sunday.

The orders, still negotiable, were stolen in a St. Hubert, Quebec, post office robbery early last September, postal authorities said yesterday.

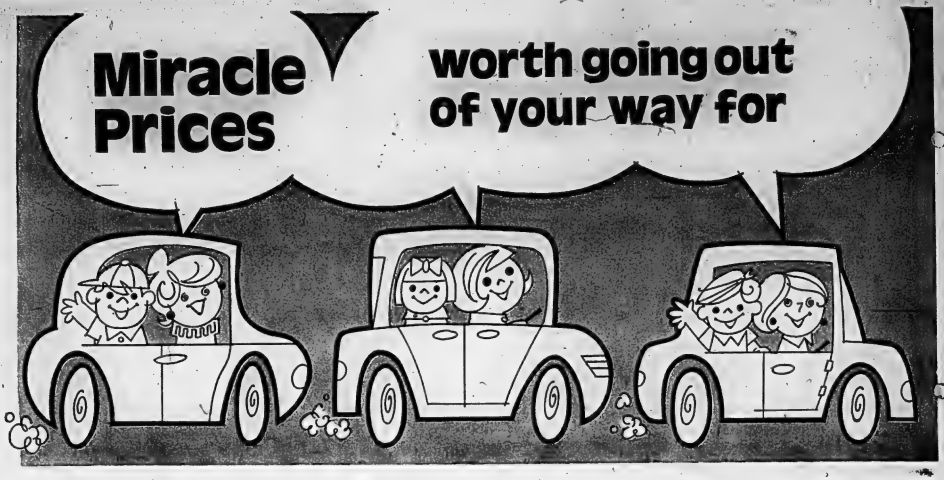
Constables Brian Skinner and Richard Lewis of Belleville OPP discovered the orders while investigating an attempted break-in at IMP Appliances on White's Road in Bayside on Sunday morning. Two young brothers, from Trenton and Montreal, were charged with attempted break and enter after the store owner apparently frightened off two men.

The money orders were located in a car outside the house where the brothers were arrested. Further efforts to turn up a stamp machine failed.

Post office inspectors and Quebec police are continuing the investigation.

Bylaw Record Set by Council

The number of bylaws passed by a municipal council is generally considered a sound barometer of the volume of business accomplished.



And if this is the case, then Belleville city council should receive top marks for its productivity.

Monday Belleville city council passed no less than 47 bylaws, the majority of them debenture bylaws covering work already completed in the municipality. The total value of the debenture bylaws was $1.3 million, representing the city's share of about $5 million worth of work done.

Mayor J. Russell Scott termed the volume of work done a tremendous credit to city staff.

As a result of the works he said there had been a great change in the face of Belleville.

"The taxpayers have received their money's worth," he said.

Ugandan Refugees Face Lack of Suitable Housing

Securing suitable housing has been one of the problems facing Canada Manpower officials helping Ugandan Asian refugees relocate in the Quinte area.

Doctors Said Unco-operative

Some of Belleville General Hospital's medical staff apparently were recently criticized for "lack of co-operation" by a committee from the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The comment was made by Health Minister Richard Potter Saturday at ceremonies marking the opening of centre.

Dr. Potter said the committee reported the hospital as well equipped and a source of community pride and complimented nursing and support personnel as being of the highest calibre with a keen interest in service.

"The report also mentioned a lack of co-operation by a small part of the medical staff. However, certain recommendations of the committee have already been presented to the (hospital) board of governors," said the health minister, "and I'm confident that the administration is determined to see that the facilities are used as efficiently as possible."

Some of the 52 Ugandans sent to the Belleville area are in "rather large" family groups, Jim Staveley, Manpower counsellor assigned to assist the refugees, told the Belleville and District Employment Committee Thursday.

Suitable lower - rental housing is scarce and the larger families require three-to-four-bedroom living units.

"These are very hard to obtain — and if you can obtain them the rents are quite high," said Mr. Staveley.

If needed, Canada Manpower is authorized to pay any refugee family's first month's rent, after which they "are absolutely on their own," Mr. Staveley explained.

Of the 52, 48 have been located in the Belleville - Trenton area and six at Picton.

Mr. Staveley said he already had found jobs for nine of 11 Ugandans needing work when the families began arriving two months ago, and had a tenth position pending in the Toronto area. Wage and salary scales ranged from $4,200 to $8,500.

Community response, both from individuals and organizations, has also been active, said the Manpower official, and the families have been "overcome by the friendly co-operation of the people of the Bay of Quinte area."

"They wish to become self-sufficient as quickly as possible. They all feel a deep debt to Canada — and especially this area for its friendliness."

The younger people are enthusiastic about the school system, although some have encountered initial difficulties in orienting themselves to Canadian geography and history courses.

Reeve Russell Sills of Hamilton noted there had been some adverse criticism of the program from Canadians.

Without the assurance imparted by contact with officials like Mr. Staveley, the refugees' lot would have been that more difficult, said the reeve.

To The Electors:

There will be at least 4 new members of Council for the next 2 years.

A balance of experience is essential for the proper balance and efficient conduct of Belleville's business.

ARNOLD ORR has 5 years of experience on Council on which to base judgements for the future.

ARNOLD ORR has demonstrated his interest in Belleville's future.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

A surprising research finding at Cornell University concludes the risk of whiplash neck injury is greater in slower-speed car impacts, because in more severe crashes the seat tends to break loose allowing the upper body to move back with the head.

Women are twice as likely as men to suffer whiplash in rear-end collisions — probably because their neck muscles are weaker. Drivers stand less risk than front seat passengers, possibly because the driver is supported by the steering wheel, and is more likely to be aware of the impending impact.

Roadside mirrors at 10-yard intervals are helping to cut down night-time accidents in rural areas of Holland reports Weekend magazine.

The mirrors reflect traffic headlamps into the surrounding woodland and this frightens foxes, badgers and rabbits and deters them from dashing across the roads.

Previously, not only had animals been killed and injured — but they had caused serious accidents. Now, the steel mirrors are solving the problem reports the magazine.

Curiosity seekers in literally hundreds of cases, have made a bad situation worse at the scene of an accident by causing more mishaps — braking suddenly, parking carelessly, or walking around in the way of professionals trying to help, according to the National Safety League.

An accident scene is a dangerous place for a curious onlooker to tarry. The sooner you can get away, the safer you'll be.

Still, there may be times when you can be of genuine assistance — and perhaps save a life. If you are first at the scene, park carefully, well away from traffic, and do what you can to help. If you're trained in first aid, treat the injured to the best of your ability. If you're sure you can do so without compounding injuries, or if there is likelihood of a fire, remove the victims as far as practicable from the vehicles. If you can do nothing else, drive to a telephone and ask the operator to put you in touch with the nearest police station.

If you're at the scene when the professionals arrive, get out of their way, offer to help and obey their instructions. If you come upon an accident that already has emergency personnel at the scene, keep moving. Slow down so you have instant control of your car, but don't stop to gape.

QUESTION: Having just moved here from Vermont I find that my studded snow tires cannot be used. Is this general now in Canada and the U.S.?

ANSWER: Ontario is the only province in Canada banning the use of studded tires. Alberta and Saskatchewan place no restrictions on their use. Other provinces permit their use during the winter season, usually mid-October to April.

Utah, Mississippi, Louisiana and Hawaii are the only states where they are banned outright.

Letter Required

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The education ministry said it will begin requiring students wishing to study abroad to get a "letter of recommendation" from the ministry. The requirement was explained as a way of keeping track of the students and making sure they are qualified.

Unspoken Action

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Sir Geoffrey Wilson, chairman of Britain's Race Relations Board, described what he called "silent discrimination" against non whites in many British factories and offices: "It is a practice by which no one expects a colored worker to be promoted, and no colored employee applies."

Piano Locked

VIENNA (AP) — The audience was enthusiastic, the musician ready and the lights of Vienna's Musikverein concert hall were dimmed, but the piano was locked. Swedish pianist Hampe Systrom kept her composure while the key was located.

Policemen Jailed

SAN MIGUEL DE TUCUMAN, Argentina (AP) — Eight policemen were ordered jailed for sending prisoners disguised as cops out to commit armed thefts. The judge said the policemen used split the loot with the convicts, who would be returned to their cells.

PICASSO — Roland Penrose. This collection centres on Pablo Picasso as a painter and includes works from all his periods. From hunting paintings of his blue and pink periods, to the witty ceramics produced since World War II, the lyrical sweetness of the works of his family, the variety of his achievement is both extraordinary and moving.

TURNER — William Gaunt. Of all British painters, probably the greatest is Joseph Mallord William Turner (1775-1851). His greatness lies neither in the variety of his paintings, remarkable though it was, nor in the skill with which he depicted every aspect of nature, but in the power of his imagination. In his introductory essay, Mr. Gaunt makes clear how Turner developed an almost religious feeling for the properties of light, and color that makes many of his paintings masterpieces in their own right.

THE SUFIS — Idries Shah. Sufism is a mystical teaching and a way of life that has an enormous, though largely unrecognized impact on both Eastern and Western culture. Sufis believe that theirs is a religion, but THE religion, and has, in fact, influenced virtually all thought and religion. They believe that conscious evolution is possible and functions within rather than without, society. Filled with interesting anecdotes, this book makes interesting reading.

THE TIME WHEN YOUR LUCK WILL CHANGE — Marguerite Carter. This is quite a different book on the ageless science of astrology. Long-hidden historical events are discussed, ones that might have changed the course of millions of lives — had it not been for the influence of the astrologer! Of special interest are discussions of the cycles which affect all life on earth, in particular, those relating to birthdates and "the times when your luck will change."

THE POPISH PLOT — J. P. Kenyon. An issue in the reign of Charles II that generated violent feelings was religion, and when in 1678 a bitter, hatred-ridden man named Titus Oates declared "knowledge" of a popish plot" to assassinate the King and introduce popish rule, a wild hysteria gripped London and spread to every corner of England. Professor Kenyon writes a clear and compelling picture of this horrifying episode in English history.

THE LADYKILLER — Dennis Bardens. This is the biography of a man who has been called a mere petty crook but who is more a legend. Henri Desire began his criminal career as a crook in the Paris underworld. He consorted with scores of lovely women, sending them ardent love letters, and relieving them of all their worldly goods. Eventually, ten of his "fiancees", unlucky enough to be invited to his villa outside Paris, disappeared forever. He was finally convicted of murder and sent to the guillotine.

THE FEMININE FIX-IT HANDBOOK — Kay B. Ward. Here is a book written by a woman for women. In simple language, with clear and accurate drawings, the author explains how to deal with leaky faucets, simple electrical repairs and outdoor maintenance. There are chapters on painting and wallpapering, on dealing with sticky doors and windows, and on many other fix-it methods.

Unflattering

LONDON (CP) — The King of Tonga recently visited London on his home in the South Pacific to participate in a crash course for slimmers. The amply-proportioned king weighed 400 pounds on arrival in the capital. During his stay, he was driven around in a limousine with the licence plate: 1 TON.

Groovy Baby

LONDON (CP) — Like it or not, one toddler will never forget the name of London's trendy clothes road, Carnaby Street. He's been named after it. Carnaby Dickman is the five-month-old son of a showbusiness couple who live on the famous street. "We have a great liking for Carnaby Street," officials Carol said. "What else could we call him?"

Dirty Weekend

LONDON (CP) — The Greater London Council is offering this summer "a fascinating day out for all the family" at Europe's biggest sewage works. The south London plant, which deals with 115 million gallons of waste daily, has been opened to the public with free transport from the local railway station and refreshments to tempt visitors. As if that weren't enough, free trips are also available on a 2,500-ton sludge vessel operating from the plant.

Budget's Tax Cuts Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner reiterated Tuesday night the government will proceed with legislation to implement his budget, reducing taxes on manufacturers and processors.

He told the Canadian Tax Foundation that the bill, introduced after the budget last May 8 but not passed by the time Parliament was dissolved for the Oct. 30 general election, will be "back on the order paper when Parliament returns to work" Jan. 4.

There are important provisions in the bill for personal tax changes, as well as the new reduced rates of tax for manufacturers and processors which are to take effect Jan. 1, Mr. Turner said.

Among the personal tax changes are:

—Increasing the special income exemption for blind, disabled and all other persons aged 65 and older to $1,000 a year from $650.

—Introduction of a $50-a-month tax deduction for full-time students undertaking post-secondary education or training.

—Widening the medical care and treatment expenses which qualify for tax deductions to include the full-time pay of an attendant in care for the taxpayer, and the cost of commercial transport services to and from a hospital, clinic or doctor's office for treatment more than 25 miles from a taxpayer's home.

Change Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Gordon Nikiforuk, dean of dentistry at the University of Toronto, told the Ontario government's committee on University affairs Tuesday that a complete reorganization of dental education might produce more dentists, hygienists and technicians and improve delivery of dental care in Ontario.

He said that the gap between people demanding dental care and those getting it is so great that the entire system needs changing.

Buildings Old

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. John Evans, University of Toronto president, told the Ontario government's committee on university affairs that his university "is an institution with decrepit facilities."

Dr. Evans added that some of the university's buildings will not meet fire requisitions if the government does not remove the freeze on building funds announced last Thursday.

Jobs First

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — Organized labor will fight efforts to combat pollution if such efforts mean a loss of jobs, Leonard Woodcock, president of the Unite d Auto Workers union, said Tuesday.

Woodcock said that his union has no quarrel with environmentalists who wish to clean rivers and purify the air.

But, he told a conference on jobs and the environment, sponsored by the University of California, that the individual worker must not bear the financial impact of environmental improvements.

Draft Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced Tuesday final draft calls for fewer than 30,000 men next year before military conscription is ended June 30 and the U.S. shifts to an all-volunteer force. Laird said inductions will be spread over a five-month period between February and June with no one to be drafted in January.

Heads Farmers

HAMILTON (CP) — Gordon Hill, a Varna, Ont., farmer, was re-elected to a fourth term Tuesday as president of the OntarioFederation of Agriculture at the conclusion of the federation's annual convention.

Limit Work

OTTAWA (CP) — A doctor found responsible by a coroner's jury for the deaths of three patients after special operations to cure obesity, has been permitted to continue general surgery by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

In a statement released Tuesday, the college ruled that Dr. Jean Paul Drouin was "guilty of professional misconduct" in the three fatal operations here last March. The censure extends only to a prohibition against Dr. Drouin performing similar intestinal-bypass operations and a requirement that he report all other surgical work to the college.

PM Will Tell Britain Of Economic Concerns

OTTAWA (CP) — With Britain's entry into the European Economic Community (EEC) less than a month away, Prime Minister Trudeau will fly to London this weekend for one last reiteration of Canada's economic concerns about the move.

He also will brief Prime Minister Edward Heath about Canada's position regarding membership on a supervisory commission in Vietnam.

Mr. Trudeau will have lunch with the Queen in Windsor Castle Monday.

Officials said Tuesday that Mr. Trudeau's London visit was being planned prior to the Oct. 30 general election because "we would be remiss" if Canada did not remind Britain about its concerns before that country joined the EEC, with far-reaching effects on traditional trading patterns.

"Canada has to be sure its interests are safeguarded," Mr. Trudeau told reporters Tuesday. He said the EEC is an evolving institution and "it is important that we remain in constant contact."

So far as the Vietnam question is concerned, he wanted Mr. Heath to "know our position" before the British prime minister visits Washington later next month.

Canada has laid down several conditions that must be met before agreeing to serve on any supervisory commission which may be established if and when a ceasefire is reached. The conditions include establishment of a "high authority" to which the commission can report, freedom of movement and an invitation from all parties involved.

Officials close to the prime minister say there likely will be other subjects discussed, such as the next Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, the next law of the sea conference, and the European security conference in Helsinki.

Mr. Trudeau see Mr. Heath on the eve of entry to relieve these concerns. "Hopefully, these will be kept in mind as Britain takes part in the coming negotiations."

Asked whether there would be talks on the controversial issue of Britain tightening regulations on white Commonwealth migration to that country, officials said that if Mr. Heath wants to raise the subject the Canadian prime minister will listen. But because this matter is entirely within the jurisdiction of Britain, Mr. Trudeau would not want to "interfere."

Document Said Wrong

TORONTO (CP) — The federal cabinet was misled about facts in a report which recommended a new international airport just east of Toronto near Pickering, Lorne Almack, technical chairman of the People or Planes protest group, said Tuesday at a public hearing.

Mr. Almack said the document that was prepared for the cabinet contained statements that contradicted the results of four years of study by consultants examining other sites for an airport.

Mr. Almack said the earlier reports all agreed that because there was more population to the west of Toronto than to the east, a southwestern airport site should be built before the north eastern.

Mounties Hire Special Airport Constables

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP is stepping up a program of hiring special constables to increase security at airports, Commissioner W. L. Higgitt said Tuesday night.

In an interview, Mr. Higgitt said the special constables do not get the same intense training given a normal RCMP recruit and they are used mainly to patrol airports.

He said use of these special constables has gone on for several years with varying numbers attached to the force as required.

He noted the rapid growth of airports has created a need for more special constables and said the force is looking for 30 or 60 more.

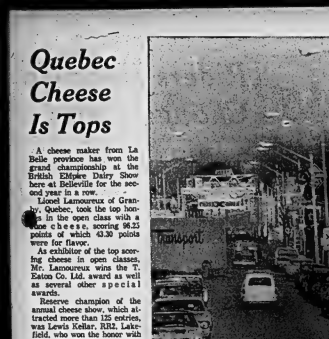
Quebec Cheese Is Tops

A cheese maker from La Belle province has won the grand championship at the British Empire Dairy Show here at Belleville for the second year in a row.

Lionel Lamoureux of Granby, Quebec, took the top honors in the open class with a cheese, scoring 96.32 points of which 49.30 points were for flavor.

As exhibitor of the top scoring cheese in open classes, Mr. Lamoureux wins the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. award as well as several other special awards.

Reserve champion of the annual cheese show, which attracted more than 125 entries, was Lewis Kellar, RR2, Lakefield, who won the honor with a September cheese scoring 98.15.



Mr. Lamoureux, in addition to his championship June cheese, also won the August and October open classes, the British Empire class and the class for block cheese.

Ted Foley, of RR1, Corbyville, president of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association, which is holding its annual convention in connection with the cheese show, missed high in the open class.

John Fraser of Vankleek Hill won the Silliton shape class while Ivan Sine of Eldorado was the mature class and Ross Lain, Stirling, the block class restricted to Hastings county students.

Ted Foley, of the Foxboro Cheese Factory, won first place in the cheese factory display class. Other winners were Ivan Sine, Eldorado, Lewis Kellar, for Pine Grove Factory at Lakefield, and Garry Shelley, of Picton, for Elmbrook Cheese and Butter Company.

The cheesemaker's convention gets under way today at the Sun Valley Motor Inn and concludes Thursday evening with the annual cheese makers' banquet and dance at Club Caesars.

Trenton's Sign Law Effective January 1

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — January 1, 1973 will not only mark the start of another new year, but because of a town bylaw coming into effect on that date, pedestrians should be able to walk on downtown streets without having to keep a weary eye open for falling icicles, snow or overhanging signs.

Five years ago, council passed a bylaw prohibiting hanging of signs that would protrude more than 18 inches from the edge of a building.

It gave merchants until 1973 to remove the signs that were up at that time.

Town clerk O. W. Larry believes the bylaw was passed years for its esthetic appearance downtown, than the safety factor.

Trenton's downtown area has relatively few signs that overhand the sidewalk. Most have been removed and at least one brok plans to bring its down within the next week.

What is left is a fairly clear view of the entire street, unobstructed by flashing neon lights, garish signs or tangles of wire, glass or wood.

There was also the least end of things to consider. Anyone injured by a falling sign or icicle could sue the town, the owners and the owner of the building. The town, because they issued a business license; the owner because it is his sign; the owner because he permitted the sign.

There is still the danger from falling objects, although one would have to walk quite close to a building in order to be on the wrong end of falling objects.

The final decision on legal responsibility rests with the courts.

Arden Royce, town deputy clerk, explains the 18-inch overhang restriction only covers signs above public property, including sidewalks.

As well, the bylaw states that the signs must be placed in good repair both for safety and appearance sake. No partially burned out neon signs will be permitted.

Permits for these signs cost $5 and the town building inspector will inspect each 30 days after erection. If found faulty, a written order will be issued.

Bylaw violations could result in an order to remove the sign, fines up to $250, maximum jail terms of 30 days, or both. Separate charges can be laid for each day the infraction continues.

Normen Mallory, town building inspector, also added sign signs must be no lower then nine feet from the ground and have a maximum height of 25 feet.

Owners of downtown signs is one the front of the Centre Theatre. Owners and operators of the theatre are at present negotiating with council concerning their sign and marquee.

In a letter to council this August, theatre principals requested their marquee be left, stating because it forms part of the building.

According to Mr. Larry, the theatre people have agreed to accept the CENTRE sign that now stands out from the building flush with his face. Negotiations continue on the subject of the letter - carrying marquee.

Four in Hospital Following Collision

TRENTON (Staff) — Four Trenton women were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital early this morning with injuries sustained in a dump-truck-car collision at the intersection of Marmora and Dominion Streets in Trenton.

Police report a car driven by Mrs. Pauline Stutsky, 42, of 22 Rivers Drive in Middleton Park, was travelling east on Marmora, facing bright sunlight, attempted to turn onto Dominion when it crossed the path of a dump truck. Driver of the Trenton Gravel Products truck was William R. Hayse, 38 of RR 1, Consecon.

Hospital officials report the driver has been admitted with a fractured collar bone, head injuries, multiple lacerations and leg injuries. The three women passengers have been admitted to hospital.

Mrs. Gladys Hunt, 49, of 15 Dominion, suffered concussion and multiple abrasions. Mrs. Erika Stutsky, 42, of 78 McGill Street, Middleton Park, was admitted for observation of possible head injuries, plus multiple abrasions, and Mrs. Gladys Bentley, 48, of 1813 McGill in Middleton Park, admitted with suspected head injuries and multiple abrasions.

Mr. Hayse was not injured. Investigating constables were Leonard Thompson and Lynn Begbie. No estimate of damage is available but the Stutsky car is considered a write-off.

Our Seeds Best of All

Quinte district farmers grow the best seed in the world according to judges at this year's Royal Winter Fair.

Results of the judging show four first place entries from the Quinte area in seed competition, including the championship in legume seeds and also the reserve championship.

The seed was produced under contract for Bishop Seeds Ltd. in Trenton and processed the entries and entered them jointly with the growers.

Gordon Gay, RR 1 Foxboro, took first place and the legumes championship for Ottawa Red Clover. Thorold Dupre, RR 6, Napanee, took first place and the reserve legumes championship for Birdsfoot Trefoil.

Murray May Buy Pumper

TRENTON (Staff) — If Thurlow Township purchases its first fire vehicle, a pumper truck, it may be a pumper-tanker from Trenton town council to keep the truck at the Trenton fire hall.

Council this week approved a recommendation of the administrative board suggesting the truck be kept at the hall.

A spokesman for Murray Township Tuesday said the township is in the process of considering purchase of a former Frankford Dairy milk tanker. At an estimated cost of $5,700, the 1967 vehicle can carry up to 1,600 gallons, but would require auxiliary pumps for use in fires.

Especially beneficial for use in fighting grass fires, the tanker would be the township's sole fire vehicle. At present, they have an agreement with Trenton for fire protection.

Smokes Worth $3,900 Stolen

Provincial police are continuing their search for 836 cartons of cigarettes stolen from Towers Department Store Sunday night.

The cigarettes, valued at $3,900, were stored in the lobby between Towers and Food City at the west end shopping complex. Police have so far been unable to determine the means of entry.

Candidates' Concern Evident At Crowded Election Meeting

By HARRY MULHALL

Belleville's 1972 civic election campaign produced public statements of concern and criticism from two of its participants last night.

Alderman Ben Corke, veteran of civic office, said he was worried about "very deep and divided" feelings in the city.

There is a need for Belleville to "cease bickering," he said.

George Murray, young city lawyer, running his first civic campaign, said he was "appalled" at "innuendo and half truths" surrounding the campaign.

Both were among the 18 men and women seeking city council's 14 seats in debate at the Chamber of Commerce candidates' meeting at the Canadian Legion Hall.

Ald. Corke said he was "very concerned" about the city.

"At this moment there is a very deep and divided feeling. And I don't like it. I think we should sit down and talk."

He quoted scripture: "Come let us reason together."

Later, Ald. Corke — who has a total nine years on city council — said his remarks were spurred by a feeling the campaign is generating bitterness and division that hasn't been here before.

"We're all people of goodwill. But, I personally wonder where the good will is now," he added.

After voicing his criticism, Mr. Murray went on to praise recent civic administration. The city is in the soundest financial shape ever, he said, and enjoyed confidence of the financial community.

"Our present administration has put Belleville's affairs in good order. And I think the citizens of Belleville can be proud of the council . . . for the way in which they've handled our business."

Interjected a heckler: "Is your name Scott?"

"No, I t's Murray," shot back the candidate, then went on to explain his platform.

There were no serious interruptions from the crowd of nearly 200 as the flow of policies and past achievements were enunciated by the mixed assembly of office holders and new office seekers.

With the incumbents:

Ald. Jack Ireland called for re-organizing the city's industrial commission as a "development" agency, playing a wider role in keeping with current patterns of progress.

Ald. Arthur Keegan warned against "politics in municipal affairs. It could destroy our city . . .

Ald. Arnold Orr said recent expansion had increased assessment. $24 million — a 22 per cent hike in five years.

providing new revenue for civic projects without a "significant tax hike."

Ald. Paul Russell said growth had created jobs and held down taxes when the rest of the country was hit by unemployment and inflation.

Ald. Jean Smith called for continued support of anti-pollution measures — necessary if "we and our children are to survive in a healthy atmosphere."

Contesting the incumbents: Joe Cox warned this was a time of rapid change in the city, and he was experienced both in business and community affairs.

Vern Heimbeck said rezoning policies see developers complaining about delays, citizens about inadequate protection and more "workable" procedures were required.

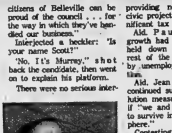
Ted Kelly outlined policies that included more playgrounds, investigating the possibility of another swimming pool project by a service club, better services for the handicapped and environs.

Albert Lenzini said industry was needed to absorb the labor force which the community requires; his youth and political inexperience in politics might be positive factors as a "fresh, new approach' in council.

Alex Maguire claimed communication with city hall was "practically non - existent" and advocated an "open door" policy.

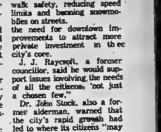
Stu Meeks called for more volunteer undertakings to raise funds for community projects, thus easing demands on local government and stressing the tax dollar.

George Murray said better planning against "runaway" installation of underground services was needed, along with bylaws clarifying crosswalk safety, reducing speed limits and banning snowmobiles on streets.



The need for downtown improvements to attract more private investment in the ec city's core.

J. J. Raycroft, a former councillor, said he would support issues involving the needs of all the citizens, "not just a few."



Dr. John Stock, also a former alderman, warned that the city's rapid growth had led to where its citizens "may find ourselves in a concrete jungle" and an official plan was quickly needed to ensure orderly growth.

Richard Williams said he would seek to have council involved in prosecuting "repeated violators" of anti-pollution regulations in conjunction with the Environmental Law Association.

George Zegouras, said the city had "dragged its feet" on an official plan and a "carefully - planned" street-installation of underground services was needed, along with bylaws clarifying cross-

Mayoralty Confrontation Quiet

Both rivals in Belleville's most anticipated mayoralty campaign in years went before the electorate for the first time last night.

But today, the campaign banners of Mayor Russell Scott and Alderman Robin Jeffrey should still be flying unruffled.

Their presence on the same public platform — at the traditional Chamber of Commerce municipal candidates' night — fired no controversial conflagration.

There was the odd flicker of difference between the mayor and woman alderman, but challenges his re-election to a third term. The Jeffrey rivalry is politically abrasive, it struck no fiery public sparks.

Twice, statements by Ald. Jeffrey evoked a response from the mayor. Once, he drew her into a protest.

Ald. Jeffrey referred to Mayor Scott's "candy box" of $29 million industry courted under Belleville's future.

A statement that the mayor could not verify from any "relevant" source.

He also said Mayor Scott was on record as stating she was "a busy housewife with a wet greenbelt.

"I didn't use the figure (of) $20 million investment, I don't know where that came from," Mayor Scott told Ald. Jeffrey in a speech following his opponent's address.

While it was not of immediate concern and he didn't intend to make an announcement, said the mayor, "there is something coming . . . there is an announcement coming".

He also denied being "pro-Negro" in part and said greenbelt areas should be purchased at a "reasonable price."

"But we must not have parts ahead of other parts that are necessary . . . I'm not for taken it piecemeal."

Later, when queried about an investment in a department at 217 Bridge St. East, the mayor denied any such interest. He said the owners — then he in turn identified them as Mr. and Mrs. Ald. Jeffrey when he suggested she might know of an interest in the property.

Otherwise, both campaigners for city hall's highest post went separate ways before the public.

Alderman Jeffrey warned Belleville was at a crossroads, "a decision-point," and a time between "rushing headlong" into "haphazard, poorly-co-ordinated development" and a more "leisurely, planned approach" that would "not discount "the wishes of people" and "retain the city's "character and charm".

The key is the city's official plan and zoning regulations to make it work. In recent years Bellevillians have become "critical of zoning in their areas against their wishes".

Other policy points made by Ald. Jeffrey included:

— Requesting the Moira River Conservation Authority to extend jurisdiction into the city, which then would become eligible for large provincial subsidies for Bay of Quinte shoreline acquisition.

— Need to "vigorously" pursue complete servicing and access to industrial sites to boost jobs. In a rapidly developing city, it's unacceptable that men and women are unable to find work.

— "A program plan to ensure "rapidly deteriorating" core streets over the next 20 years. The longer the delay, the more extensive the reconstruction.

Mayor Scott said much of what has been achieved in recent years in Belleville tends to be taken for granted — including projects like the new Dundas St. bridge, utilities and sewage disposal expansion, hospital reconstruction, a northend shopping mall.

"These things haven't happened by chance. It has been the co-ordinated effort of a lot of people . . . but it does show that we've had leadership in that direction to improve the quality . . . for our living."

Job growth also was necessary to the community.

"For a good many years" . . . our biggest export was our young people," said the mayor. But now events had been turned, in the city, to help on that direction to improve the quality . . . for our living."

Job growth also was necessary to the community.

"For a good many years" . . . our biggest export was our young people," said the mayor. But now events had been turned, in the city, to help on that direction to improve the quality . . . for our living."

Expansions now are being planned by three or four industries, he added.

A Cannifton Road railroad overpass or underpass also required priority, said Mayor Scott.

Other projects, he proposed: extension of reduced business — now governed by senior citizens — to other fixed - income groups, like disabled war pensioners, persons on mothers' allowances;a bicycle path in North Belleville on an Ontario Hydro right-of way.

Trustees Emphasize Experience

There are no real issues in the board of education race, Belleville Ward, Board of Education trustee MacDonald Clarke told the candidates' public forum in Belleville Tuesday.

However, fellow trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham urged the Canadian Legion hall audience to vote for the school board elections very seriously.

"You must elect five people to manage $22 million," she said.

Trustee Shiloh advocated ongoing revisions in school curriculum. In reference, also urging constant programs for upgrading staff qualifications.

In his statement to the gathering, trustee Jeffery Fairman, a former principal in the school system, he stressed the importance of adult education and the development of policies for the continuing community use of schools.

The other incumbent Belleville trustee James Clarke, founding chairman of the county board, stressed the need for retaining experienced trustees on the board.

He said that in the coming years the business of the Hastings County Board of Education will demand careful planning due to anticipated declining enrolments and financial pressures.

Trustee Clarke stated the quality of education is improving as are teacher qualifications, while the mill rate for public school supporters in the city was reduced by 3.6 mills this year.

Mr. Mitchell Roberts, one of two newcomer candidates for the board of education, said he wants to ensure that education is geared to the needs of the particular people it is also endorsed adult education programs and is pushing to be "economy minded."

The other newcomer candidate, Don Thrush, also promised to watch expenses, saying "any new expenditure must be based on a solid proposal."

He said he feels "the present board of education has done a wonderful job" but believes he could be an asset to it because of his business experience.

Candidate Against Parks Spending

Belleville aldermanic candidate A. J. Raycroft told the chamber of commerce candidates' night Tuesday he is against expansion of the city's parks system and opposes the general of the existing municipal recreation programs.

"We have enough parks," said Mr. Raycroft, a former alderman.

He said that in 1972 the parks board budget was $354,000 which was paid for mostly by municipal taxpayers, the rest by the province.

This money, according to Mr. Raycroft, would be better used if it were spent on sewage disposal facilities.

On the subject of recreation programs, he said he opposes the spending of municipal funds for such activities as hockey, football, lacrosse, archery and rug-hooking.

"I just cannot see spending money on these things," he commented.

The candidate told the audience he was the first person to have build a private backyard swimming pool.

"He said "I hired a lifeguard for it, at my own expense. . . and I never turned anyone away."

Scott Endorsed

When asked during Tuesday's candidates gathering about work he does for Belleville Mayor Russell Scott, Alderman Art Keegan told a query from "it is none of your business".

However, the alderman did explain that he does make signs for the local developer and that is the only work for him he job."

He said that in producing signs for Rollins he must compete with other people in the sign business and if his prices were not the best he would not get the work.

As far as council activity is concerned, Ald. Keegan said he supports any builder of homes in the city.

The alderman told another board of education candidate posed to an infusion of party politics into the current municipal election. He did not elaborate.

Accusation if advertising in his campaign and that of Mayor Dr. J. J. Russell Scott on Tuesday night.

Candidate for alderman George Murray also endorsed Mayor Scott at last night's gathering in the Canadian Legion hall.

Can Sunter Sink Jinx?

HAMILTON (CP) — A'kicking specialist who hadn't seen a football game six years ago will be out to help Hamilton Tiger-Cats attempt to break a jinx older than himself in Sunday's Grey Cup game.

Ian Sunter, 19, came to Canada from Scotland six years ago and this year is the Ticats' field-goal kicker in the Grey Cup game, he and his teammates will be out to knock off Saskatchewan Roughriders and be the first team since 1962 to win a Canadian championship on its own field.

The last team to do it—and they haven't won a Grey Cup since—was Toronto Argonauts when they beat Edmonton Eskimos 21-11 at Varsity Stadium.

Sunter was an inconsistent kicker for most of the year, hitting on only 14 of 38 field-goal attempts—he did hit 44 of 46 converts, however.

But last Sunday he kicked the Cats into the national final, clicking on five field goals and getting a single on another attempt when the chips were down. He also kicked a convert. TRAILED BY 12

His 17 points led the Ticats to their come-from-behind win over Ottawa Rough Riders in the two-game, total-point Eastern Football Conference final. The Ticats were down 12 points after the first round in Ottawa.

Sunter refuses to bask in the glow of Sunday's performance.

"What I want to do is forget about Ottawa, that's in the past, and be ready to concentrate on Saskatchewan," he said in an interview.

"Yes, a place-kicker has to get himself thinking about the opposition even if some people think it shouldn't make any difference with his job."

The 5-foot-10, 170-pounder, who earns only about $4,500 a year with the Ticats, hopes his season will end the way it began—he kicked a 33-yard field goal with 37 seconds left to play as the Cats beat Saskatchewan 20-18 in the Canadian Football League opener at Hamilton, July 31.

Grid Hall Opens

HAMILTON (CP) — The Canadian Football Hall of Fame, an $850,000 project which took 10 years from inception to completion, was officially opened Tuesday as painters applied finishing touches inside.

Mayor Victor Copps, a surrounded by dignitaries here for Sunday's Grey Cup encounter between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders, placed a block of football over a miniature national Trust cutting a ribbon to open the one-storey structure.

Earlier in the ceremonies, as a light snow fell, Mrs. Brian Timmins, widow of the pioneer player and coach for Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton teams and the first man inducted into the hall, unveiled the statue titled Touchdown in the plaza outside.

The stainless steel statue by Hamilton steelworker Tony Zelman depicts a tackle bringing down a bent-receiver.

Inside, guests led by commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League, former player and general manager with the Tiger-Cats, toured the exhibits.

Punch-it-yourself computers spewed out football information. There was a corner commemorating William Webb Ellis, the schoolboy at Rugby College in England who started the whole thing back in 1823 when he picked up a soccer ball and ran with it during a game.

A stained-glass window shows football garb of the 1900s, the 1920s, 1950s, and as worn today.

One section is devoted to an exhibit on how a television switcher works a football game; another shows a play-by-play radio announcer at work.

The original Grey Cup is enshrined there, next to the Schenley Trophy awarded the greatest player in the country each year.

Television monitors show the history of the CFL and there is an area devoted to the sights and sounds of a Grey Cup game.

So far, 70 players and builders have been named to the hall. Several are already depicted in the Great Hall in metal sculptured heads.

One corner of the building is devoted to a 100-seat theatre to be available to the public.

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — Striker Derek Dougan scored two of Wolverhampton Wanderers to the semi-final of the English League Soccer Cup with a goal five minutes from the end of their quarter-final replay against soviet's Black pool Tuesday night.

John Richards created the opening by breaking through the Blackpool defence to give Dougan, a Northern Ireland international, an easy chance to end the deadlock.

Phillips Rink Upset

HAMILTON (CP) — A rink from Dundas Granite Club created an upset victory Tuesday by defeating 1967 Brier champion Alfie Phillips Jr. of Hamilton Granite Club to play continued in the Grey Cup scotch bonspiel.

The bonspiel is being played at rinks in Hamilton and nearby Dundas.

The Dundas rink, skipped by Brian MacLennan, picked up three in the sixth end to move in front of the Phillips-skipped rink 7-5. Phillips came back to tie in the ninth, and in the tenth, with Dundas Granite lying two in the house, he was light for his try for a knockout and left his rock-short to give Dundas the victory.

However, MacLennan's rink was defeated 8-5 in later play Tuesday by a team skipped by Bob Royce of Dundas Valley Club.

Angels Hook Dodger Star

HONOLULU (AP) — After hooking five players in the biggest deal thus far at the trade-happy winter baseball meetings, general manager Harry Dalton of California Angels announced that he was still fishing.

"Just because we made this deal, it doesn't mean that we have everything we need," added Dalton. "We still have to fill a few more positions. And we can't still use more hitting."

The Angels acquired slugger Frank Robinson from Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday in a seven-player deal that kept trading activity here at a roller coaster pace.

The seventh deal of the young meetings sent Robinson, pitchers Bill Singer and Mike Strahler and infielders Bobby Valentine and Billy Grabarkewitz from Los Angeles to California for pitcher Andy Messersmith and a third baseball Ken McMullen.

Dalton's deal was the seventh fashioned since Saturday and eclipsed in manpower a six-player trade by the New York Yankees that highlighted Monday's frantic activity. A total of 28 players have changed uniforms since the free-wheeling general managers got things started Saturday.

And, according to Dalton, there's more dealing in store before the 71st annual affair locks up this weekend.

Tuesday's trade reunites Dalton with Robinson, an all-Star outfielder he prized loose from Cincinnati Reds when Dalton was director of player personnel at Baltimore.

"I've been close to Robinson for a long time," said Dalton.

"Anytime a man takes you to four World Series, you've got to be close to him. Sure, he's 37 years old and he's not the same player he was five years ago. But he's still a superstar."

Robinson had only 19 home runs and 59 runs batted in and a .251 batting average last year. However, that didn't deter the Angels from giving up his $140,000-a-year salary, one of the highest in baseball.

BLADES LOSE SUPPORT

BOSTON (AP) — New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association announced Tuesday the team has withdrawn all support from New England Blades of the Eastern Hockey League. Whalers president Howard Baldwin said the unstable situation with the Blades does not lend itself to the development of hockey players.

RON LANCASTER

Hockey Star Buried

DELISLE, Sask. (CP) — Doug Bentley, a member of the National Hockey League's Hall of Fame and a star player for 13 years, was buried here Tuesday after a quiet service in the town where he was born 56 years ago.

Bentley, who became famous as a member of Chicago Black Hawks' Pony line during the 1945-46 and 1946-47 seasons, died Friday after a long illness.

The two surviving members of the famous line, brother Max, who played centre, and right winger Bill Mosienko, now a Winnipeg bowling alley operator, attended the United Church service.

Both the Black Hawks and New York Rangers sent wreaths.

Riders Hope To Change Luck

REGINA (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats are undefeated in four Grey Cup appearances in which Saskatchewan Roughriders were the opposition.

In fact, the WFC 'Riders have never really been close on the scoreboard against Hamilton. They lost 30-0 in 1928, 14-3 in 1930, 25-8 in 1932 and 24-1 in 1967.

Another statistic favoring the Ticats is their history of Grey Cup competition spanning 21 games in which they were victorious 12 times.

The 'Riders, on the other hand, are playing their 12th final and have won only once.

In the West this year, the 'Riders appeared to be on the skids. For the first time in six years it looked as though they would miss the western Final.

They finished in third place because they were unable to lay consistent football. They showed spurts sometimes, as one time winning five in a row.

Two of their veterans are Ron Lancaster, 33, and Dave Reed, 32, a combination that has been the sparkplug of Saskatchewan's offence for years.

Despite the disappointing regular season, Reed gained more than 1,000 yards rushing for his eighth consecutive year and Lancaster continued to've write the record book in literally every passing category.

"Riders entered the season with mostly a stand-pat club. The only apparent weakness was in the defensive backfield.

Tom Campana of Ohio State was recruited to fill a defensive back position but he soon won a spot on offence. His WFC rookie-of-the-year nomination attests to his performance.

Regular cornerback Gig Parve was lost in the first league game and an emergency call went out from coach Eagle Keys for two defensive backs. Roy Robinson, a 1971 Calgary Stampeder and Jerry Clark, formerly of Montreal Alouettes, answered and they're still being heard from.

As the season progressed, more misfortune, struck when Lancaster and Reed both suffered rib injuries near the midway mark.

Other more serious injuries were to veteran defensive tackle Ed McQuarters and tight end Nolan Bailey. Rookie Pervis, a match-traded tackle, has filled in adequately for McQuarters and Moe Versailley, Alan Ford, has been a big asset at tight end.

One of the important changes in the Rider defence—and a surprising move to many fans—was the release of middle linebacker Wally Dempsey. He was chopped to make room for Steve Svitak, who had experience with several NFL clubs.

A popular theory circulated in these parts is that a number of 'Rider veterans are looking at Sunday's Grey Cup in Hamilton as the last hurrah. Feelings such as those could produce extra effort in the quest for the second Grey Cup in the club's long history.

'Slap Shot' Called For

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

The toughest assignment for a sportswriter is attempting to stick another sportswriter with the afternoon bar tab.

The second toughest assignment has to be an interview in the losers' dressing room. Players sit along the walls slowly unbreathing: muttering, staring or maybe trying not to commit the cardinal sin of just not caring.

Into this cone of silence creeps Joe Sportswriter, nervously licking his trusty ever-sharp and thumbing open his Extra Large scribbler.

"Well, uh Lefty, you got beat 10-1; gave up 17 hits, 14 walks and swallowed your chewing tobacco in the third inning. What happened"

Now at this stage of the game Lefty has a lot of things on his mind. His curve isn't breaking. His fastball isn't thing. His manager isn't talking and his stomach hurts like hell from all that chewing tobacco.

"Ugraghmf," says Lefty.

"Do you think those 34 fielding er . . . "

At which point Lefty rises to his six - foot, three - inch height, stretches his ninety-205 pound frame and regards Joe as some strange species of alien insect.

"Well hang in there Lefty, old buddy . . . " Joe exits left. Quickly. * * *

Then it's on to more fun and games with team coach Scrunch Inkel, from who you get one of two reactions:

"These (bleeping) dummies couldn't check their (bleeping) coats. Four (bleeping) breakaways; 33 shots on me (bleeping) goal. The (bleeping) dummies." Or coach. It's honest, interesting and great copy, but the editors, ladies church auxiliaries and your wife aren't going to be really happy if it's put in print.

Or else:

"Oh, hiya Joe" says Scrunch as he studiously studies a ball of black tape "Well what can I say? Those guys have got a pretty good team."

"Do you think Sivea should have stopped one of those 18 shots"

"Well- it's hard to say," says Scrunch as he carefully unwinds the ball of black tape "our defence played lousy . . . but don't quote me on that."

"Do you think those 84 minutes in penalties hurt your team"

"Well it's hard to say," says Scrunch, as he meticulously rewinds the tape into a ball. "we've got a real bunch of hackers . . . but don't quote me on that."

"Well, will things get better?" pleads Joe, his face drawn in desperation.

"Yeah, probably . . . see ya' later. I gotta find some more tape."

Next morning Joe writes in his dashing, analytical style. Following last night's 15-0 defeat coach Scrunch Inkel noted that, 'They've got a pretty good team but we're going to improve." Faced with the deathless prose, Joe's editor blanches. Scrunches's wife beams and the ladies auxiliary just doesn't give a hoot.

All ohwich brings us, finally, to Henri Richard.

No one has ever scanned the Pocket Rocket of being a good sniper. In fact Henri feels so strongly about winning that he blasted friend and former teammate Al MacNeil when he felt that MacNeil's coaching was costing Montreal a shot at the 1979 Stanley Cup.

The general lax reaction seems to be "Richard, the troublemaker, is at it again" after the Montreal captain fired the shot heard 'round the NHL (actually it was an open hand slap to Serge Savard's jaw.) But as Tim Burke of the Montreal Canadiens points out in a story Monday, Richard's action was far from a simple outburst. It was a blow for freedom of the press.

Of course Burke isn't entirely objective on the subject. It was his satire on the wicked night life in Vancouver that triggered the incident.

A number of Habs, including Jacques Laperriere, were upset about what they felt the story implied. So the logical reaction following Friday's 9 1 win over the Canucks was, "let's keep the newspapermen out of the dressing room."

"Good idea," seconded Savard.

Their feelings were typical of a number of athletes who expect the glad hand from reporters when they scork the winning goal and discreet unwritten silence when they trip over the blue line.

Fortunately there are a few people in professional sports, who realize that objective reporting can be applied to ice surfaces as well as accidents.

"Let them in. They have a job to do just like everybody else," objected Henri.

"If you like three (newspapermen) so - well, why don't you sleep with them," Savard is quoted as countering.

Smack!

What Savard failed to realize (and Richard did) is that in spite of typos, satires and misquotes, those little men in the soup - stained ties are helping promote the story book world of professional sports that allows people with grade 11 educations to pull in $70,000 per.

So once again Henri Rich and is in hot water with the cold ice set. Of course it's his own fault. How can you expect to present adult logic to the overgrown boys who play kids' games for bankers' money.

OMHA Teams Count Victories

The Western Tire Juvenilles came up with a 5-3 victory over neighboring Trenton in OMHA hockey action Tuesday night.

Kevin Joudwa netted two goals for the winners, while Paul Ackerman, Peter Smrke, and Jim Richardson tallied singles.

In bantam minor action last night McIlroy - Methes defeated Picton 5-3. Rick Sprague paced the Belleville team with a pair of goals with singles going to Howie Coons, Dave McBride and John Woods. John Dunlop (2) and Joe Keogh scored for Picton.

Minors Banned

LONDON (Reuter) — Denis Follows, secretary of the English Football Association, called Tuesday for the banning of all soccer fans under 18 from English grounds in a move to combat hooliganism.

Follows, writing in the current edition of Football Association News, said: "Statistics show that the majority of the offenders on grounds in England are youths aged 18 or less."

Hooliganism on English soccer grounds has been widely blamed for the rise in attendances, which reached a peak of 41,271,424 in the 1948-49 season, but fell to 28,700,729 last season.

Local Tykes Face Big Town Bowlers

Cathy Cook, along with five other members of the tyke Brunswick Junior League Program, will be representing Belleville Bowl against a team from Toronto's Dufferin Lanes Sunday.

Miss Cook, an eight - year-old veteran of five pin bowling will be knocking down the pins along side the brother and sister team of Gilles and Linda Sanderson, Alanza Idzenga, Steven Botting and Kevin Wanzenmaker, all first year bowlers.

The tyke team of which Cathy is a member was selected by Teresa Clark, head coach of the five pin bowlers as the one with the highest average of the six tyke teams in the junior program.

According to Mrs. Clark, this team may not necessarily go to Toronto for the return match, as the program wishes to give everyone a chance to compete in the various meets held throughout the year.

"If this team still has the highest average when the next home - and - home series is played, the next highest team will go," said the coach.

"While we normally travel two or three times a year, this year we'll be going to London, Trenton, Deseronto, Toronto, and Kingston for meets. We'll be playing Trenton for the first time."

The Belleville House will also field bantam, junior, and senior teams in the five pin competition. The 10 pin series will see one bantam, one junior, and two senior teams bowl.

ANAF News

There was a nice turnout of members and parents last Wednesday evening in the Belleville Armory to attend the presentation and promotion parade. MWO K. Watson formed his troops up in review order and handed over to Capt. L. Foley, C.O. 608 Squadron, RCACC.

The reviewing officer was W. W. Russell, CPB, Trenton and in the inspection party were Capt. L. Foley, Air Commodore D. Ross, recently retired chief of the Air Cadet League, Chairman Stan Melbourne of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 sponsoring committee, Capt. F. Bertrand and Capt. D. Crandall, both from CFB, Trenton. The major congratulated the cadets on their fine record for 1972 and their smart appearance.

Cdo. Stan then took over as MC and called upon A.C. Ross to make the first presentation of his wings to MWO K. Watson who had won the flying scholarship awarded annually by the Air Cadet League. The next two flying scholarships awarded annually by the Air Cadet League. The next two flying scholarships were awarded by the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund. The first was presented by Bob Bardy, representing the fund, to F. Sgt. R. Scott and the second to F. Sgt K. Welch by his father. These same three lads had also been chosen earlier in the year by the sponsors to represent Canadian Youth guests of the Annapolis Naval Academy in Maryland.

Capt. Foley then took over and presented a first class certificate in Senior Leadership to Cpl. R. Turcotte and another first class certificate to Cpl R. Soucy for passing in a Physical Training Course also awarded by the League.

Capt. Foley then awarded the following promotions: to be F. Sgt. Sgt. K. Welch, to be Sgt. Cpl. W. Krikman, to be Sgt., Cpl. R. Soucy, to be Cpls, LAC J. Carley, LAC T. Calbury, LAC D. Pollard and L. Johnson.

Air Commodore D. Ross then gave his farewell talk to the cadets and had nothing but praise for both the cadets and the ostructional staff for over the past few years to the post where they would be as hard a squadron to beat as any in Canada.

Capt. L. Foley then added his thanks to all who attended. Chairman Melbourne then conveyed an nvitation to the reveang officers, the staff and the parents to a reception n the Uni's Tartan Lounge on behalf of President H. G. Ford where a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

The following comrades are still n hospial: J. Carr, 511; G. Booth, J. H. Jones, 629; G. Storms, 452, E. Scott, 710 and J. R. Boyle, 1st care, Belleville General Hospital: P. Stalkovich, Kingston General Hospital, S. Cal Sim E. General, Toronto and A. McKenna, Comp. Hospital, Toronto.

New Terminal in Use

Inter - city buses are now making use of Belleville's new two - storey bus terminal building that opened this week on the city's Dundas St. E. The brick-faced structure replaces an old bus station on the same site demolished this fall.

City Ready with LIP Ideas

City hall departments will be ready with proposed local initiatives programs when the Federal "make work" program becomes effective December 1.

Proposed programs have been prepared by the city public works department, the police department, the city parks board and the recreation-arena committee.

Two Fined For Drugs

Two persons arrested in an Oct. 2 drug raid on a Highway 2 residence were fined Monday in Belleville Provincial Court.

Keith Jewell, 19, was ordered to pay $150 and Sharon Poitras, 24, $50. Both were found guilty of possession of marijuana.

RCMP seized more than 50 pounds of marijuana — worth about $15,000 on the street — in the evening raid.

Two other residents of the house, Bruce Green, 22, and John Stewart, 25, appeared earlier in court. Green was fined $50 for possession of hashish and Stewart received a suspended sentence for possession of marijuana.

The fifth person arrested Steven George Watson, 22, is free on $500 bail. He will appear for trial before Judge John L. Clendenning Dec. 11 on a charge of possession for the purpose of trafficking. He faces a similar charge in Cobourg.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, nov. 30 -

Aries (March 21-April 19): In reaching out to help, be sure that you are only taking on the administration of whatever program contains the problems.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): While you attend the responsibilities so familiar to you, think over your good fortune. There is a way to further extend your resources.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Today is a great time to settle down and get through with a lengthy chore you've been doing. Your thinking is what is most wanted.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): There is something to be said for just making another round of constructive routine, expecting no miracles or drastic events.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Short trips bring much satisfaction among relatives. Older friends need your help, like a chance to meet powerful people.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial short cuts can work both ways, but should be set for short-term arrangements, with first priority for your own people.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Clearing up personal affairs is definitely promised to older people's intervention becomes less. Good advice is available for the asking.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is one of those days you've made come home for redemption all at once, and you are busy keeping on schedule.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now is the time to put facts and figures into final shape, verify your theories and budgets, tie and forget finished chores.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): No excuse remains for loafing. Focus your main attention onto building sensible contacts for long-term co-operation.

Aquarius (Jan. 23-Feb. 18): Try getting through the day as comfortably and serenely as your inner drives will let you. Time spent with those you love is golden.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Useful results may not be exciting, more of long-time benefit in terms of family welfare. Make best of a passing chance.

Three Worthwhile Uses for Corpses

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been trying without success to find out where I may go to sell my body to science. Can you tell me where I can write to get some information? Is there some body may benefit from the various parts of my body that will no longer be of use to me.—R.S.

Dear Doctor: I know how to leave my body to medical research, and it is acceptable to many relatives and church, but there seems to be a difference of opinion on its value. I will leave mine to the medical school but not to individuals in really worthwhile labs.—L.S.R.

There are three worthwhile uses for bodies left to science:

1. Parts may be used for transplants (ie, kidneys, eyes, of which only the corneas is used, bone for grafts)

2. If the person had a rare or puzzling disease, an autopsy may at rest questions disturbing the family. But if is rare, indeed, that something of value is not learned by physicians, researchers and other members of the health team, including students.

3. There is a continuing need for bodies by medical schools. There is no way to study the human body nearly as good as dissecting one. Teams of two to six medical students are assigned to a body. Other bodies are needed for postgraduate study in the various specialties and for anatomy studies such as occupational therapy, physiology, dentistry, art students.

So, yes, it's a very worthwhile idea, and the need still exceeds the supply. How many newspaper articles have you read that said: "Notified that a kidney was available, the patient went into the hospital."

There are two principal ways by which the body can be left. One is to leave it to a medical school Committee are set up to handle this, but you can always get the proper forms to sign by writing to the department of anatomy of the medical school you prefer. If you will remember that, just write to the dean of the medical school, and it will be placed in the hands of the proper committee.

Bodies on which autopsies are performed, or have been used for organ transplants, cannot be used for teaching purposes, and bodies left for that purpose are left in a different way.

If you are interested only in eyes, your doctor doubtless can tell you of one or more eye banks That des -not -involve the eyes are removed (and replaced with artificial ones) but you must be sure with the least possible delay if the corneas of the eyes can be used

Dear Dr Thosteson: My daughter is developing a thickening of the skin in one spot or another, and since these spots sometimes can be pre-cancerous, it is wise to have a dermatologist (or other physician) attend to them.

The bidding:

Opening lead - two of clubs.

In some hands declarer cannot control a bad lie of the opponents' cards and must proceed on the assumption he will be forced with reasonable breaks. But there are other hands where he can manipulate the play so as to overcome an unlucky distribution of the cards, and in such cases he should bend every effort to do so.

Take this deal, where West leads a club — South winning East's king with the ace. Declarer sees four potential losers — a spade and three diamonds — and therefore starts looking for ways and means of eliminating one of them.

One possibility, after drawing trumps, is to lead a low spade towards the queen. If East has the king, South will make two spade tricks instead of one and in that way make the contract.

Another possibility is to attack diamonds by leading low towards the jack. If the jack loses to East's king or ace, South will still have the Q-9 left and can later lead a diamond from dummy and force them in an effort to score a diamond trick.

As the cards lie, none of these methods of play would succeed and South would go down one.

Actually, there is a way of playing the hand that guarantees the contract 100 per cent. After drawing trumps, declarer ruffs the Q-9 of clubs, discarding a spade from dummy. Then he leads the ace of spades and plays dummy's last club.

These plays put him firmly in the driver's seat. Regardless of which opponent wins with the king, he is bound to return either a spade or a diamond, which automatically limits the number of diamond losers to two.

The suggested method of play consistently eliminates the luck factor from the hand.

Postmaster's Dream Called Nightmare for Mail-sorter

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans for a modern and mechanized post office to produce more efficien! mail service are keeping up to schedule, post office spokesmen say.

But the postmaster's dream is a mail-sorter's nightmare, job-conscious union men say.

Target dates for completion of the new postal codes are at the end of 1973, while automation of large post offices for the coding of letters and faster sorting is expected to be complete in mid-1976.

In spite of the enthusiasm of post office administrators, the revolutionary plans for the mail service have not met with universal acclaim.

Unions with members in the service—particularly the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), which has most to lose through rear matchines —have objected to the automation moves. CUPW represents mail-sorters.

Union officials say the post office administrators, several of whom have moved into the public service from private industry, are not considering the human factor in their automation program.

Although government officials repeatedly go on record to say no existing employees will lose pay or jobs, they concede that the total number of postal workers may be reduced by as much as 1,000 to 1,500 if mail volumes remain the same.

They qualify comments by saying that it is difficult to predict what the future may bring. But they expect mail volumes to increase in future, despite, lower volumes of the last few years which resulted as many clients turned toward delivery methods with better service and lower rates.

Officials say they want to free the post office operating like a well-run private business. They say that steps toward mechanization will mean efficiency and fewer postal rate increases.

Main feature of the new post office technique is the use of a postal address code for each locality. The codes can reduce delivery areas down to a city block, and officials expect that in a few years the code will be as much a part of mailing addresses to clients as the name or street number.

Codes now are being used in eastern and southwestern Ontario, Sarka chewan and Alberta.

By early 1972, they will be introduced to Toronto, southcentral Ontario and eastern Quebec. Extension to the rest of the country will be complete by the end of 1973, says J. G. Fitzi, director of the coding and mechanization branch.

Machines costing $75 million are being bought to process the coded mail. The first have arrived and are seeking active duty in Ottawa. They include 24 coding desks and two letter-sorting machines.

More machines will be delivered to Ottawa in the spring. The next city to get them will be Winnipeg, where they will be installed in July. Others will go to Regina and Saskatoon in the summer.

The government has already bid for another machine to process mail—optical character readers (OCRs)—which will eliminate the need for some of the coding desk operators whom the government would have hired. The OCRs scan typewritten or printed letters and code them automatically for sorting.

Officials hope that eventually they will be able to get OCRs that will read handwritten codes.

At the Ottawa operation, coded mail is separated from uncoded letters, and classified so the coding desks mentend by operators paid $2.91 an hour, according to government job classification.

The coders punch the appropriate keys to mark letters with the yellow codes that are read by the letter-sorting machines. After marking, the letters are sorted act by the machines into the various coded areas of the city. The whole process takes only a few seconds.

Ottawa now has reached a level of acceptance of the codes of 50 per cent, sufficient for the system, to pay off, officials say.

And as more businesses change their mailing systems to include the code, much more of the mail will be handled by machines.

"Mail as a form of social intercourse is getting to be a thing of the past," one official said. Ninety per cent of mail now is generated commercially.

Mail not coded will suffer delay, officials say, as the uncoded letters will be handled manually.

The post office has also set standards for size, shape, thickness, whiteness, and slipperiness of envelopes. The standard letter sizes, for example, are set between 3½ by 5½ inches minimum and 5½ by 10 inches maximum.

Mail that does not meet standards will be handled manually by postal clerks.

The criteria are set in an agreement signed by Canada in 1969 as a member of the Universal Postal Union.

The government move to create the coders' positions unearthed a bone that union and management have been growling over while discussions go on for a new working contract for 28,000 postal workers.

The coders will be paid about 75 cents an hour lower than other postal workers, and the union feels the creation of the jobs should have been negotiated. The post office claims creation of the new jobs is not a subject of collective bargaining.

One effect of the dispute was that Prime Minister Trudeau found himself confronted during the election campaign in several communities by dissatisfied postal workers who object to the government's unilateral job classification.

Another is that postal workers are urging a Canada-wide boycott of the code.

Kerr Appeals Driving Right

TORONTO (CP) — The province will appeal an Ontario Supreme Court ruling that a person convicted of impaired driving can be granted the right to drive during working hours.

Justice Secretary George Kerr told the legislature Tuesday that an appeal would be launched.

In reviewing the case of truck driver Robert Lamoureux of Windsor, convicted of impaired driving last July, the court ruled Monday that the register can't suspend a driver when a judge has allowed the convicted driver to use his car for work.

Provincial Judge J. F. McMahon ruled that Lamoureux, 41, couldn't drive, except on the job, between 9 p.m. and midnight but the registrar, citing the Highway Traffic Act, suspended his licence completely.

In response to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, Mr. Kerr said until the final outcome of a decision by the court of appeal, he didn't think there would be any change in Ontario's position.

Mr. Nixon asked what the situation would be for anyone having his licence suspended under the Highway Traffic Act if the convicted driver entered an appeal.

Mr. Kerr said he believed the man probably would be able to drive "if the conviction is still within the 30-day period (allowed for launching appeals.) However, if it is beyond that, I would think that the suspension would stand."

The justice secretary also was asked why some drivers convicted in provincial courts had their licences suspended immediately while others could drive until they got a letter from the registrar asking for the licence.

"It is my understanding that if the judge does not make an order at the time the conviction is registered, and the licence of the accused is not asked for or picked up by the clerk or the police at the trial, the person can drive until he is so advised by the registrar of motor vehicles," Mr. Kerr said.

Region Too Small?

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon has expressed concern that population guidelines may block any hopes for a regional government system in Brant County, which includes the city of Brantford.

Mr. Nixon referred to the legislature Monday to guidelines which required a minimum population not 180,000 fo ra regional government. Brant has only 100,000.

He suggested population should not be a criteria, that there should be both small and large regions.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said he preferred to await the outcome of a study into the Brant region before making any commitments.

He said creation of a Hamilton-Wentworth region could relate dto Brant, indicating the two could form one region.

Winter Works Unveiled Tomorrow

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis promised the legislature Tuesday he will unveil Thursday his government's plans for make-work programs this winter.

Mr. Davis, replying to Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, said the cabinet will meet today to complete details of the new program and we will inform the house Thursday afternoon."

Last year, the government spent $35 million to create an estimate 625,000 new jobs.

Bales Refuses Further Fidinam Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales was accused Tuesday of putting "political loyalties" ahead of the responsibilities of his office in not ordering a further investigation into a donation to the Progressive Conservative party by an Ontario company.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon made the charge during a special debate on whether the government should investigate whether Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. might be liable to a charge under the Criminal Code in connection with a $50,000 donation to the party's campaign funds in 1971.

Mr. Bales accused Liberal opposition members of "engaging in a witch hunt."

The special debate was ordered by Speaker Allen Reuter when Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) invoked a little-used legislative rule which allows a 10-minute debate when a member of the legislature is dissatisfied with an answer given to him during question period in the house.

Mr. Roy had referred to a $27-million contract to erec ta building in which the major tenant would be the government-operate dWestmount's Compensation Board. The board leased Fidinam $25 million for the project and the Conservative party later received a $50,000 donation from the company.

Mr. Roy, a former Crown attorney, said in the legislature there appeared to be grounds to believe that a section of the Criminal Code had been violated when the donation was made.

The section says it is an offence for anyone to subsidize or indirectly subsidize a government or party in order to obtain or retain a contract with that government.

Mr. Bales declined to comment himself in further investigation of the matter during the special debate.

Car Cleanup Proceeds

TORONTO (CP) — Almost half a million abandoned cars cluttering the province still be cleared and processed for reuse during the next three years, Ontario Environment Minister James Auld announced Tuesday.

An ex'sotive catalogue of wrecks across the province was compiled last summer by students hired by the environment ministry under the Student Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program. Their study showed a figure of almost 500,000 vehicles.

Steel companies, which can use scrap iron and steel, are backing the recycling proposal.

Gift Warning 'Mistake'

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales told the legislature Tuesday a directive to county court judges warning against accepting gifts as the result of their duties, during the Christmas seaso nwas a mistake.

Mr. Bales told Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toront oSllgh Park) the letter to the judges was out "inadvertently." A second letter to'lowed when the mistake was d'scovered apologizing for the directive.

The letter warning agaiwa gifts or donations was a routine one and should have gone only to court officials," Mr. Bales said.

Backhoe Dangerous Vehicle

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court sentenced a truck driver to 30 days in jail for dangerous driving in the death of a woman pedestrian and criticized the man's employer and the Ontario ministry of transport.

Mr. Justice Haines gave the sentence Monday to Ferdinando Cervasapdo, 37, of Toronto, but allowed him to serve the time on weekends so that he can continue to earn a living.

Cervasgio was driving a truck with a backhoe attachment which obstructed his view when he struck and killed Mary Elizabeth Baird, 75, of Toronto, in October, 1971.

A jury found him guilty of dangerous driving.

Judge Haines, in his reasons for sentence, said:

"The accused is a simple Italian truck driver and backhoe operator who was following instructions of his employer in operating this contraption on the highway and it is my regret that they are not the ones in the accused's place."

However the driver could not escape responsibility, he said.

Judge Haines said in criticizing the ministry of transport:

"One is amazed how they (the company) obtained a licence for the truck. It may be that the department cannot assume the obligation of inspecting the vehicles it licenses.

"What worries me is that a witness, Mr. Harry Bradney of A. E. Joslin Machinery, swore that his company places such equipment on many trucks and that they are being used daily on the highways in Ontario. Perhaps the law cannot reach the owner of such vehicles. It may sometime."

Judge Haines directed that a copy of his reasons for sentence and photographs of the truck be sent to the registrar of motor vehicles.

Star-gazers

Dr. David Crampton, left and Dr. John Hutchings, astronomers at the Dominion Observatory in Victoria, claim to have found a unique double star 6,000 light years from earth. They say that one of the stars is hotter on one side than the other. (CP Photo)

Part-Time Jobs Feasible

TORONTO (CP) — A York University anthropologist said Tuesday there is no valid reason why employment cannot be arranged on a part-time basis for men and women.

Dr. Shelly Ramalis told the Federation of Jewish Women's Organization conference here that such an arrangement would benefit both sexes.

Men and women would have the time to develop closer family relationships, enjoy creative activities or extend their education, she said.

She said the present argument, which uses the high unemployment rate to keep women out of the labor force, is another subtle method of tying women to their apron strings.

Latta Denied Leave to Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Supreme Court of Canada decision Tuesday denied a motion by Keith Elgie Latta of Edmonton who sought an appeal before the high court of his conviction of non-capital murder.

One of Latta's grounds in seeking the appeal was there was new evidence to prove his innocence.

Latta was convicted by Judge and jury of the June 1971 death by shooting in Edmonton of Robert Neville.

Sunday morning window shoppers spotted Mr. Neville's body on the floor of his downtown travel agency.

Latta, a law professor at Queen's University in Kingston, and Mr. Neville had been business partners at one time.

Kissinger Coveted Washington Escort

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — At first glance Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's peace negotiator, might appear one of the most improbable sex symbols in the world.

He is stocky, wears thick glasses and speaks with a heavy German accent.

But improbable or not, the 48-year-old Kissinger is the one superstar in the Nixon administration, the most sought - after escort in Washington.

It is a role he seems to relish almost as much as being one of the world's most powerful men, the key foreign policy adviser of President Nixon.

His power is a source of his sex appeal, as it has been for many other figures in this power-conscious capital.

But his taste for the good life and his evident pleasure in the company of beautiful women, combined with his wit and talent as a conversationalist, have made him the most eligible unmarried man in Washington.

Kissinger, a German-born Jewish professor from Harvard who was not considered the life of a party in his professorial days, seemed somewhat surprised when he first came to Washington by all the attention paid him by society hostesses and columnists.

But he accepted the flattery and social prominence and cultivated his image as a party-lover and ladies' man.

Referred to by government colleagues as "Henry the K" and sometimes as "Henry the Kiss," Kissinger is not the secret swinger he is sometimes portrayed to be, according to some who know him or have been dated by him.

For one thing, he does not have the time—he works at the White House 12 to 15 hours a day, is dogged by a Secret Service agent when off duty and stands constantly on the alert for a call by radio from the president.

But while his social life is restricted, Kissinger has dated a string of attractive women in his four years as the president's right hand man on foreign policy.

He even found time to go to a fashionable and highly-publicized Washington party one night recently while preparing for climactic Vietnam peace negotiations in Paris.

Kissinger's appearance at the party stole the show—as he surely knew it would—and enhanced his reputation as a playboy who could find time for fun even in the midst of most delicate and crucial international diplomacy.

Kissinger's date was Margaret Osmer, who is about 30, a television producer with stunningly good looks who has been seen on his arm several times in the last year or two.

His fascination with show business is reflected in his frequent trips to Hollywood when he accompanies President Nixon to the Western White House in California. Among actresses he has taken out are Jill St. John, Mario Thomas and Samantha Eggar.

Bank Resisting Order To Replace Fire Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada says it doesn't have to give you a cent for a $5 bill.

"The holder of a Bank of Canada note has no right or presentment of his note to obtain anything from the bank," it says, in a legal argument filed with the Supreme Court of Canada.

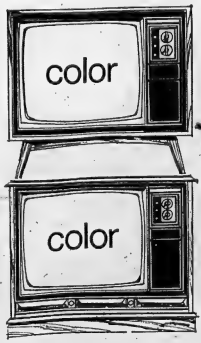
The central bank will ask the court Monday for permission to appeal Ontario court decisions which found that the bank must replace about $23,000 destroyed by a 1959 fire.

Bay Bus Terminals of North Bay, Ont., was transporting $26,000 between North Bay and Temiskaming when a fire destroyed all but $3,000 of the shipment.

The bus company, saying that the Bank of Canada notes were promissory notes, went to court seeking replacement of the burnt bills.

It was successful at trial and in the Ontario Court of Appeal. The bank is asking the Supreme Court to set aside those decisions.

For purposes of the legal argument, the bank has conceded that a $5 bill was destroyed in the bus fire.



In its written arguments, the bank said the only provision for redemption of Bank of Canada notes until 1937 obligated the bank to sell gold to any person "who demands it and tenders the purchase price in legal tender."

This obligation, contained in the Bank Act prior to 1967, extended only to 400-ounce gold bars and even this obligation was suspended when the Bank of Canada went into business in March, 1936.

In the revision of the Bank Act approved by Parliament in 1937, the gold privilege was wiped out.

Lack of Funds Delays Garbage Reclamation

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Plans to build Canada's first garbage reclamation plant here have been set back four to six months through lack of funds, a joint meeting of city and Kingston Township officials was told Tuesday.

Reginald Brown and James Clark, professors at Queen's University, said the project had counted on a large part of the required $1.5 million from a Canadian company. But the company, which they did not identify, had decided against the contribution.

"To say the least we were surprised when the organization chose not to take part," Dr. Brown said. "We had been confident of the source."

The original proposal last year involved the building of a plant which would separate paper and other reusable material from other garbage. The organic material then would be reduced to compost for sale to gardeners.

Dr. Brown said he is confident the money can be raised, but added it could take four to six months to do so. He said that if necessary he and Dr. Clark would seek aid from the United States. The only Canadian company approached to date, said Dr. Brown, wanted a return within two years.

Drapeau Says It's Late For Olympic Referendum

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal said Tuesday it is already too late to hold a referendum on whether or not to hold the 1976 Olympic Games here.

He cited difficulties in enumerating voters, the time required to organize the referendum and its cost—between $8 and $10 million for a national referendum and about $2 million for a local one.

The mayor repeated that the Olympics "won't cost the taxpayers one cent."

"All the budget for the Games' organization as well as the sports installations will come from the revenues generated by the Games."

He said all Olympic budgets will be made public as soon as the provincial and federal governments have finished studying Montreal's figures.

He added the federal government "has made it clear they won't spend a cent of the taxpayers money on the Games."

He said the idea of holding a referendum on the games had not even occurred to Montreal—less until a vote in Colorado cut off public funds for the planned winter Olympics in Denver.

Pauling Says Vitamin C May Cure Mental Ills

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Linus Pauling, who championed the use of Vitamin C as a cure for the common cold, now says vitamins may offer hope as a cure for mental illness.

"We now know that psychoanalysis has failed, and scientists are turning back to the concepts of the corporeal physiological origin of psychiatric disorders that were current 90 years ago," Dr. Pauling said in the current issue of the magazine Nutrition Today.

The Nobel Prize-winning chemist was critical of psychoanalysis for ignoring the possible nutritional causes of mental illness, adding: "The existence of an insane mind in a metabolically healthy brain is unlikely."

Dr. Pauling, whose study of the potential links between nutrition and mental disease began in the mid-1960s, termed the brain the most sensitive organ in the body.

Vietnam Troop Pullback Halted

SAIGON (AP) — The United States froze today further troop withdrawals from Vietnam pending the outcome of peace negotiations in Paris, American sources disclosed.

The U.S. command said it has received no orders from Washington for further troop cuts after reaching a Dec. 1 target of 27,000 ordered by President Nixon last August.

May Talk in Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no plan now for a meeting between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, but the White House has left open the possibility of such a summit conference "sometime in the future."

Nixon met for 2½ hours Wednesday with Nguyen Phu Duc, President Thieu's personal representative, for a first-hand account of Saigon's view of the effort to reach a Vietnam settlement. The South Vietnamese requested the meeting. It was originally scheduled to last one hour.

Ronald Ziegler, the White House spokesman, said the session was "a very detailed discussion, and a very frank discussion," but he refused to disclose the substance of the talks.

This attitude has marked the administration's responses to all que-tions recently about the state of the peace negotiations. Diplomatic sources in Saigon said Duc would propose a Nixon-Thieu meeting to reinforce the South Vietnamese view that no agreement should be signed that lacks a written pledge for North Vietnam to withdraw all its troops from the South.

The question of Hanoi's troop levels below the demilitarized zone has been the major sticking point in the private talks in Paris between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. The talks are scheduled to resume Monday.

Will Be No 'Avoidable' Delays

PARIS (AP) — The United States pledged today that President Nixon will not permit any avoidable delay in ending the Vietnam war.

U.S. Ambassador William Porter told the 168th weekly session of the Paris peace talks:

"We had hoped, as you know, for such an agreement sooner. We worked hard to bring this about, but the issues in this very conflict are complex, as all recognize, and can be neither dismissed nor ignored.

"We reiterate to you our president's firm intention to permit no avoidable delay in ending this war and entering a period of peace and reconstruction. Peace, when it comes, will be all the more stable and enduring if it is the result of planning careful and equitable relationships for the future."

Monetary Plan of U.S. Is Opposed

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Differences between the United States and most of its major trading partners remained unsettled today on how to build a more stable world monetary system.

But finance officials from 20 countries generally believed they had made a promising start in three days of talks toward devising a system of international finance that would be less vulnerable to crisis than the present one.

Jeremy Morse, British chairman of the so-called committee of 20 finance officials set up to recommend reforms, expressed optimism that his panel would complete an outline for reform by the time of the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Kenya next September.

There was widespread agreement among the 120 financial experts from 20 countries—including rich and poor nations—that the present system was not working satisfactorily and must be improved.

R. William Lawson, a deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, headed the Canadian delegation.

Objections to a comprehensive U.S. plan for reform focused on an American proposal to set international standards requiring a country to take corrective measures in the event of a sudden rise or drop in its monetary reserves.

Some European countries showed suspicion and distrust of the mechanism and many (the three days of debate in Washington, informed sources said.

But the U.S. position appeared only is flexible. Morse said after the three-day meeting that the notion of action automatically being required to correct substantial shifts in reserves had been dropped.

The next meeting of the reform group is set to take place in Paris from Jan. 23 to 25th.

Moores Shuffles Cabinet

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A planned shuffle of Premier Frank Moores' Progressive Conservative cabinet appeared to be surfacing in bits and pieces Wednesday as two more cabinet ministers disclosed they no longer held their portfolios.

It brought to three the number of cabinet changes revealed so far this week. The latest moves involved Social Services Minister Tom Hickey and Supply Minister Gordon Dawe, who said they no longer held their posts as they left a cabinet meeting. Education Minister John Carter said Tuesday he had been dismissed from his office by the premier.

Provinces Said Ignored In Driving Law

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The federal government knew the provinces would be unwilling to enforce liberalized legislation governing license suspensions for impaired drivers, Ontario Justice Secretary George Kerr said Wednesday.

Mr. Kerr said the federal government's decision to ignore the provincial stand was the cause of the current legal battle over the legislation.

The Criminal Code was amended earlier this year to allow judges to permit persons convicted of impaired driving to drive at work when their jobs require it.

On Monday, the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled that the province did not have the right to suspend the license of Windsor truck-driver Robert Lamoureux, who had been given permission by the convicting judge to drive at work.

Four Die 'Copters Save Eight from Fire

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Spectators jammed streets in the heart of the city as five women leaped from the 15th floor of a burning building. Some swept, some prayed as helicopters raced with death to rescue eight men trapped on the roof. Four persons died.

The women on the 15th floor of the 15-storey building called for help as firemen tried unsuccessfully to reach them with extension ladders.

"We were there ninety to two short," said Fire Chief Louis San Salvador. He said there was a possibility of arson because there was a smaller fire in the building earlier in the day.

As the flames licked nearer, the five women began jumping. They plunged to a rooftop of an adjoining building — a fall of eight storeys.

Two who survived the fall had their impact broken by trees on the lower roof who linked arms and tried to catch them. They were listed in critical condition.

The fourth victim of the fire, a man, was found on the 14th floor, stalwed, apparently a suffocation victim. All the dead were from the New Orleans area.

Eight men were trapped on the roof, of the burning Rault Centre, an office - residence building.

John Lockwood, an oil company helicopter pilot, was flying by the building when he saw the fire and spotted the men through a haze of smoke.

Lockwood landed to let out a passenger and then went back to the rooftop. He evacuated men in two trips. Another copter got the remaining two, just before the roof gave way.

Anguish and Prayer

Mrs. Grills Dead

Mrs. Bernice Elmy Grills, wife of recently-retired member of parliament Lee Grills, of Belleville, died early today in Belleville General Hospital.

She had been in ill health for several months.

Nonetheless, her death came as a shock to the couple's many friends and the community generally where Mrs. Grills had become widely known through her support of her husband's endeavors during his parliamentary career which began in 1967.

On many occasions, Mr. Grills publicly made a point of mentioning the help given him in public office by his wife, whose death came in her 58th year.

Born in Shannonville, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Allen MacDonald. For many years she and her husband lived on Sidney township's third concession before moving to Belleville 16 years ago.

Mrs. Grills was a member of Bridge Street United Church and of the United Church Women. She also was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Chapter 55, Belleville and of the White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Besides her husband she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William (Betty) Ireland, of Belleville, and a sister, Mrs. Marjorie Coyle, of Belleville.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service will take place Saturday at 1:30 p.m. directed by Rev. George Ward, assisted by Dr. H. M. Davis. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Credit Where Due, Trustee Chuckles

Donald Williams, returned to office as a public school trustee by acclamation, is off the election circuit this year.

But he is chuckling to himself about the political manoeuvres of some candidates.

"I smile to myself," the Hastings County board of education chairman said, "when I see other politicians throughout the county mention holding the line on municipal taxes without giving credit to the school boards, who have been responsible for the reduction.

"Yet if municipal taxes increase, they are the first to jump on the school boards."

One of the reasons he had for public school trustees were returned by acclamation this year is public satisfaction with the job they've done in cutting costs this year, said Mr. Williams. 1971 mill rates were lower in many municipalities because the school boards required less money from the municipal property levy.

"I would point out that the rate went down in Belleville this year because the school board requisition was lower," Mr. Williams said.

He feel part of the reason for the large number of seats filled by acclamation is the "exciting staff," Mr. Williams added. "Our teachers have been a good lot and the public has supported their efforts and ours.

Volunteers, Money Urgently Needed

Seventy senior citizens in Belleville and the surrounding rea look forward e a c h week to a single hot meal served with friendship, company and conversation by the city's Volunteer Bureau.

That more than 700 more people aren't getting enough nourishment was one of several "eye-openers" contained in a multi-thousand dollar senior citizen survey conducted by the United Community Services during the past years.

They don't receive the weekly "meal on wheels" and the volunteer bureau isn't likely to be able to do anything about it for some time.

A group of volunteer women gather each Wednesday in the basement of one of 12 Belleville churches and begin preparing and delivering 70 hot meals. Sometimes beef, sometimes turkey, but it is hot and it costs the senior citizens 50 cents.

Prepared in small, meagerly equipped kitchens designed to handle half the load, the food is then packed and driven to homes in the city nd adjacent areas.

"We are trying to get a service to them but we have just so many people to work with, and just so much room in the kitchen and just so much money," said Ruth Burrows, co-ordinator of the bureau which has no paid staff.

First on the list of priorities to handle the ever-increasing list of needy people is more volunteers followed closely by a large kitchen.

"We are looking for an institutional kitchen, in school, hospital or earning it on a where we can begin preparing enough food," said Mrs. Burrows.

They would need hundreds of volunteers to transport the food, she said.

For the organization that received $1,700 annually from the United Appeal, the problem of finding the needs on a seven - day - a - week schedule is almost out of the question unless they get help from other organizations.

Mrs. Burrows suggests that possibly other women's organizations could take overe the meals on a certain day of the week.

Mrs. Burrows would like to see organizations across the city each working one day a week providing enough people ing "the huge load" of a full-time operation on one group's shoulders.

"Even to go that far hogties the mind right now," said Mrs. Burrows. "We add perhaps one more day a week to the program and cater to perhaps an additional 150 people. If this work out we will build from there.

"It is better to start slowly than to jump into this thing with a big splash," she said.

Mrs. Burrows explained her organization would have to be selective in the additional people it took on.

There are people who can't afford to order out for hot meals and such," she said. "These are the people we are trying to reach."

Whatever happens, the Wednesday Meals on Wheels program cannot be extended greatly without additional volunteers and better kitchen facilities.

Apple Queen Hurt in Crash

AMELIASBURGH (Special) — The Ontario Apple Queen, Janet Wetherall of RR1, Carrying Place, has received promotion tour in Toronto cut short by a shattering motor car accident.

She suffered a mild concussion and a sprained wrist in a traffic collision while riding as a passenger in a car operated by Mrs. J. Clack, of the Ontario Apple Marketing Commission.

The accident happened on Lakeshore Boulevard as the Queen and her host travelled to the commission's exhibit at the Royal Winter Fair.

Since returning home Miss Wetherall has had persistent headaches and spent a week in the Belleville General Hospital for treatment and observation.

She is booked to make appearances to publicize the Province's apple industry next month and in the new year.

Rollins Wins Contract

The Maurice H. Rollins Construction Company of Belleville has won the contract for construction of 34 more senior citizens' apartment units in Napanee.

The Rollins tender at $383,-240 was the lowest of two bids received. The tender includes the cost of land for the building.

The structure, to be built on Water Street bordering the Napanee River, will be of two storeys, with each unit having an area of 460 square feet.

Finances, Firehall Issues in Sidney

WALLBRIDGE (Staff) — Candidate for council in Sidney Tom Nobles last night criticized township council for having a surplus in its treasury, contending it should be spent to meet municipal needs.

This and similar comments to a meet-the-candidates gathering here Wednesday prompted candidate for deputy reeve, Glenn Meyers, to state he feels it is better business to have a surplus than debentures.

The township now has a surplus of about $90,000.

The Meyers' stand on the township's financial attitude was also endorsed by incumbent councillor Hadley Richardson and Ernest Kells a former Sidney reeve seeking a council seat.

"I feel we should try to keep things on a pay-as-you-go basis," he said, noting Belleville is taking pride that it is able to sell debentures with relative ease.

"We have not needed them except for schools," Mr. Kells said.

One major issue that surfaced at a recent Bayside meeting between candidates and ratepayers — the location of a new township firehall — got added attention last night.

Mr. Nobles takes the position the new firehall should be built along Highway 2 — "where the population is".

Incumbent councillor Reg McCurdy told the gathering the proposal to build the new hall adjacent to the township offices here was based on the fact much of the township's volunteer force lives nearby and the site is close to the tive meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel Wednesday. Brown said police will cooperate with new arbitration legislation soon to be passed at Queen's Park.

township's principal arterial roads.

However, he said he hoped a new force could be trained in the Bayside area, indicating he would support efforts to get such a force off the ground.

Newcomer to the council race, Graham Grandy takes the position Sidney should not necessarily be promoted as a fast growth area.

He said what is essential is that the township be developed as a good place to live.

Candidate for deputy reeve Arthur Carleton called for road improvements as did Mr. Nobles who called road conditions "a major issue".

Fred Aziz, another newcomer candidate, expressed concern over surface water drainage and septic tank problems. He also favors a firehall "along the front" of the township.

On the firehall question, Mr. Nobles said "if it wasn't for the grace of the CFB Trenton fire department, we would be lost".

Former Belleville Officer

Police Move to Unseat Chief

The Police Association of Ontario is preparing a documented report on alleged breaches of authority by Orangeville police chief John Kent.

The charges, to be forwarded to the Ontario Police Commission, include one which claims Chief Kent stipulates officers must receive authorization from himself or the force sergeant before making arrests. Another is a complaint about the lack of sirens on the department's three police cruisers because of the chief's belief that sirens attract crowds.

Constable John Muirhead, secretary of the Orangeville Police Association, made the allegations during the PAO's quarterly executive meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel Wednesday.

He said he brought the matter to the PAO because a local police commission failed to take positive action after receiving a seven - page brief of grievances Sept. 20. The brief was prepared by the 10-member Orangeville Police Police Association.

Muirhead said the department has a perennial problem making arrests because of Kent's edict. The men are instructed to issue appearance notices or call a justice of the peace if neither the chief nor sergeant is available. While both alternatives require later appearances, they don't keep drunken rock-throwers off the streets unless they're unlawfully retained, he said.

Besides a ban on sirens, Muirhead said Kent also forbids the use of red flashing lights at night. According to the chief, the lights wake people up, he said.

Among the other allegations were the following:

—None of the cars are equipped with first aid kits, fire extinguishers, signal flares or pry bars. Muirhead said he once had to tear a T-shirt off a man's back to use as a bandage.

—One car has been deemed unsafe under the Highway Traffic Act by three different mechanics. Problems include a cracked windshield and wobbly steering mechanism.

—Officers speaking to women other than their wives while on duty could file occurrence reports with the department.

—Each officer has a monthly arrest quota. If it is not met in all categories, it can refuses to allow the officer to go to Ontario Police College, thereby denying him the opportunity for pay and seniority improvements.

All either of the oversight staff members misses a break-in, he could lose a day off or be charged under the Police Act, Orangeville, with a population of just over 10,000 persons, has approximately 600 doors and 3,500 windows," observed Muirhead.

PAO Administrator Dennis Latten said his organization hopes to bring the charges before the Ontario Police Commission in the near future. He and the Orangeville Police Association are preparing documented evidence in a bid to unseat Kent from his job.

The Orangeville Police Commission, consisting of the mayor, a county court judge and a provincial court judge, met with Orangeville policemen three weeks after receiving the brief but said they would take no action at that time. Since then, the commission has forwarded a letter stating the matter will be given deak with to their satisfaction.

In their report, the commissioners said they would give favorable consideration" to the purchase of cruiser equipment, a decibel Lab... but suggested might be made too late. The commission also ordered a new car, but Muirhead said he wondered what to do until it arrives.

Kent, who 15 years ago was on the Belleville Police Force, has been chief to Orangeville for the past seven years.

Discharges Protested By Police

Ontario policemen are not satisfied with the awarding of absolute discharges for minor drug offences.

Dennis Latten, administrator of the Police Association of Ontario, says the discharges are created "a hodge-podge the way they are being used". Varying court rulings are "making the police look like fools," he added.

He told delegates to Wednesday's Police Association of Ontario meeting at the Four Seasons that the PAO was preparing a brief on the subject to be presented at the next general meeting in March. The brief will go to the Canadian Police Association for forwarding to the federal Justice Department.

Latten said many judges base their decisions on presentence reports while others "pass the buck" by automatically awarding the discharges.

"If there's not supposed to be a record, how do we keep track of these individuals if they move?" he said.

The police are concerned with specific details about the discharges.

"We want to know who was involved, what he was charged with and why he got the absolute discharge," said Latten.

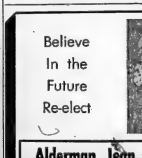
Scott Would Use 'Green Hornets'

Mayor J. Russell Scott says Belleville may hire "green hornets" to issue parking tickets and deliver summons.

The parking watchdogs — familiar sights in larger centres — would perform tasks now fulfilled by city police.

The Mayor released the news during a luncheon speech to a Police Association of Ontario meeting Wednesday at the Four Seasons Hotel. President of the Municipal Police Governing Bodies of Ontario, he told the men:

"We, together with parking authorities, the police commission and the police, are considering whether we can not arrive at some means of utilizing our parking facility people to take care of traffic street parking problems and to take care of delivering of summons."



The plan, under which two or three persons would get hired, was suitable for all smaller communities, said the mayor. Arbitrating jurisdiction would be handled here by Belleville Police Association negotiators.

Dr. Scott, campaigning for re-election Dec. 4, said the change would come about early in the new year if he wins.

The Farm Scene

Farming and the sphere of agriculture generally represent at once one of the most challenging and satisfying of callings. The farmer, attuned to the seasons, to the earth and its riches, is privileged to be closer to nature than those of other callings.

Most of us, however remote from the rural parts and the activities of the farmer, have at least some idea, too of the hazards involved: the morning to night involvement, the demands of marketing, the heartbreak of drought and animal loss through fire or disease, the occasional farm accident.

But there is an enduring stability about the farm and its workers, starting with the young people in 4-H and continuing through agricultural college, that merits the admiration, even the envy of the rest of us. More and more today we come to appreciate also the scientific basis of modern farming, so that up in Kemptville the farm educational establishment there is called the College of Agricultural Technology.

A ceremony at the College recently saw more than $6,000 in scholarships and bursaries presented to students, many of them, according to principal Dr. Ford Stinson, "the result of the generosity of the many friends of the College."

And something of a departure from custom — and after all, why shouldn't the faculty have its competitive instincts kindled — Dr. Stinson came out tops in the staff milking competition. He won a milking pail!

Awards went to a large number of young people from all over Eastern Ontario and among them was Edward Hunt of Tweed who received a bursary. Also reflecting the broad range of subjects offered by the college, as well as the far-ranging students, was a journalism prize for a young man with a Scottish name. Alistair MacDonald, from London, England.

But we are concerned here primarily with agriculture and we can see how it is moving with the times. In many ways it remains a profession involving brawn and manpower, but having long since moved into fresh technological spheres, the need for young people to be acquainted with the latest discoveries in farming is more than ever apparent.

And what's this we see happening at the Royal Winter Fair: Jacqueline Gartshore, the Worcester elegant lady turned out in a long gown and winner in the ladies lead class, was pictured recently exhibiting polled Dorset sheep at the fair. She was followed by three other beautifully-groomed young women with their woolly charges. Why the fashion show setting then? A requirement of the class was that entrants be attractive and lend elegance to the event. The overall objective was to improve the image of a sheep show and help promote wool.

Bravo . . . and yet isn't this something that is already encouraged in 4-H and so very apparent in the attractive young women we've grown the dairy princess shows? If such an image has been absent from the show ring in the past it is good to see it apparent in this new requirement at the winter fair

Takes All Sorts

Conservative member Patrick Nowlan from Nova Scotia campaigned in rugged fashion during the federal election.

As Ottawa correspondent Farmer Tuesington points out, he started out at first light September 25 to walk the length and breadth of the Annapolis Valley, finishing up in Halifax.

It may not be in the spirit of rapid transit which is now coming in this neck of the woods in Ontario, at least, but nevertheless Mr. Nowlan found it an effective way of meeting his constituents.

In the United States he has a counterpart in Senator Proxmire, who may be remembered for his stern grilling of Defence Secretary Laird concerning the U.S. bombing missions in Vietnam.

We believe it is Wisconsin that Sen. Proxmire hails from, but in any event here was this TV film of him jogging through the countryside up in those parts. At the age of 55, no less, he was showing no signs of being out of breath as he talked with a newsman keeping pace (well sort of!) beside him.

Proxmire has been jogging for ten years and he does it in business suit and tie.

What a mans!

The Same-Only Different

A Government That Is Trying to Mend Its Ways

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

Conservative leader Stanfield has asked a sharp question that cuts through the fog of constitutional argument as to what might develop in this strange new Parliament of minorities.

He has not fretted, as have so many, about what under the constitution, in the varying political circumstances of the days ahead, Governor General Roland Michener should or even would do.

He does not question the constitutional right of minority Prime Minister Trudeau to try clinging to power by the fingernails of the New Democrats, but he does wonder about the political morality of it.

He has suggested that such a government, determined to hold office at almost any price, could not be the same government that went to the polls last October asking for re-election and another four years of rule.

That Trudeau government ran on its record, set out its principles, expounded its policies, clearly enough that Canadians knew pretty well what it stood.

So they voted for or against it on that basis.

They were aware of its accomplishments and its failures.

And among those failures that most often caught the headlines and made the TV and radio news was the studied neglect of Finance Minister John Turner to say what, if anything, he was going to do about that three percent increase in personal income tax due in the new year.

Another was Manpower Minister Mackasey's defiant "the unemployment insurance scheme is sacred to me;" even while, riddled with abuses, the UIC fund was running some $700 million or more in the red.

Still another was Mr. Mackasey's long unconcern about the thousands and thousands of counterfeit "tourists" crashing Canada's immigration gates. Also some of them criminals, draftdodgers, deserters, and a great many of them penniless.

Yet another was the government's collective determination, in the name of national unity, to impose bilingualism directly on the civil service and indirectly on the public whether they wanted, or thought they needed, it or not.

Finally, among the biggest of the government's firiaxes was former Finance Minister Benson's tax reform," the full impact of which will not be felt until next April when Canadians are faced with those complicated multi-paged income tax forms. And won't that be a delight!

There were other things the government had done in its first four years of power — easy pickole, "country club" prison life, ever higher taxes, wasteful grants and handouts.

But these were relatively minor irritants compared to the big ones caused by Turner, Mackasey and Pelletier.

Now it is all changed.

Mr. Mackasey has backtracked on his "everyone-receive-no-matter-what" immigration policy and is talking gravely of "tightening up" on unemployment insurance abuses.

Mr. Turner is thinking of dropping that three percent tax increase.

There might even be time to do something about those baffling new income tax forms.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said the election gave him "the message," and with all these changes in the making, it is a whole new government with a whole new policy and program.

But it is not the one you thought it was when you marked your ballot either for or against it.

So, wonders Mr. Stanfield, is right and proper for this a whole new government, shedding its old image like a molecular bird, to be called on to act as it had the divine right to rule.

What does it make of the last election

Perhaps just another public opinion poll.

The public did not like the last government, and said so in the polling stations.

So now the government is —voting itself, mostly with the advice and even assistance of the NDP.

And what does that make it

Community Planning Trends Worry Some People

The Intelligencer.

The citizens of Belleville will decide Dec. 4, 1972, whether we will have planned, orderly, progressive growth. Or the unplanned, uncontrolled growth of the past, with the developers in full control. With Mayor J. Russell Scott refusing to take the necessary measures to protect the citizens and their neighborhood.

Mayor J. R. Scott must take much of the responsibility for the inadequate zoning bylaws and proper planning in Belleville. For Mayor Scott made the motion to send the report presented Aug. 26, 1971 by planning director Bert Kenny of the former Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, to the Quinte Area Planning Board thereby deferring any action on planning director Kenny's recommendations. Which would have helped alleviate the situation in Belleville with regard to the improper building of apartments in areas where they never should have been allowed.

To quote from the report of the Quinte Area Planning Board meeting in The Intelligencer, 31st January 1972 "The consulting firm of Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd., was last night issued an ultimatum by Belleville Mayor Scott, to prepare the official plan for the City by November of 1972. After the meeting the Mayor gave his personal guarantee "I assure the public it will be done by November." Well Mayor Scott, what happened to the Official Plan and your personal guarantee?

The residents of Elizabeth Crescent and surrounding area have had a chance that the Subordinate Planning Advisory Board would reject Maurice H. Rollins Construction Limited bid for rezoning the area from R2 Single family Residen.tal to R 4G (Townhouse).

The elected representatives of City Council have a queer sense of fair play and justice. Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee as reported in The Intelligencer, January 4, 1972.

Alderman Orr, chairman, Mayor Scott, Alderman Russell, Carter, Ireland and Keegan — they advised to accept the application for the rezoning by Maurice Rollins then voted on City Council for the rezoning over the objections of Aldermen Robin Jeffrey, Soutter and David without giving the affected citizens a public hearing. So, they acted as judge and jury, without the citizens having a chance to win a decision in their favor.

In the past we have had Citizens Ratepayer groups present petitions, write letters to Mayor Scott and City Council only to have their efforts defeated to save areas of this City from being torn and uprooted, for the benefit of a few developers.

We have had members of council threatened with possibility of personal lawsuit for their efforts to protect the rights of the citizens, conflict of interest charges against Mayor Scott, which have become more confused with the passing of many months and citizens unable to get at the truth because of the conflicting statements being made.

The people of Belleville must decide if these are the kind of representatives they want to run the affairs of Belleville, for honesty, integrity and fair play seem to be out of style in Belleville.

The choice on December 4 is clear: we can have planned, orderly growth, with apartments and building constructed in a proper manner and the right locations, which will be to benefit present and future generations. Or we can continue the present haphazard, unplanned growth, which is destroying Belleville at a little more each day.

A vote for Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey could be the turning point, for she has consistently stood up for the rights of all citizens, not just special interest groups.

Now is the time for a change. A vote for Robin Jeffrey is a vote for the future, giving the citizens a say in what is going to happen to them and Belleville. Which has been sadly lacking in Belleville for we have had no place to go for a fair deal.

K. GLYNNE JONES

Property Owned At Least 25 Years

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having been a constant reader of your very fine newspaper for a number of years, having been born and raised in Belleville, I have been following with interest your happenings on the present mayoralty campaign.

As to this conflict of interest issue that has been raised, I find something very difficult to understand. I know from personal knowledge that the property in question on North Front Street has been owned by Dr. Scott for over 25 years. I personally planted evergreen trees assisted by other people on this property at least 25 years ago, long before he ever entered municipal life.

Why should he be criticized on this late date for property-wise happenings down through the years. When he has been incarcerated by the whole city council, minus two members, at any wrong doing. I feel very sure he has nothing to be critic.ized for and I think this repetition of mud slinging that is taking place is simply ridiculous and is only being done to camouflage a very weak platform on the side of his opponent.

Dr. Scott has brought numerous industries to our city, enabling our young people to obtain work here and allowing us to keep our families together, and decreasing the unemployment in our city. I'm sure this means a great deal to the people of our city to retain family life intact.

I'm proud to tell anyone that I'm a citizen of Belleville. Having talked to people from cities both east and west of Belleville, I have heard only words of praise for getting our city back on the map. It has woken from a sleep of Rip-Van-Winkle proportions and is now going places.

Thank you for your courtesy in publishing my views and looking forward to many more years of reading your very excellent newspaper.

A TAXPAYER

Candidate Gets "Dear John" Letter

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Following is my version of a "Dear John" letter.

Dear John,

I really hate to write this letter, John, but I've just got to be honest with you.

I've been thinking over your new proposal for a few weeks now, and I just can't see any way it would work out — for you or for me.

Our present relationship has been going along pretty well now for a long time — about 12 years. About 11½ years. My only beef is that you're older than I am, you're all tied up and that nice girl in your office tells me to call Bill or Fred when I call, they'll look after me. Now, they're good guys, too, John, but somehow you're the one I really want. You know how it is.

But you do try a gal's patience, like when you say, "I'll see you at 5," and I have to cool my heels until 6.30. And, there are rumors (I hate to believe them) that you are actually broke dating, that you've told others you'll see them at 8." That hurts!

Now, as I said, in spite of this we've had a pretty good relationship for a long time. I know you're busy and I sometimes wonder how you keep all those balls bouncing at the same time. But now you want to change things — to bounce still another ball, so to speak.

And I think that's just one too many. Maybe it's like that Consumers of interest thing they're all talking about. A person has to look after his own interests and I don't think I'd be doing that if I said, "O.K., John, here is that other ball you want — go bounce it."

So, I won't be putting my "X" opposite "Slack" next Monday. Nothing personal, mind you; I think you'd do a fine job for the city. But a good doc is hard to find these days, and I'm still acting in my own interests — and maybe other patients — and maybe even your own.

A PATIENT VOTER

Pensioners' Organization

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On behalf of the executive and myself of the Belleville and District Branch of Pensioners Association, I would like to extend our sincere thanks for Harry Mudhall's article on our organization.

We have an active working executive and credit should also be given to them for their part in getting our group off the ground.

Their names are as follows: Mr. C. Calnan, vice-president and information chair man; Mrs. M. Webb, recording secretary; F. Allcorn, treasurer; Mrs. C. Latchford, telephonist; Mrs. G. W. Coleman, C. Howie, Mrs. E. M. McDonald and A. Mountain.

We now have 220 retired persons who have signed our cards including the above and endorse our aims and objectives and are hoping for further support from approximately 3,200 pensioners 65 and over residing in Belleville.

Our thanks should be extended to Don Whalen, 231 Front St., who will make space available to our organization later this month in his office where pensioners can sign our cards to endorse our aims.

John Bunyan, English religious writer, was baptized 344 years ago today—in 1628 —near his Bedfordshire home. Early in life, Bunyan was beset by religious visitations, one of which bade him give up the pleasure of church-bell ringing, else the steeple would fall on him. At age 32 he was imprisoned for 12 years for heretical preaching, during which time he wrote Pilgrim's Progress. He wrote about 60 books before his death in 1688, including Grace Abounding to the Chief of Sinners, one of the world's finest autobiographies.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 20, 1952

Candidates for aldermanic office in Monday's municipal election spoke to a very small crowd of interested taxpayers at the Chamber of Congress sponsored pre-election meeting held in BCIVIS auditorium. Less than 100 residents heard the various candidates speak at what turned out to be the quietest pre-election meeting in years. After the 11 candidates had spoken, A. M. Haig briefly reviewed the work of council during the past year and said the day was coming when greater financial assistance must be given to municipalities by government or the municipalities would face bankruptcy.

Completion of 360 feet of sewer on Dufferin Ave. between Pine St. and Victoria Ave. is expected within a week or 10 days, weather permitting. The installation completes the sewerage facilities on that part of the avenue which is expected to be opened to traffic at once. Water facilities now extend for a distance of 360 feet north of Pine St.

Through the membership committee headed by Jack McIntosh, Kiwanis membership took a decided boost at Tuesday's luncheon, when 11 prospective members were introduced to the club members. This is the largest number that have entered the club at one time in its history.

Chase Costs Fine, Licence

A wild ride along Pinnacle and Station Streets on an October Saturday night cost a Milford man $300 and suspension of his driver's licence for one year.

Richard Dance, 18, hit speeds approaching 100 miles per hour and sideswiped another car before coming to a dead end at the Canadian National express sheds. He was convicted in Belleville Provincial Court Tuesday of dangerous driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

City police Constable Steven Tebworth, who followed Dance in his own car, said he tried to stop the speeding vehicle by shining a flashlight into the window, only to have Dance accelerate. Another car, driven by Doug Burton of Belleville, joined the chase along Station Street after Dance's Chevelle struck his on the front fender.

The incident occurred shortly before midnight on Oct. 7.

Course Review

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — An innovation to the registration process for new students at St. Francis Xavier University here has produced favorable reaction. New students are encouraged to monitor introductary classes before choosing the subjects they would take in their first year at the university. Dr. John T. Sears, dean of arts and science, said: "I believe that the new students who did sample courses had a more realistic view of the subjects they intended to take."

WINS AWARDS

these sewers until the main trunk sewer up the Moira River was completed.

Otherwise, he said raw sewage would have flowed directly into the river and it would not have been allowed.

He said a contract would be let next year for the above sewers and this would be followed by more sewers in 1974 which would mean all of Hillcrest would then be serviced with sewers and water.

Total estimated cost of the Bridge Street reconstruction is $304,000 including $194,000 for the road work and $110,000 for storm sewer installation.

Subsidies expected from the Department of Transportation and Communications would amount to $126,200, including $51,500 for storm sewers and $69,800 for road work, leaving $183,700 to be debentured by the city.

Road work for the Hanna Street extension is estimated at $28,900 with sanitary sewers to cost an estimated additional $26,400. The sewer installation would be paid for under local improvements.

Sidney Street, and for a Hanna Street extension, were received yesterday by city council.

The Hillcrest Sanitary sewers are in addition to a sewer contract already being carried out in the area.

Sanitary sewers are proposed for sections of Centre St., Safe Blvd. West, Byron and Adam Streets at a total estimated cost of $183,000.

Of this amount, $52,038 would be borne by the municipality with the cost to abutting property owners, including private drain connections being $131,461.

It is recommended that the work be paid for in 15 annual instalments.

Referring to the Hillcrest services, Mayor J. Russell Scott said there would have been no point in installing

Discipline Said Industry's Need

Scots-born executive Bill Pettigrew believes there is a great need for discipline in industry and among industrial workers and staff generally.

People like discipline, he said in the course of a Rotary club discussion yesterday on attitudes, communication and practices with employees.

With discipline, he said, people know where they stand and it should be imposed from the start.

Later, on the subject of communication between management and employees, Mr. Pettigrew mentioned talks at his firm on the possibility of working three Saturdays so employees could have a week off between Christmas and the New Year. The discussions with employees however were inconclusive and Mr. Pettigrew went on: "Frankly, I think we could do more telling and less asking . . . this is probably the wrong approach but I think we should have a more disciplined approach, right down the line, and we would get farther."

On communication within firms, educational establishments or whatever, Albert College principal Lorne Shewfelt said suggestions received were analysed year by year while motel executive Gordon Collins said communication was encouraged with employees but it was felt there should be some control lest it become too personal or frivolous.

Stan Reston suggested every link in the chain of command was important and Joe questioned the right of department heads to leave early, say on a Friday on the eve of a vacation, while secretaries and other staff remained on.

Bank manager Doug Forbes said privileges such as that had to be earned.

Don Thrush mentioned, in connection with employee participation, a government typist who earned $500 for an idea that saved her department thousands of dollars.

The subject of boredom at work brought the suggestion that it was present to some degree in most jobs and that it varied with the degree of interest the worker had in his task, as well as with his level of intelligence. Switching of jobs where possible and keeping employees busy were mentioned as counters to boredom.

The discussion was chaired by Fred Ehler.

Ugandans Enjoy New Picton Home

Traffic in Picton has impressed the newcomers with its similarity to that of the larger centres in their country.

Shortly after coming to Picton, the family spent a great deal of time walking through its streets and has pronounced it "a very clean place."

The children have found the school system here much the same as their own in Uganda and all enjoy classes at Queen Elizabeth School.

Television programs are the same in both countries but here there is a wider selection of channels. Food, cosmetics and reading material also bear marked similarities.

When the family's landlady was invited to dine with the newcomers she was surprised when she was not served highly seasoned dishes. Instead she enjoyed a favorite Ugandan dinner of fish and chips.

The Ugandan family has decided to become thoroughly familiar with Canadian customs and to seek work here when an adjustment to local ways has been made.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CORWELL

Is an intense hobbyist a good husband?

YES, if he shares his hobby with his wife, and if the family budget can support it. Even so, money isn't the main trouble if a husband indulges deeply in a hobby to the exclusion of his wife. He may unconsciously yearn to escape into his hobby; not that he is interested in his pastime, but because he tries to become so absorbed in it that his hobby could take his mind off the realization that he is married.

Does a child resent being corrected?

NOT the correction itself, but a child might resent the way he is being corrected for misbehavior. For instance, if he dawdles on the way home from school and his mother "reads 'em" him, the child might not mind the yelling and screaming so much as he wants to be told why it is so important for him to get home on time. He might believe that his mother is unduly concerned to ease her own anxiety, not because she worries about him.

Will old age 'mellow' a real scrapper?

WELL, advancing years will certainly slow him down quite a bit. But if he was always a gentle battler, such an individual is going to continue that way to his last breath. Sometimes, though, a scrapper does seem to mellow as he reaches old age. He might have always used his belligerency to hide an easy-going nature, and if it is only that now, as the years come upon him he has grown tired of the pretense and wants to let his guard down.

Successful Living

Her Foster Parents Cared

By DORIS CLARK

Our first foster daughter was a teen-ager. I wasn't old enough to be her father [illegible] but maybe I could be a friend.

A relationship generally must have its conflicts, but the one that I feel cemented our friendship was one I'm sure many parents with their own teen-age daughters must encounter — boy friends.

The first date: Can I go to the show? Answer — Yes. Question — Who with? Answer — So and so.

Question — When does it start and when will it be over? Answer — 7:11. Question — Is boy coming to get you? Answer — No, I'm meeting him there. Question — Why don't you ask boy to come and pick you up, so we can meet him? Answer — That's old-fashioned.

Statement — We would like to meet your friends; we want you and them to know they are welcome. Answer — Aw, come on. Kids don't do things like that any more. He would not come anyway. Statement — I probably am old-fashioned but I do feel that he should come and get you. Answer — Okay, I'll try but he won't come.

He did!

This is a small incident but through other conflicts our teen-ager was able to remark to my wife, "You guys really care what happens to me." Some time later I gave her away in marriage and we are very proud of her. — A Foster Father Shares Professional Secrets. (Ontario CAS Journal.)

Dear Doris: Thank you for mentioning my work with handicapped people. A year ago there was an article in the Reader's Digest about our "School That Love Built", which provides education and training for seriously handicapped people.

Should you ever receive a letter that you think I could answer out of my deep personal knowledge of the problems of disabled people, I will consider it a privilege to respond directly. — Hank Viscardi, Human Resources Center, Albertson, Long Island, N.Y.

Dear Hank: You have a heart and an understanding as big as the world. To have turned your own terrific handicap into a means of inspiring thousands of physically disabled persons to find a useful place in society is a task that has assumed the proportions of a miracle.

I may just take advantage of your offer on behalf of some handicapped Canadian who would value a response from you.

Dear Doris: I'd like to argue loud and long about the obligation to wear a wedding ring. The origins are such that, in our present society, I would have thought the obligation rested equally on the man and the woman. Marriage is a contract and if that contract has been broken, the marriage no longer exists.

The legal bonds are the least important part of that contract, some of us Christians think. Except in the eyes of the law some of us haven't been married for a very long time and wearing a wedding ring in such circumstances I put it to you is sheer hypocrisy! — Bev.

Dear Bev: The obligation does rest equally on each. At the same time, many women find it hard to drop their married name or status, especially if there are children.

When the contract has been broken as you say, it is a matter of individual preference whether a woman wants to wear her symbol of a marriage union which no longer exists.

But I don't agree about the hypocrisy. A woman is more likely to remove her wedding ring because she wants it known that she is once more on the marriage market — or so it seems to me.

Fort Fires

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — After a fire in a children's fort, Orillia city police issued a warning to all children not to play with matches or have any kind of a stove in a fort. "Forts are fun to play in, but anyone using one should be extremely cautious at all times," a spokesman said.

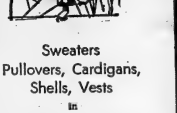
Spring Fashions Change

By MARGARET NSS

NEW YORK (CP) — Spring clothes are an expression of your own taste and environment, says fashion expert Elsa Schiaparelli.

In her forecast introduction to the American Designer Show-ings at the Plaza Hotel, she said women "are tired of the just - wear - anything-anywhere philosophy that has become a fashion in the past few seasons."

"So now we've returned to the concept of the right clothes for special occasions or what-to-wear-where."



Spring does have some new ideas but they're not sensational change for change's sake.

But there are subtle changes and new additions. So here is the important fashion news: Color is either no-color or bright pastels; suit skirts are crowding out pants; pants are becoming a little baggy in the Charlie Chaplin tradition; a loose dress silhouette but sharply cut; polka dots and checks for cotton prints, with plain colors coming in even more strongly; 'short dressy dresses," as Leo Narducci calls them, as important for evening as the floor length; more bare backs and plunges.

Out of the fashion picture: Wide belts, the heavy layered look, glitter and sloppy clothes. Black is declining in popularity, giving over to navys. Practically no chintzes or sleeves on the scene.

Coming into fashion focus: Thin leather belts, short sleeves, a blouson look, shirred waistlines. New is a long scarf tie loosely tied under open shirt collars or long muffler scarves dangling down the front or a small scarf necktie fill-in. The turban hat for late-day is back.

Mrs. B. Katzman (left), and Mrs. J. Albert give an early shopper, Mrs. M. Lightstone, first choice at their bake table — a lemon sponge cake. Mrs. Lightstone is a co-convener of the white elephant table another booth at the annual bazaar held in the synagogue.

Pastries Delight Synagogue's Shoppers

"Even though our auxiliary has a small membership, we try for quality not quantity," said Mrs. S. C. Rose, president and convener of the Sons of Jacob Ladies Auxiliary Bazaar.

Yesterday, the handful of members had a difficult task — organizing the small synagogue room for shoppers to follow a smooth pattern from the bake table and booths to the tea room.

The president also said, "Auxiliary members prepare their donations eight weeks ahead, frozen baked goods, or handcrafted. But they enjoy the baking most."

Homebaking co - conveners Mrs. J. Albert and Mrs. B. Katzman proudly arranged and refilled their bake table which was the first visit for every guest.

Lemon, raisin, blueberry, cocoa flavors and yeast cakes disappeared in no time.

"We also try something new each year — and this time they're a boutique booth," said Mrs. Rose. Mrs. J. Basch and Mrs. R. Zalkowitz convened the table which provided vivid homemade bees wax candles, Yuletide decorations and appealing knick-knacks for admirers and purchasers.

The always - favorite white elephant table, convened by Mrs. M. Lightstone and Mrs. A. Osborne offered a variety of jewelleries, books and children's toys.

Mrs. J. Burke, Hadassah president, explained the traditional white and blue embroidered table cloth found at the head tea table. "Through a money donation, any member of the synagogue may have their for anyone else's) personalized signature embroidered. It adds a traditional touch to events."

Mrs. M. Tuchmayer, tea room convener, was assisted by Mrs. S. Fainbloom and Mrs. C. Lear. Individual tea tables featured two - toned blue bees wax candles made by members.

Completing the bazaar, the manufacturer's room downstairs gave stylish fashion choices at adequate prices.

Passion Play Presented

ROSLIN — Reverend Dalton Woodyard of Powassan presented The Passion Play in St. Paul's Anglican Church. The program, based on the play originating in Oberammergau, Germany, consisted of colored slides and recordings taken at the showing.

The speaker explained that there were 1,000 in the cast who are chosen several years before they actually play the parts.

The Passion Play was originally considered to be a tribute to God.

The proceeds from this recent play go to support two orphanages and a home for the aged.

At the conclusion of the pictures, Reverend Virgil Rose thanked Mr. Woodward for the presentation.

Yule Decor Highlights Tea

While picket fencing and an archway decorated with holly greeted the many visitors to the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Tea and Bazaar, Victoria Avenue on Wednesday afternoon.

Guests were received by Mrs. A. L. Sutherland, and Mrs. S. Fraser.

In addition to individual Christmas centrepieces for the tables the tea room was festively decorated with a lighted Christmas tree and fireplace with night before Christmas stockings. A Yuletide candelabra served as the main centrepiece with wives of ministers from various churches in the area invited to serve tea.

Moving on from the tea room, there was a variety of tables and booths featuring attractive handmade items. One of the highlights of the bazaar, and a new addition to the annual event, was the boutique table. It offered an assortment of handicrafts and gift ideas, including hand crocheted and knitted shrink seaters, Christmas centrepieces, and mitten bookmarks.

Each display offered an eyecatcher.

The "Mitten Tree" was one of the attractions at the children's table, from which many mittens soon disappeared.

A delicatessen table offered homemade mincemeats, with the home baking and candy tables giving the shopper a wide choice of sweets and baked goods. The cotton bar, with its selection of cotton and woollen items, a white elephant room, and a booth with colorful aprons, potholders and tea towels completed the Christmas bazaar itinerary.

The Christmas spirit was evident in all areas. Apart from those in attendance at the bazaar others who are ill or are shut-ins also received the benefits in the form of Christmas boxes.

The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Tea and Bazaar was judged a success by all who participated in it. Conveners Mrs. Hugh McKay and Mrs. Robert Jones were pleased with the overall success of the event.

Ann Landers

'Stork' Legend In Main Lobby of Hospital

Dear Ann Landers: I was a nurse's aid in a Boston hospital. In the main lobby at the front entrance they had a beautiful inlaid figure of a stork on the floor.

There was a legend about that stork. If a woman stepped on it when she was leaving the hospital with her newborn baby she would return within the year to give birth to another child.

I escorted many a mother, baby and proud papa through that lobby on the way out and I repeated the legend to all of them. Invariably the new mother laughingly said, "Thanks for telling me"— and carefully avoided stepping on the stork. More often than not her husband tried to get her to step on it.

This happened so many times I am convinced that most men would like to have as many children as they can talk their wives into. What about this?—Boastown Reader

Dear Reader: That game has changed in the last 20 years. Now only an insecure, ego-hungry male who equates a large family with male virility would like his wife to have a baby every year. Even devout Catholics are thinking more rationally about family planning, and I say hooray for them. It's about time.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a chronic alcoholic. He went to AA twice but now he won't go back. I've gone to Al-Anon but it didn't work for me the way it has for thousands of others.

Over the past five years he has broken every dish in the house, wrecked furniture, torn up clothes and entertained the neighbors with his filthy language. I've called the sheriff, the police, AA, my in-laws, my doctor, the clergy and divorce friends. I've even had him arrested. There was no solution.

The problem is this: I am trying hard to see that our sons have as near a normal life as possible. They go back and forth between hating their father, fearing him and feeling sorry for him. Of course he never takes them anywhere, but when fathers of their pals invite our sons on fishing or camping trips my husband says they are meddling, or they are homosexuals, or they are trying to show him up.

I believe our boys should have some decent male example to follow—someone to admire and learn from. Lord knows they get nothing from their father. What can I do about this?—We Can Change

Dear N.C.: Since your husband is probably in the bag half the time, you cannot look to him for rational decisions. Let the boys go on these little outings with their friends and their dads. Enlist the support of your clergyman and the boys' teachers. They will back you up. Your husband's nose is going to be out of joint about something, so it might as well be over an issue that benefits the children.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank that woman who wrote about the bell it was to take a vacation with her husband—a lousy dinner and they never can wreak out of her. I have the same kind of rule. They must be brothers. I've wept, begged, pleaded, threatened—but nothing gets through to him. He says, "I am a fine driver. You are crazy."

I am going to have that column plastic-coated and taped to the dashboard of our car. Even if he doesn't pay any attention to it, it will give me comfort to know I am not alone.—Also Vacationless

Dear Also: I had no idea so many wives are petrified passengers when their husbands are at the wheel. I received more than 50 letters from women thanking me, blessing me and saying: "Glad to know I'm not the only one." If misery loves company the wives of lousy drivers are far from lonely. Thanks to all who wrote.

I'm Voting for Jeffrey

I am supporting Robin Jeffrey because of her "Open Door" approach to the community. Robin Jeffrey's proposal to meet and listen to people in the evenings at City Hall will really involve the Mayor in the problems of the ordinary people of Belleville.

When Robin Jeffrey is elected Mayor, the motion to have Council Meetings in the evenings should be adopted for the betterment of Belleville.

Warden's Banquet 'Thing of the Past'

Lennox and Addington county warden Vincent Aitken has broken with tradition of more than a century and this year will not hold a formal warden's banquet.

Instead of the warden's banquet with a 'lot of stuffy and long winded speeches" he is holding an informal warden's appreciation party where the speeches will be replaced with just plain partying.

The Lennox and Addington county warden referred to the traditional warden's banquet as a "thing of the past."

"People who work at the various jobs for the county (as councilors) as well as at their own jobs want recreation rather than tradition," he said.

Hastings, however, is still holding with tradition. T h i s year's warden, Carman Gibson of Tyendinaga township, was host for the annual banquet several weeks ago at the Legion H a l l on Pinnacle Street.

Modelmaker Hard Man to Replace

Walter Vandervelde is a hard man to replace.

As a result, his former employer is ranging as far afield as Europe to find a successor.

Walter retired at 72 last weekend from Joel Mazer Jewellery Ltd., after 22 years as a jewelry modelmaker — one of a handful practising the craft.

It's a still calling for intricate crafting of pewter prototypes from which jewelry is produced for market. An exclusive craft, the number of its artisans is small, says Walter — which places a premium on craftsmen when the demand arises.

Hence, the company is still seeking his successor.

"We've exhausted Canada and New York," says company president Joel Mazer. "Now we're trying Europe — and meeting with little success so far."

Coincidentally, Europe is also where Walter hails from, although his arrival both in Belleville and in the jewelry craft was accidental. In 1950 he immigrated to Quebec with his wife and three children after years practising as a dental technician in Holland.

After 19 days he decided to move to Toronto, but only reached Belleville — "a good place to stay," suggested the friend he took a lift with. Shortly after he went to work for the jewelry company, then known as Avon Jewellery, under operation of Mr. Mazer's father.

But in retirement, he finally plans to move from Belleville — to Burlington where a married daughter resides.

He'll also keep busy — at handicrafts.

Cement Men See Lawrence

TORONTO (Staff) — Approximately 20 members of local 397 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International, picketing at Queen's Park, Monday to protest the Sandbanks controversy, gained an interview with Bert Lawrence, provincial secretary for resource department.

Stewart Norval, president of the union said picketers were welcomed on arrival by James Taylor, Prince Edward-Lennox MPP, who assisted in arranging for the session with Mr. Lawrence. Earlier he had attempted to schedule a meeting between union representatives and Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier but this proved impossible owing to the minister's absence from the city.

All picketing union members joined in the talk with Bert Lawrence and asked several questions concerning the negotiations allegedly underway between the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. and Mr. Bernier. They were told all information of this sort was locked in Mr. Bernier's files.

Problems confronting the LOCL workers if a quarry licence is not issued to the company were outlined to Mr. Lawrence and union members questioned the delay in granting this permit.

Mr. Lawrence advised union members to appoint a committee of three or four men to talk with Leo Bernier and the LOCL regarding the present situation.

Although town and county councillors were invited to join the picketers at Queen's Park no elected officials accompanied union members to Toronto. Picton reeve Albert Pirsh did send a placard declaring "Al Pirsh, Picton reeve, supports LOCL."

Support was also received from members of local 277 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International who operate the Toronto pack house of the LOCL. Donald Burshaw, district representative of local 397 from Belleville also joined picketers.

Engineer Allays Flooding Fears

The fears of a Coleman Street industrialist regarding the possibility of river flooding next spring as result of the remains of a coffer dam being left in the Moira, were allayed Monday at city council.

G. T. Lanning Ltd., in a letter to council, noted that the coffer dam placed to allow installation of the river trunk sewer had not been completely removed and expressed fear that this could create conditions detrimental to an orderly spring runoff.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said he shared the concern of Mr. Lanning but said the flood threat was an annual thing, requiring only the right circumstances to make it a reality.

Referring to the remains of the coffer dam left in the river, Mr. Purcell said Leo Construction was now making good progress in the removal of the material and he expected that within the next few days it would be all cleaned up.

Alderman Jack Ireland questioned the claim of Stu Meeks that silt from the coffer dam was being carried downstream and was building up in the harbor mouth.

Mr. Purcell said the only way to determine the amount of silt would be to do a survey and compare result with those of a previous study carried out four years ago.

Later in the meeting it was stated that the local harbor commission would be preparing to co-operate in requesting that such a survey be carried out.

Alderman E. A. Orr inquired about the gabions installed along the lower river walls and asked if these might interfere with the normal breakup of spring ice.

Mr. Purcell said the gabions had been placed to protect sewer manholes. He said they should not contribute to major ice jamming.

Jobless Benefits Over $2 Billion

TORONTO (CP) — The total unemployment insurance benefits paid this year will be about $2.2 billion, far in excess of the "disconcertingly high public forecasts made to date," the executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development said Wednesday.

In a panel discussion at the Canadian Tax Foundations annual conference, Reuben C. Baetz said he has learned from "reliable sources" that the unemployment insurance program will cost more than double the $1.1 billion paid in the first seven months of this year.

"There has probably never been anything to equal this in magnitude of miscalculation of expenditures in social legislation throughout history," he said.

Mr. Baetz said the $2.2 billion figure is slightly less than the yearly cost would be for a guaranteed annual income based on $4,300 for a family of four.

The unemployment insurance program, extended early this year to include a number of professional workers and to pay benefits after as little as eight weeks of employment to those who become jobless, "has the unmistakable odor of a good program gone bad," Mr. Baetz said.

Mr. Baetz said the fault with the program lies mainly in the fact that it is only one of a number of income security plans, which together make up Canada's income security system. The weaknesses of other plans—such as family allowance programs, social assistance—were to be corrected through the unemployment insurance program.

Hospital Association Backs Potter's Moves

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Association (OHA) has thrown its support behind the province's bid to reduce expenses incurred by hospitals.

Charles Boyd, OHA president, said the association has pledged support to Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter's "efforts to control health spending by providing all assistance we can to member hospitals in meeting his objectives."

In a letter to the province's hospitals that went out after the minister's initial letter to hospital board chairmen informing them of the government's plans, the OHA president said it is apparent that Dr. Potter "is quite serious when he speaks of abuse of hospital facilities."

Mr. Boyd said the minister's letter stating that "drastic economies" would be imposed, including cuts in service and facilities, presents a challenge to boards "to exercise the authority given them in law to ensure that their hospitals are used as efficiently and intelligently as possible by their medical staff."

Mr. Boyd suggested several ways by which hospitals might reduce expense.

He said hospitals should investigate the benefits of "discharge planning," which involves entering the expected date of a patient's discharge in a chart. If the patient stays longer, the case is reviewed.

He also encouraged hospitals to study a length-of-stay index produced every four months by the health ministry which enables hospitals to compare their record with that of similar hospitals.

Five Toronto Hospitals Told to Cut 210 Beds

TORONTO (CP) — Five downtown Toronto hospitals are under pressure to eliminate a total of 210 beds as part of the province's campaign to reduce its health costs.

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter has eliminated active treatment grants for 70 of Toronto General Hospital's 1,250 beds and 25 beds at each of the other four.

Toronto Western has 808 beds, Wellesley 600, St. Michael's 894 and New Mount Sinai 318.

Toronto General Hospital's budget for a nine-month period in 1973 has been cut by $750,000.

"There will certainly be a contraction of services," said James McNab, the hospital's executive director. He said staff would be reduced by curbing its recruiting program and replacing those who quit or retire.

Liberals, PCs Differ Over How Young Voted

OTTAWA (CP) — Party people concerned with how the roughly 2.3 million young people voting for the first time cast their ballots in the Oct. 30 federal election have conflicting views on the outcome.

Len Domino of Winnipeg, president of the Young Progressive Conservatives, says letters and reports from party workers indicate those aged 18 to 24 voted much like the rest of the population.

Roughly 29 of every 100 voters supported Liberals, about 20 Conservatives, 18 voted NDP and eight for Social Credit or other groups and individuals.

But Robert Dundas, president of the Student Liberals, on the basis of results from campus polls, says university voters generally voted 2-to-1 for Liberals, "often in the face of an overwhelming trend to the contrary."

New Democrats, for their part, were trying to devise ways to separate precisely the youth vote from the over-all one. They made no particular effort to attract first-time voters, arguing that most young people were affected by the same problems as their elders. Most would vote the way their parents did.

Mr. Domino said the Conservative party did "much better" than it was expected to do among young people on the basis of first findings.

He said polls last summer and fall showed the Conservatives far behind the Liberals in wooing the 18-to-24 vote. That age group includes those who became eligible to vote because the voting age was lowered to 18 from 21 plus those too young to have voted in the 1968 election.

But results indicate a virtual saw-off between Liberals and Conservatives, Mr. Domino said. His party took a higher percentage of the youth vote in the Maritimes, the Prairies and British Columbia and in smaller cities of 100,000 or less.

It slipped in bigger centres like Toronto and Montreal.

Mr. Dundas, using figures from university polls, argues the opposite.

In Alberta, for instance, where the Liberals were toppled in all 19 ridings by Conservatives, both the University of Alberta in Edmonton and in Calgary voted 3-to-1 for the Liberals, he said.

That trend shows up in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island university polls, he said.

While admitting that it was practically impossible to say how all 2.3 million young voters cast their ballots—"The reality is: Nobody knows"—university Conservatives can be pinned down.

Preliminary evidence from universities seems to indicate that there was a heavy vote, "often against dominant and provincial and constituency trends."

Winnipeg Paper 100 Years Old

WINNIPEG (CP) — It was a recapture of local responsibility day Nov. 30, 1872, when editor W. F. Luxton and proprietor John A. Kenny combined Vol. 1, No. 11 of the Manitoba Free Press off their hand press in a shack on main street.

The front page was an eye-grabber, being filled with the text of the new Dominion Lands Act.

But inside the eight-page edition the pioneer plainsmen could read of the jailbreak and River water."

There was even a column headed "woman's rights," and how's that for pioneering?

The Winnipeg Free Press—the name wasn't changed until 1931—celebrates its 100th birth today with a centennial edition containing a full reproduction of that original weekly from which it grew.

Davis Is Silent On Fidinam Case

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis refused Wednesday to say his government will conduct any further investigation into a donation to the Progressive Conservative party by an Ontario company.

During the day, he met with political adviser Hugh Macaulay and William Kelly, the Conservative party treasurer who collected a $50,000 cheque by hand donation from Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. in 1971.

The government-controlled Workmen's Compensation Board has approved a $15-million loan to the Swiss-based firm and will be the major tenant in a new $35-million highrise planned by the company.

In the legislature Tuesday, Attorney-General Dalton Bales told jeering opposition members that his department would "look into" the Fidinam matter.

Liberal lawyers in the legislature had questioned whether a breach of the Criminal Code had been committed in connection with the donation.

Section 110 says it is an offence for anyone to subsidize indirectly subsidize a government or party in order to retain a contract with the government.

Mr. Davis refused to tell reporters whether the Fidinam matter had been discussed at the day's cabinet meeting or whether the loan was the subject of discussion between himself, Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Kelly.

Mr. Kelly, when questioned, said a "number of matters" were discussed, but denied that the Fidinam donation was one of them.

Northern Lignite Will Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — A three-party agreement was signed Wednesday to "provide for research and assessment" of lignite deposits in Northern Ontario.

Premier William Davis said the agreement calls for the department of natural resources, Ontario Hydro and the Manalta Coal Co. of Calgary to share equally the cost of the assessment.

"We're hopeful that the results will be positive and this, of course, is the first step," the premier told reporters.

the deposits occur in two seams 60 to 130 feet below muskeg, clay and glacial sand in the Onakawana area, 60 miles from the mouth of James Bay. Timmins, the closest major community, is about 150 miles to the south.

Mr. Davis said the tests would "assess the burning capacities of the lignite", as well as explore the economics of developing the deposit.

Rent Increases Rob Pensioners of Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — An 82-year-old widow living in a crumbling apartment block in Vancouver's Kitsilano district should be rejoicing at the provincial government's recent legislation guaranteeing old-age pensioners a $200 monthly income beginning next year.

Instead she, like many of the province's pensioners, is facing a move to other, costlier, accommodation because a rise in rents has taken away her pension increase.

Of the 205,000 pensioners in British Columbia, about 130,000 will receive increases that bring their income to $200 a month beginning in January. Only about 3,000 now qualify for the current maximum pension of $199.90 a month.

In the widow's case, the increase will amount to $8.50.

But on Sept. 1, she received notice that her rent was being increased by $10 a month, effective Dec. 1.

Her case is one of many documented by the Vancouver Tenants Council in its fight to persuade the New Democratic Party government to institute a temporary freeze on rents while the Landlord and Tenant Act is rewritten. The NDP promised reform of rental legislation during the campaign leading up to its surprise victory in the Aug. 30 provincial election.

Everyone agrees that rents are rising, but no one gives the same reason for the increases.

Mental Hospitals' Canteen Profits Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Profits from canteen sales in some Ontario mental institutions are being allowed to build up rather than being spent on useful purposes, such as a patient's dress, a legislature committee was told Wednesday.

Thomas Wardle (PC—Toronto Beaches-Woodbine) suggested to the public accounts committee that the money could well be spent on clothing or dental care, which many patients need.

Mr. Wardle's comments, to the committee and in an interview, came after W. S. Groom, assistant provincial auditor, disclosed that a $340,000 fund had stockpiled from canteen sales in 23 mental institutions.

Protestantism Losing Ground

WINNIPEG (CP) — The prospect for the survival of French-Canadian Protestants in Quebec is bleak, says a Montreal Presbyterian minister.

Rev. Jean Porret, a minister in St. Luke's Church, said in an interview at the triennial assembly of the Canadian Council of Churches that about 6,000 practising French-speaking Protestants in Quebec may not be able to survive the impact of English language and culture.

"Our survival is endangered because so many of our numbers have been anglicized through education, and are lost to us," he said.

"As well, some French-Canadian ministers prefer to work in English churches, where they have more financial security."

He said the numbers of French-speaking Protestants have been dwindling for the last 100 years. The French Protestant tradition dates back to the 18th century, when French Calvinists settled in Quebec.

In the 19th century, a surge of evangelism increased the numbers of French-speaking Methodists, Baptists and Anglicans. At the height of this movement there were more than 100 French-Canadian Protestant ministers in the province, Mr. Porret said.

Now, he estimated, there are about 13 such ministers for the French - speaking Protestants who are members of the Presbyterian, Baptist, Anglican and United Churches, as well as the Salvation Army and Assembly of God.

French Connection Examined

OTTAWA (CP) — The bilingual districts that caused an outcry when first proposed a year ago are being altered drastically for resubmission to the government.

The main reason behind the changes, government sources say, is the decline in French population in many of the pro-posed 3 districts and Quebec's vehement opposition to being designated a single bilingual district.

The original recommendations from came in the report of the bilingual districts advisory board released in March, 1971.

Since the report was based on 1961 census figures, the government decided to set it aside until a new 16-man board reviewed the original recommendations in the light of the 1971 census.

One conclusion was that many of the district's proposed, especially in the West, no longer met the 10-per-cent French population requirement for designation as a bilingual district.

Neil Morrison, the board's secretary general, explained in an interview Wednesday that designating a district as officially bilingual simply means that existing federal services within that region must be available in French and English.

Due to Quebec reaction, the board is expected to drop its recommendation to make it a single bilingual unit in favor of designating smaller English population units within the province.

"Many people are still under the misconception that everyone in a bilingual district will have to speak French and English, or that every English mailman will lose his job unless he learns French," Mr. Morrison said. "It just isn't so."

Hospital Workers Cry Foul to Potter

TORONTO (CP) — The general manager of the Civil Service Association of Ontario has charged Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter with imposing wage controls on hospital workers through a five-per-cent ceiling on increases he has placed on 1973 hospital budgets.

Harold Bowen, in a letter Wednesday to Dr. Potter, said "it is illegal and disciriminatory" to impose compulsory arbitration on hospital workers in labor disputes while imposing on hospitals and implying to arbitrators a limit on the wage increases that may be negotiated or arbitrated.

Wins Suit

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A county court jury Wednesday awarded nearly $1G,2 million to a Minneapolis cancer researcher who sued two foundations because they withdrew their sponsorship of a project to develop a cancer-detection device.

Tighter Ship?

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Wednesday the administration of some correctional reform programs adopted by Justice Pierre Goyer should be tightened.

Mr. Allmand, who took over the solicitor - general's department from Mr. Goyer when Prime Minister Trudeau shuffled his cabinet Monday, said he is disturbed by some instances that have occurred as a result of the programs.

He referred to prisoners who have committed crimes while away from prison on temporary leaves.

But he emphasized, when he spoke to reporters after a meeting of the Liberal caucus, that he was not opposed to the thrust of the programs adopted by his predecessor.

Among other things, he added, he will investigate reports of unrest among prison guards, such as those recently at Millhaven penitentiary outside Kingston.

Cabbies Hit

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Town council voted Wednesday to raise the price of licences for Toronto taxi drivers who wish to pick up fares at Toronto International Airport to $500 from $50.

Council also voted against issuing any more of the licences—even at the increased price—in the near future.

A council-approved bylaw stipulates that the airport, which is almost entirely within territory of Mississauga, cab drivers and that the number of Toronto taxis servicing the airport may not exceed 10 per cent of Mississauga's cab force—which is about 250 cars.

At present, 58 of Metropolitan Toronto's 2,100 cabs hold special Mississauga licences.

Car Complaint

TORONTO (CP) — The new president of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada says that the public is being penalized because of government insistence on incorporating safety features into automobile designs.

Grant Brown of Toronto said in an interview Wednesday safety features that already have been built into cars "have not slowed down accidents".

"But the public is being told what they are going to have to have in the way of motor cars. Meanwhile, the government is not paying attention to the minimal number of people wearing safety belts.

Women Could End Bush Labor Shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — The problem of labor shortages in remote logging camps could be solved if forest companies would employ an equal number of men and women, the regional president of the International Woodworkers of America said Wednesday.

Jack Moore, who denied a forest company report that there was a serious manpower shortage in the industry, agreed, however, that attracting men to isolated camps was a problem "that has always been with us."

"We wants to work in a camp where there are no women, no recreation, and no anything excepting around a bunkhouse to sing," he said.

He said a pilot program by Rayonier of Canada Ltd. in hiring women is nothing new, adding that more than 1,000 have been IWA members for years.

Psychology Expert Claims Facts Strangle Creativity

VANCOUVER (CP) — If former premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia had gone to university, he probably wouldn't have achieved political power, says Dr. Charles Crawford, a psychologist at Simon Fraser University.

Dr Crawford uses the carpet the former premier as example of his theory that facts only stifle creativity

It would seem that the more knowledge someone gains in a particular field, the more likely he is not to be able to act creatively in it," Dr. Crawford said in an interview.

"The person becomes locked into only one way of solving problems.

"Take Premier Bennett. Here's a man, who, in the generally accepted sense, has little education. He doesn't have much of a formal knowledge of finance, of politics, even of accounting and yet he rises to become premier, simply because he has the imagination to impose new solutions on old problems.

"But on the other hand, after 20 years in office, he has learned too much about politics He has found, in election after election, that if he brings up fear of the socialist hordes, he gets returned to power.

"He also finds that holding elections every three years seems to get results.

"But he has stopped thinking creatively, he has stopped thinking of creative solutions to problems, and doesn't see the old methods will no longer work. And so he is defeated."

Dr. Crawford recently received a $5,160 Canada Council grant to begin studies on his thesis that knowledge smothers creativity and the repercussions might be extensive if the theory is proved correct.

It would mean that teachers would stop feeding facts to children and, instead, help their pupils develop thinking skills that would make them more creative.

"In fact, although some people will react with horror, this may not be such a bad idea when we see how quickly our society is moving and how quickly facts become out of date," Dr. Crawford said.

"Facts. I think, will eventually become the things you look up in books and apply your trained imagination to, not something to carry around in your head.

"As urally these still will be fields, such as chemistry or physics or medicine where facts . . . will be needed. But in other fields! I wonder."

He says his theory also casts doubt on the usefulness of a university education In many fields that now require it.

"They tell us that this higher education requirement in law and medicine is a way of protecting the public. I think it becomes a way of protecting the professions from having too many participants and having to split up the profits."

"I think what examinations do is teach you to think creatively, to learn creative cramming. If a student can produce the right type of knowledge for me on an examination paper it shows, especially if he has been cramming at the last minute, that he knows what information to select and what to reject.

Bikes Versus Autos Sends Deaths Soaring

BOSTON (AP) — From the Boston Common to the Sunset Strip in Hollywood, bicycle riding is on the increase—and so are injuries and deaths associated with the bike's challenge of the automobile's supremacy on the road.

More American adults are joining in what used to be a kid's pastime of biking for fun, and many serious commuters are using two wheels instead of four to avoid the traffic snarls of rush hour and strike a blow for ecology at the same time.

But some, like Kathy McKenna of Boston, find that biking can be less than a joy ride.

Miss McKenna was cycling to her job recently when she found herself sandwiched between two lanes of cars on a busy street. The 20-year-old secretary says she moved with the traffic flow for a few blocks when a car in the left lane began moving to the right.

"At that point," she said, 'the only thing I could do was put on the brakes and hope for the best."

The best for her was hitting the rear of the turning car, tumbling over her handlebars, rolling off the trunk and hitting the pavement. Miss McKenna escaped her ordeal with only a sprained wrist, but other cyclists aren't always so lucky.

The National Safety Council says there were 920 bike-auto fatalities in the U.S. last year, compared with 480 in 1961, and estimates that 880 bicycle riders will be killed this year.

An NSC spokesman says there are more bike-related fatalities, but they frequently aren't reported because they don't involve automobiles.

Accompanying the steady increase in fatalities are soaring non-fatal injuries. Gene Dibenedetto, Boston's director of traffic safety education, says reported injuries to cyclists in bike-auto accidents have risen from 18 in 1959 to 37 in 1971. Similar figures are reported throughout the country.

Slow Melding Likely Of Air Service Types

EDMONTON (CP) — There will be "a slow melding" of charter and scheduled carrier services as the air transportation industry evolves, Maxwell Wed, president of Wardair Canada Ltd., predicts.

Meanwhile, it must be recognized that the two perform different functions and need not oppose each other, Mr. Ward said in an interview.

He sees the charter carrier as "basic to serving the leisure travel market . . . For example, I would suggest that next summer the North Atlantic market would be served by charter services predominantly."

"The reason is that in the summer of 1973 . . . non-affinity charters will be in force, which would eliminate the need for people to belong to organizations (in order to travel on charter flights)."

Mr. Ward, 50, who has long opposed the six-month club membership rule, said the United States already put new rules into effect, Britain has announced hers, and the Canadian government is "working on it."

He said the new rules will be in effect by January.

"As far as the public is concerned, it will enable any member of the public to book a flight three months ahead, and put a deposit on a seat to be assured of that seat."

Mr. Ward said the new rules will help eliminate such situations as "internet/series" cheating people or absconding with funds.

Under the new rules "the public will be able to buy transportation from travel agents, good airlines, and the airlines will be clearer to the actual transactions."

The non-affinity ruling "had to come," he said. "And yet, haven't seen the end yet."

Whereas charter flights serve the leisure market, scheduled services are "required for the convenience of the country," Mr. Ward said.

"The average individual (planning a holiday) knows well ahead of time when he's going and for what length of time. But the businessman needs his seat immediately. He needs a versatility which the scheduled service can give him.

"But he must be prepared to pay for that versatility.

"Scheduled carriers cannot cooperate on air service within the economics of charter restrictions. . . . The economic philosophy of each (type of service) is so different."

"We've got to get some common sense into the balance of scheduled versus charter, so that we can work towards achieving better economics rather than working towards cutting each other's throats."

Mr. Ward said he sees the recently announced agreement to sell one-third of Wardair's outstanding shares to Air Canada as a step in the direction of "slow melding" of charter and scheduled types of services.

The purchase is subject to Canadian Transport Commission approval and Mr. Ward said he doesn't know when the government will give its answer.

Mr. Ward in 1968 was quoted as saying it was time for the government to get out of the aviation business; that government assistance was needed to start airlines in Canada, but today is hamper-

Frozen Assets

WARLEY, England (CP) — Temperatures soared the day rival ice-cream vendors Moban Tanday and Phillip Howie lost their cool in a row over pitches. Accusing each other of poaching, they ended up in a battle on the main street of this Worcestershire town—using ice-creams as weapons. Police quickly cooled things down and the men were fined £5 (about $12) each for disturbing the peace.

Second Slip

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — Yorkshire holidaymaker Bill Taylor showed his family the exact spot on a steep country path where, three years previously, he had slipped and broken his leg. For the record he slipped again—and this time broke his leg in two places. "We had gone to Scarborough for a little break," his wife Sheila said. "But we hadn't expected this sort of break."

Tummy Upset

STOCK, England (CP) — Essex salesman Harry Beere didn't mind friendly jokes about his swelling stomach until social security joined in and sent him a maternity grant. "I was stunned when I got the £25 (about $63) cheque," Beere said. "I thought I'd made medical history!" In fact Harry had earlier applied for sickness benefit after an operation and the cheques had been mixed up.

ing free enterprise.

Asked if he recalled the statement, Mr. Ward nodded and said: "Except that the government isn't getting out of it. . . ."

He said it does bother him "a bit" to see a government airline buying shares of Wardair, but added: "My philosophies have changed a lot. International travel has to be a national service. I can see that this is the only way it's going to go.

"I feel strongly that Canadian industry must pull together if it's going to compete with other countries on the international market.

"We'd go on existing without the Air Canada agreement, there's no doubt about that. But the agreement adds a stability to major carriers in the Canadian international charter industry.

Mr. Ward said the Air Canada-Wardair agreement is "a completely arms-length transaction."

"We run our airline as we want it, and will continue to do so. And Air Canada doesn't want it any differently."

The agreement will prevent considerable duplication of services. "For example, Air Canada has services in Europe such as aircraft ground handling and passenger check-in which we can make use of. We'll pay our way, but we can make use of it."

Mr. Ward's immediate family will retain a 42-per-cent interest in Wardair. Twenty-five per cent will be in the hands of Canadian shareholders.

Mr. Ward declined comment on a report that the purchase of Wardair stock will cost Air Canada $2.7 million, saying neither company has released a figure.

Wardair, which grossed $18.7 million in 1971 and expects to carry 225,000 passengers this year, operates with two Boeing 707s, a Boeing 727, and several smaller aircraft.

11 Under Treatment For Rabies

NAPANEE (Special) — A night visit by a rabid skunk to a Newburgh area farmhouse has put 11 people under anti-rabies treatment.

The skunk entered the home of dairy farmer Joachim McNichols of RR1, Newburgh, about a month ago when he left a door ajar as he went out to check his 85-head herd of cattle.

The animal entered the basement and hit two puppies. One was destroyed immediately, but the other, only slightly injured, remained a family pet.

Mr. McNichols shot the skunk.

When the pup became ill about two weeks later, it was found to have rabies. After its death his mother was destroyed and all other dogs on the farm were isolated for six weeks.

Six of McNichols' children, two grandchildren and three others who had played with the rabid pup are now taking rabies shots. Because only the farmhouse was involved, Mr. McNichols' cattle were not placed under quarantine.

Ameliasburg Garage OK

AMELIASBURGH (Special) — As the result of an Ontario Municipal Board Hearing here yesterday, the township received approval to spend $48,000 on a new building to house machinery equipment used for the construction of roads and maintenance work.

The decision was handed down by the Board's vice-chairman H. E. Sheets, who presided to rule on a taxpayer's objection to the expenditure.

However, the complaint against the proposal was withdrawn earlier this week in a letter written to the township clerk. In his remarks Mr. Roberts noted "the objection basically concerned drainage onto a roadway which is a county responsibility and not a problem for the township to solve."

The site of the proposed building is south of the municipal office and east of the township's wooden storage shed in Centennial Park. It is to be constructed of cement blocks and provide a floor space of more than 4,000 square feet.

Although council has the go-ahead, actual construction will be delayed for the incoming council to set a starting date. The cost of the undertaking will be covered by two payments of $24,000 received from 1972 and '73 revenue.

Buck Killed At Oak Hill

A young buck deer was killed by a car near the top of Oak Hill Wednesday, only a few hundred feet from houses.

Al Krasoulias of Deseronto struck the deer on Highway 14 near the eighth concession of Sidney Township. He was alone at the time.

Reeve Opposes Rebuilding Street

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Albert Piroth on Tuesday attacked proposed town expenditures for the reconstruction of Hill Street at an all-candidates session sponsored by the Picton Rotary Club.

Reeve Piroth, who has consistently opposed reconstruction as the full answer to infiltration of raw sewage into Picton creek, said repairs can be made without rebuilding the street.

He said the street has been reconstructed from Spencer to Division streets at an approximate cost of $51,000. Phase two of the program will be completed at a cost of $72,000 and phase three possibly will cost $70,000.

The reeve said he has studied the Plan and Profile reports presented by the engineering firm of Totten, Simms and Hutcki and also television camera reports completed by Underwater Tel Eye Company.

Through this study and talks with construction engineers, reeve Piroth claimed he had learned that apart from 18 feet of collapsed concrete pipe which must be renewed, the remainder of the Hill Street sewer line probably can be repaired.

"The public works committee has not seen fit to obtain a cost estimate for repairs and I am not aware of any recommendation from our consulting engineers not to repair the sewer line," asserted the reeve.

Students and senior citizens this year will be paid a dollar an hour to man Salvation Army collection buckets and participate in door - to - door canvassing.

Major Ray Nelson, commanding officer of the Belleville Salvation Army, said, "we aren't trying to hide anything."

The people (students and pensioners) involved in the "employment program" are as needy in some cases as the people we collect the money for, he said.

"At this time of year it is difficult to get jobs."

The pay is well below the minimum wage scale of the province of $1.65 an hour.

"We don't want contributors to think we are lining our own pockets with the collection," said Major Nelson, the only paid personnel in the local army.

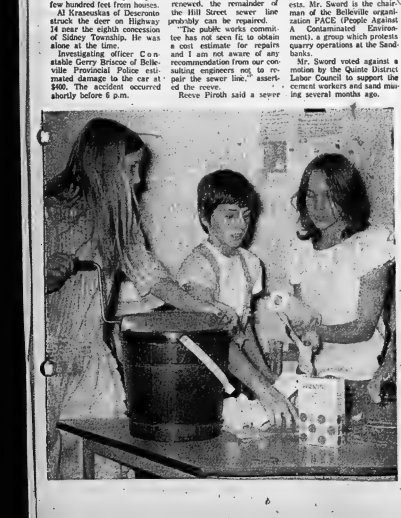
Most of the 20 canvassers will be paid, but in all cases they will be members of the local Salvation Army.

"We want as many of our people in uniform as possible."

Major Nelson recalled in the past, the Salvation Army has had problems with an other organization canvassing ahead of the army, not perfectly identifying itself and inferring that they were members of the Salvation Army.

"Our people will in as many cases as possible be wearing a uniform and in all cases be carrying a collection box with Salvation Army clearly printed on the side," he said.

Change boxes will be placed in most of the city's shopping areas this Saturday and will continue collection each Friday night and Saturday until Christmas.



The money gathered will be used for food hampers, gift vouchers and winter relief.

"You will know right away when the Salvation Army is coming to your door this year. They will be announced by the army band singing under lamp posts to play Christmas carols."

Cement Men Quit Council Claim Conflict

PICTON (Staff) — Local 387 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International has dropped its membership in the Quinte District Labor Council, claiming his new president Douglas Sward has a conflict of interests. Mr. Sward is the chairman of the Belleville organization PACE (People Against A Contaminated Environment), a group which protests quarry operations at the Sandbanks.

Mr. Sward voted against a motion by the Quinte District Labor Council to support the cement workers and sand mining several months ago.

Play Is Her Method of Healing

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Somewhere in this town is a Never - Never Land, but the Peter Pans who inhabit it all grow up.

They are the troubled children, from pre-schoolers to mid-teens, who attend the play school operated by Mrs. Breg de Groot in the basement of the medical building on Dundas St. West.

Mrs. de Groot, a social worker and teacher, uses play therapy to heal the emotional injuries of mildly disturbed youngsters.

"Some children have a fear of growing up," she says. "The world is so big. They want to stay in Never - Never Land forever."

Play therapy steers them through the troubled phase, into realization of their potential for growth.

"It helps them overcome their fears," she says of the small, toy equipped room where she plays for an hour a week with each of her child ren. "They learn to cope with a warm, loving, secure environment here.

"Play therapy makes a child stronger within himself so he can cope later in an ever changing world."

The idea of play therapy is to learn, through watching his behavior, what a child's deepest feelings are about the people and things around him.

"If you are a child, you don't dare tell adults what you think," says Mrs. de Groot. "But you can play it out. Children, once they've acted out their deepest hurts, can forget them."

The child whose parents are splitting up, plays house, but in a mixed - up way. Opposite corners of the room and a car cruising back and forth.

"After he's played that a couple of times he forgets it, goes on to something else," says Mrs. de Groot.

After he has accepted and perhaps talked about his initial fear and hostility he once on to play other games and act out his emotions about the other factors in his one-parent world.

Mrs. de Groot gets results in about six to eight months of play — a week's play, because the children she accepts are not emotionally ill, only mildly disturbed, and all the parents are concerned and co-operative.

What kind of children come to her? Usually those whose parents are separating, the aggressive or the withdrawn children who can't get along with playmates, the pre-reg tually handicapped children, too frustrated by failure to handle their world.

Happy, carefree childhood is a myth to Mrs. de Groot, who obtained her training in the Netherlands, Switzerland and recently with the Bronx State Homes in Newmarket.

"Children have many fears. The primary one; when they are young, is the fear of losing their parents; later they fear losing their parents' love. Aggression is a form of self-protection against your fears — you get your punches in first. Children who haven't the nerve to express their feelings in words take it out on obnoxious behavior."

There is the child who must be perfect — he fears making a mistake. And the guilt-ridden child who behaves badly to get the punishment he thinks he deserves.

After a child has "played out" his stormy emotions and been gently led to overcome them, the big hurdle is persuading him to stop therapy. He's having too much fun to willingly give up his weekly play sessions.

Mrs. de Groot now has 16 children in therapy. She has helped 40 troubled families in the year since she began play therapy in Trenton.

It is an entirely voluntary service, free to her community. Physicians have donated the space in the basement of their building. Individuals have donated furniture and toys.

Mrs. de Groot made dolls and her husband made much of the equipment such as the doll's house and sandbox.

"I've proved there is a need for this service in Trenton," says Mrs. de Groot. "Parents shouldn't have to take their children to Belleville or Kingston for this therapy and there are long waiting lists."

Now she would like to obtain community support, to ensure that her play school will continue and bring in another therapist. She has also volunteer efforts to help the children of her community at the request of two family physicians who see the need and Mrs. de Groot's unique qualifications.

She began in her native Holland as a teacher, graduated from the Amsterdam school of social work and obtained a school principal's certificate.

After moving to Regina, she founded a school for retarded children, became the co-founder of the Saskatchewan Association for the retarded and finally co-founder of the Canadian Association for the Mentally retarded.

After moving to Trenton and working for the Belleville Childrens Aid, Mrs. de Groot found her credentials carried no weight in Canada. So she returned to university in 1964 to obtain her bachelor's degree and her master of social work, specializing in emotionally disturbed children.

Mrs. de Groot was named New Canadian Mother of the Year in 1960 and was decorated for her services by Queen Juliana of the Netherlands in 1962.

Builders Support Loyalist Course

The head of Loyalist College's building technology department told a meeting of Quinte Construction Association at the college Wednesday they can assist in making the school's programs as practical as possible.

"We strive to turn out employable people," said Andy Van Andel, "and the best way of doing this is to have input from you."

Thirty members of the local association were on hand for the special meeting at Loyalist that was followed by a tour of the building technology facilities.

Jim Coad of Trenton, the association president, says "there just is not an adequate supply of construction tradesmen."

He added the meeting last night was particularly valuable in "bringing association members up to date on what is available at the college".

Mr. Van Andel says involvement of organizations such as the construction and home-builders' associations is vital to success of programs from the beginning.

"If we do not get local support for our programs, they do not get approved — it is as simple as that," he stated.

Ted Fetcher, chairman of applied sciences at Loyalist, noted the department of manpower and immigration has indicated it will not give financial support to next year's construction trainee programs at Loyalist.

This Manpower course is being taught now (from November to March) will not be continued after the winter of 1973 unless negotiations with the federal government next May convince the department otherwise.

The construction association favors retention of this program as it endeavors to advise the college on curriculum matters.

Mr. Coad mentioned that before the Loyalist courses for construction trades, many local firms had to secure trained employees from elsewhere. He said one of his own carpenters was trained in Hamilton.

Trenton Hospital Waiting

TRENTON (Staff) — No word has yet been received by Trenton Memorial Hospital officials regarding health minister Dr. Richard Potter's plan to cut the number of hospital beds in Ontario to a ratio of 4.5 per 1,000 population.

Under this scheme, hospital administrator John Lupton says, Trenton could expect to lose 15 beds.

For an estimated population of 30,000 projected in the Trenton area, the hospital has 150 beds.

Although he says there has been no word here, he doesn't see why Trenton would escape the health department's planned cutback. At present Mr. Lupton says the only restriction on the hospital is the province - wide five per cent ceiling on annual operation budget increases for 1972.

Broken Window Liveliest Event at Wharf St. Club

The boisterous catcup at city hall candidates — an assortment rupted tradition of local elections for more than 80 years — has always been an exclusively male event.

In more recent years, the club has bowed to political trends by bearing out women candidates, then quickly subsiding them away before settling down to a rowdy, rugby-worded exchange with male campaigners.

The club was in the midst of a typically rousering session when the women arrived.

There were two of them — both discussing administrative duties to the club to hear the candidates.

"Our vote is as good as anyone else's," shouted one of the women. "We're here and we're going to stay."

As they tried to push into the tiny South Front St. club hall—so tightly jammed male spectators crowded outside around the windows — the women were barred and the door slammed against them. They persisted, and the door was repeatedly opened and slammed.

At first, the all - male assembly seemed disconcerted. Some shouted to let the women in.

Chairman Jim Matthews called against admission, trying to brush the incident aside with a touch of humor.

"I've just been informed by the sergeant - at - arms that these women are drinking — and we don't allow drink on the premises," he said.

Moments later a double window at the front of the clubroom exploded immediately behind the chairman's table, was shattered.

Outside, a woman readily admitted she'd broken the window.

"How do you know how to vote if you don't hear what they're talking about?" she said. "I'm sorry about the window. But I do think we're entitled to hear what they (the candidates) have to say."

Earlier, the three women seeking election to city hall had been admitted to the club as the program started.

Brief, uninvolved speeches were made by mayoralty candidate Hazen Argue and Alderman Jean Smith and Vera Heimbach, both council contestants.

But speeches made by male council, school-board and public utilities candidates — a lineup led by Mayor Russell Seale — were equally uninvolved. The meeting, one of the shortest in recent elections, ran about 90 minutes.

European Cup Play

Ajax Cruises to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ajax Amsterdam, winner of the European Cup the last two years, cruised into the quarter-finals of that soccer competition on a 6-1 aggregate by beating CSKA Sofia of Bulgaria 3-0 Wednesday.

Johann Cruyff scored two of the goals for Ajax, which had downed the Bulgarians 3-1 in Sofia two weeks earlier.

The victory put Ajax into the quarter-finals alongside Bayern Munich of West Germany; Derby of England, Spartak Trnava of Czechoslovakia, Uipest Dosa of Hungary, Dynamo Kiev of the Soviet Union, Real Madrid of Spain and Juventus of Italy.

The draw for the quarter-finals of the European Cup and the Cup Winners' Cup will take place Feb. 12.

Third-round, first-leg games were played in Europe's three major club competitions, the UEFA Cup, with Tottenham Hotspur retaining its hope of repeating as trophy winner. The English team beat Red Star Belgrade of Yugoslavia 2-0 Wednesday. Martin Chievers and Alan Gilzean were the scorers.

Liverpool, the English League leader, held Dynamo Berlin to a 0-0 tie in East Berlin. The East Germans face a herculean task trying to beat Liverpool in England in the second leg on Dec. 13.

OFK Belgrade, Yugoslavia, and Beroe Stara Zagora of Bulgaria also played a scoreless tie in UEFA Cup competition. Between them the two teams had scored 23 goals in the previous two rounds.

Ararat Yerevan of the Soviet Union trounced Kaiserslautern, West Germany, 2-0 and FC Twente, of Enschede, Holland, beat Las Palmas, Spain 3-0 in UEFA games.

In two UEFA games in Portugal, Vikoria Setubal beat Inter Milan of Italy 2-0 and Dynamo Dresden of East Germany defeated FC Porto of Portugal 2-1.

A soccer game was played by two West German teams Tuesday night, 24 hours before the rest of the UEFA contests. The teams are Borussia Moenchengladbach and FC Cologne. Borussia was without five regulars because of injuries and Cologne fans were so disappointed with their team that they kept up a constant barrage of whistles.

Hawks Turn Tables

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

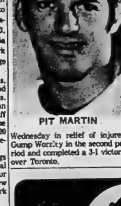
Twenty-eight years ago, Detroit Red Wings scored eight goals in one period to set a National Hockey League record.

Wednesday night, the Wings narrowly escaped having their record matched against them as Chicago Black Hawks went on a seven-goal scoring splurge in the third period at Chicago to defeat the Wings 8-3.

In other games Wednesday, Minnesota North Stars blanked Atlanta Flames 5-0, Pittsburgh Penguins downed Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4, Montreal Canadiens tied Boston Bruins 3-3, St. Louis Blues edged California Golden Seals 2-1 and New York Rangers tied Los Angeles Kings 2-2.

Pit Martin scored three goals, two of them in the third-period outburst, to lead the Hawks. Dennis Hull, Stan Mikita, Dan Maloney, Jim Pappin and Cliff Koroll got the other goals as the Hawks collected a total of 30 scoring points in the third period.

Bob Cook's goal for the Wings in the third-period points total for both clubs at 22, just four short of the record set by New York Rangers and New York Americans in a 1938 game.



The Hawks and Red Wings matched the 26 points-a-period record in a March 30, 1969, game when the Hawks had six goals and the Wings three in the second period of a 9-5 Chicago victory.

The Red Wings' record of eight goals in one period was set in a 1943 match against the Rangers. Rangers has since been matched by Boston Bruins and the Rangers.

Denis Dejordy was the backers Detroit goalie Wednesday night, giving up the eight Hawk goals on 27 shots. The Wings tested Chicago goalie Tony Esposito with 26 shots.

Cesar Maniago faced the same number of shots in collecting his second straight shutout over Atlanta.

Maniago had been benched by the North Stars for two weeks but came back a week ago.

PIT MARTIN

Wednesday in relief of injured Gump Worsley in the second period and completed a 3-1 victory over Toronto.

The hanky Minnesota goalie then shut out Los Angeles 2-0 Saturday and his Wednesday game gave him a string of 143 minutes of scoreless goaltending.

Jude Drouin led the scoring with two goals as the North Stars maintained their lead in the West Division, one point ahead of Chicago.

Former Maple Leaf Eddie Shack led the Pittsburgh attack against his old team-mates, scoring three goals against rookie Toronto goalie Ron Low.

The Leafs and Penguins each had 36 shots on goal but Pittsburgh's rookie Denis Herron made several sensational saves to frustrate the Toronto attackers.

Guy Lafleur's power-play goal with less than five minutes remaining at Montreal gave Canadiens the tie with Boston.

Jacques Lemaire's goal early in the third period had tied the score at 2-2, making Lemaire the first player to reach the 20-goal mark this season, but Phil Esposito's 35th of the season made it 3-2 for Boston and the Canadiens had to scramble to retain the tie.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins scored his 35th goal of the season and added an assist in Wednesday night's 3-3 tie with Montreal Canadiens to move him into undisputed possession of first place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Esposito now has 36 points, one more than runner-up Jacques Lemaire of Montreal, who has 20 goals and 16 assists. Lemaire scored his 20th goal against the Bruins.

Czech Series Postponed

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The first three games of a proposed exhibition series between a World Hockey Association all-star team and the world champion Czechoslovakian national team have been postponed, WHA President Gary L. Davidson said Wednesday.

Davidson said the postponement to May from January was necessary because the Czech team has not yet been sanctioned by the United States and Canadian amateur hockey associations.

Under international amateur rules, the visiting team must be approved by the host country's amateur organization. The series had been scheduled to open Jan. 3 at Quebec, move to Winnipeg Jan. 5 and then to St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 7.

Quinte Rink Unbeaten

The Quinte Curling Club saw a rink skipped by Murray Johnson come home from an International Curling Match between the Ontario Curling Association and the Grand National Curling Club of the United States with three victories under its belt.

The Belleville rink's three victories and 37 plus points proved to be the deciding factor in the OCA's capture of the Ross Tarlton Shield for Canada.

Th win at the Winchester Country Club in Winchester, Massachusetts brings the International Curling Series standings to a 3-3 tie.

The Belleville rink with Bill Sphetil lead, Dr. J. F. "Cookie" McCorquodale second, Bill Riley vice-skip, and Murray Johnson skip, were the number one rink of the match as they came away without a single loss.

Height No Handicap To BCI Girls Basketball

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

The BCI girls' senior basketball team ranges in height from 5' 2" to 5' 11", but as Sue Davie, coach of the senior team said, "they might be short, but theyre mighty."

Coach Davie's comment applies to the junior team as well. Both teams have won their Bay of Quinte league games 10 straight and go to the COSSA finals at Bayside Saturday.

The junior team's coach, Carol Flinner, explaining the success of her team, said, "With these girls, you don't have to start with the basics. The first string has played together for three years. Speed, agility and basketball sense — that's what makes them a winning team.

"Basketball sense," continued the coach, "is perhaps the most important. With some teams, if you stick a girl in a zone, and the zone has to shift, she'll just stand there."

The juniors first stringers, Judy Wannamaker, Fran White, Maida Lebaron, Mary Geen, Mary Mischenko and Barb Graham, the latter two being BCI junior's top scorers generally find themselves in the team's basic two zones or man - to - man defences.

According to senior coach Sue Davie, the defenses her team uses are rarely seen in girls' basketball. "Girls' teams," said coach Davie, "are not used to one - half of full court presses. They don't know what to do when one is used on them.

"We also use a sliding zone defence. When we're in that, it's pretty hard to get the ball past the girls."

The senior's offence offensive power rests in two pairs of twins, Dianne and Deborah Kerr, and Cathy and Carole Deely. The foursome have been playing together for five years. According to coach Davie, "Dianne and Deborah change games, but when they're both on . . .

Deborah, who has been in sports with her twin sister since grade seven, said, "we used to play guards, then they put us up forwards and we scored baskets, and we've stayed there ever since."

Riders Lose Shirts

HAMILTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders' uniforms and gear finally arrived—and Hamilton Tiger-Cats are sorry they did.

The Roughriders' equipment was mislaid en route from Regina, delaying the Western champions' practice for Sunday's Grey Cup, emblematic of Canada's football championship.

However, it arrived in time for the Western Football conference champions to work out under the lights long after the Eastern champs had packed it in for the day.

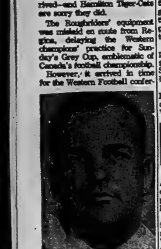
At a dinner thrown for the nominators of the top players for 1972, Ralph Sazio, Tiger-Cats' general manager, said he "wished the Saskatchewan stuff had never arrived at all."

Despite those wishes, the equipment did arrive, and as Saskatchewan head coach Dave Skrien put it, "We had a pretty good workout."

When the Rough Riders bounced their gear, their equipment apparently made the load too heavy and the gear was left behind, to be picked up by a later flight.

Skrien says he is not a superstitious coach, but he likes to "have things work out a little better than they did the first day."

There has been considerable discussion about which team will maintain its momentum. Each came up with a big game to capture their respective conference titles.



The major difference, and one which would appear to have benefited Saskatchewan, is that the Ticats had to play a two-game, total point series while the Western champion Riders played a sudden-death final for the first time.

"Usually the western team is pretty beat up by the time we go for the Grey Cup," said Skrien. "This time we have a bit of an advantage."

The Roughriders polished off Edmonton Eskimos in a sudden-death semi-final, then upset Winnipeg Blue Bombers the following weekend in a sudden-death final, the first time in years the Western final had not been a best-of-three affair.

"The two-week layoff is a plus on our side," Skrien said. He added that after the Winnipeg game the Roughriders practised for about three days, then took three days off "just to give them time to get football off their minds."

He said he thought this philosophy was better than trying to keep the team "up" after its tremendous performance in the WFC playoffs.

Sports Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Alan Eagleson denied Wednesday night he has any interest in purchasing Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

"I don't know who's dreaming," said Eagleson, commenting on a report from a Worcester, Mass., radio station that a group headed by Eagleson had bought the club and a 50 per cent interest in the Bruins.

"I have not been approached by any group that intends to buy it and I don't intend to buy it myself," said the lawyer who handles the legal and financial affairs of the Bruins star defenceman, Bobby Orr, among others.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Referee Don Gonsales disqualified Terry Hayward, Canadian junior middleweight boxing champion, for "flagrant and deliberate low blows" Wednesday night and declared Hayward's lightweight champ Bobby Haynes of Cleveland the winner in a scheduled 10-round bout between the two fighters.

BERLIN (AP) — East German Wolfgang Nordwig, pole vault gold medallist at the Munich Olympics, announced Wednesday his retirement from competition. In addition to the gold medal, Nordwig, 25, won a bronze at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics and he was European champion in 1966, 1969 and 1971.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers obtained Ron Harris from Atlanta Flames Wednesday and gave up Curt Bennett in a trade involving National Hockey League defencemen. Harris, 30, formerly of Detroit Red Wings, has two goals and four assists in 29 games this season. The 26-year-old Bennett has six scored and has one assist in 18 games.

HONOLULU (AP) — Al Ford of Edmonton, who outpointed Raul Montoya of San Jose, Calif., Wednesday night, is ranked seventh among lightweights in the World Boxing Association's ratings announced today.

Clyde Gray of Toronto is the only other Canadian included in the ratings, with a fifth-place ranking among welterweight contenders.

Giants Trade Ken Henderson

HONOLULU (AP) — Tom Bradley is a member of San Francisco Giants and Ken Henderson and Steve Stone are new additions to the Chicago White Sox roster after trading Wednesday at the winter baseball meetings.

"We now have the most powerful team in White Sox history," Chicago manager Chuck Tanner said after swinging a three-man trade, one of three in nine hours and the 10th swap in five days at the annual meetings.

Henderson, a hard-hitting centre fielder and Stone, a young pitcher of promise, were acquired by the White Sox for Bradley, a pitcher of proven quality.

Henderson, who hit 16 home runs for the Giants in 1972, joins sluggers Dick Allen and Bill Melton in the loaded Chicago lineup.

In an almost-simultaneous announcement, St. Louis Cardinals secured reliever Wayne Granger in a three-man trade with Minnesota Twins. The Twins landed outfielder Larry Hisle and pitcher John Cumberland.

Earlier in the morning, the Cardinals obtained infielder Ray Busse and Bobby Fenwick for catcher Skip Jutzke and infielder Milt Ramirez from the Houston Astros.

Meanwhile, commissioner Bowie Kuhn took some play away from the fast-talking general managers by delivering a pitch of his own at a press conference.

Kuhn, remarking that he hoped to prevent another strike like last spring's, revealed a new basic contract proposal from the owners to the Major League Players Association.

The package offered improvements in the reserve system, benefit plan, salaries and basic agreement contracts.

Kuhn said there was "still considerable difference" between the club owners and players' representatives.

CFL Expansion Looms

HAMILTON (CP) — The spectre of expansion to the United States is expected to loom larger than ever over the Canadian Football League when executive members met Friday.

"Expansion will be at the top, either the first item of business or very close to it," CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Wednesday.

Gaudaur said he was not surprised to learn that executives of the four Eastern Football Conference clubs had met in Toronto Saturday to discuss expansion and possible withdrawal from the CFL if moves toward expansion are not approved.

The expansion issue appeared to have died down last week after John Bassett, Toronto Argonauts owner, said he intended to withdraw a notice of motion to the CFL executive committee recommending expansion to the U.S.

Bassett said he would withdraw the motion after he had met with then federal health minister John Munro who had said earlier he would look into what guarantees the government might make to insure survival of the CFL without expansion to the U.S.

Gaudaur also met last week with Munro for talks on the implications of expansion.

Bassett said last week that in his meeting with Munro, he attempted to show the minister that the wealthier clubs, such as the Argos, could not go on subsidizing the remainder of the league.

Gaudaur was asked Wednesday if he has received official notice from Bassett that he intends to withdraw the expansion motion.

"No, I have not heard a thing," said Gaudaur.

"In fact Mr. Bassett did not file official notice that he would withdraw his notice of motion. He simply told me that he would withdraw it when the meeting convened."

"I was not surprised to hear that the Eastern Conference executives had met. That is their prerogative. They do not have to notify the league office.

"It was a most natural following up to the meeting Mr. Bassett and I had with Mr. Munro. I believe Mr. Leeb (Ottawa Rough Riders owner David Loeb) publicly expressed a desire to consult with Mr. Bassett as soon as possible, that he was anxious to have a first-hand report of the Ottawa discussions."

Gaudaur said he anticipated a "very interesting meeting" Friday.

"I'm looking forward to Inter-esting discussions. The pros and cons of expansion should not be discussed purely on nationalistic grounds. There are many areas of discussion – the economical, the import-non-import situation, what the effect would be on the National Football League.

"As a matter of fact, it would appear that the NFL has no intention of moving into Canada in the foreseeable future."

"If I shoot somebody do I get put in the penalty box with that handsome loft wing?"

Payoff Record at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A record Canadian pari-mutuel payoff was registered at Windsor Raceway Wednesday night when a winning ticket was cashed for $28,025.10 on a long-shot quadrachor combination.

To win a quadrachor requires proper handicapping of the first four horses across the finish line. Only one of the more than 4,000 harness racing fans at the raceway Wednesday night accomplished the feat. The winner was not identified by track officials.

Tweedy Time, 11-1, came home first, followed by Dollar Dan, 20-1, Constant Combat, 25-1, and Worthy Vow, 5-1.

The previous Canadian record, also established at Windsor Raceway in a quadrachor pool, was $25,778.90 last July 29.

NHL Expansion Next League Topic

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors will meet in Chicago next Monday and Tuesday and one of the topics for discussion will be the status of its two newest partners.

League President Clarence Campbell said Wednesday that the board "undoubtedly will review" progress made by groups from Kansas City and Washington.

At the NHL annual meeting here last June, conditional franchises were awarded to the two cities, with both scheduled to join the league for the 1971-75 season.

Ed Thompson, a real estate developer, heads the Kansas City group, while Abe Pollin, a contractor and owner of Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association, represents Washington.

Campbell said both groups have until Dec. 15 to qualify by completing all conditions of the conditional franchises they were awarded here.

Each group is expected to deposit $175,000 bonds by that date and to submit plans for financing their arenas.

Campbell also said the governors will review the league's over-all position in litigation concerning the new World Hockey Association and several other matters.

Lupenette Counts in Cornwall Deadlock

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — The Cornwall Royals and Drummondville Rangers were unable to find the range in overtime and had to settle for a 6-6 tie in their Quebec Junior A Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Rob Cease and Blair Macdonald both scored twice for the Royals who got single markers from Dan Lapkeiche and Brian McCullough.

Firmin Royer counted three times for the Rangers while Denis Drolet added two and Jean Tetreault one.

The score was tied 3-3 after the first period and Drummondville was ahead 5-4 after the second.

Macdonald scored twice in the third period to pull the Royals ahead 5-5, but Tetreault evened the count at the 18:03 mark.

The Royals mounted a furious attack in the 10-minute overtime period as Drummondville Rangers 13-4, but were unable to score. The Royals outshot Drummondville 46-39 over the course of the game.

The league resumes action Friday night with Cornwall at Laval; Montreal at Sorel, Drummondville at Shawinigan and Trois-Rivieres at Sherbrooke.

Defence Spending To Be Done Wisely

OTTAWA (CP) — "One of my main interests will be to see that the Canadian taxpayer feels that his money is being spent wisely."

The statement was made Wednesday by James Richardson, Canada's new defence minister, who in the next few months must make decisions involving the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars.

The minister brings some expertise into his new department. As the man in charge of acquiring the goods and services used by the government, he has been involved in armed forces procurement—present and planned.

He'll need it. At present the Canadian defence forces need:

—A new coastal patrol plane to replace 32 aging propeller-driven Argues. A figure of $800 million is mentioned often as the cost of this project, making it potentially the largest peacetime defence order.

—A replacement for the Centurion tank. The figure mentioned here is about $40 million.

—Replacements for trucks, some as much as 15 or 20 years old. No numbers or figures have been mentioned in this connection.

In addition the armed forces would like a new medium-capability helicopter, one that would carry a 20,000-to-30,000-pound payload or about 40 persons.

FAST SWIMMER

Some penguins have been timed in the water at speeds reaching 25 miles an hour.

Britons Might Yet Drive on Right Side

LONDON (CP) — With British entry into the European Common Market, British motorists face the possibility—still considered far off—that they will eventually have to drive on the right.

The only other Continental European country to drive on the left—Sweden—converted to right-hand driving in 1967.

One of those who have studied the problem, which he calls "enormous," is R. H. Clarke, senior assistant engineer of the Berkshire County surveyor's department.

Britain has 20 million drivers, 15.6 million vehicles and 380,000 miles of highway and apart from the physical conversion of the transportation system there would also be planning and administrative functions to be discharged—as well as the supervision of road safety matters immediately following the introduction of the new regulations.

The conversion of most modern vehicles—commercial and private—will not be technically difficult says Clarke. The British motor industry is a great exporter and nearly all its products are designed for manufacture in right- and left-hand drive versions—thus no major structural alterations will be necessary.

Nevertheless the cost is considerable and—Clarke estimated it perhaps as high as $2.4 billion. A large proportion of older vehicles may not be suitable for conversion.

Converting the public transport system will be a more complex process. For example, bus doors must be repositioned and there will be special problems with the staircases on double-decker buses.

Preparing the road network itself for right-hand driving will be the most extensive operation. Britain's roads serve an island which, with the exception of areas in the west and north, is highly urbanized and densely populated.

Reconstruction of intersections will be necessary to provide adequate visibility. Traffic islands may need resiting and traffic lanes, provided for turning vehicles and for slow-moving trucks on long gradients, will be on the wrong side of the road and will have to be realigned.

Existing deceleration lanes will need to be lengthened to fulfill their new role as acceleration lanes. Traffic signs, road markings and signal installations will all require alteration.

Document Disowned

TORONTO (CP) — A former Ontario government planner expressed disappointment Wednesday that a report he helped prepare last year should figure in the selection of a new international airport.

"Professionally, I want no part of that document," Peter Oehm told an inquiry hearing objections to the federal government's plan to expropriate 18,000 acres for the airport in nearby Pickering Township.

Asked by J. J. Robinette, lawyer for objectors, how long he had worked on the study, Mr. Oehm said:

"Without being facetious, a day-and-a-half, which is a fair comment on that document.

"We call it the eight-page wonder," he added. "It's not funny. It's really serious when a document like this is used in a matter as serious as this."

Teachers to Resign

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — About 95 per cent of teachers in Middlesex County separate schools plan to submit their resignations today, Robert Bird, district president of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Federation, said Wednesday.

Following a general meeting of Middlesex teachers, Mr. Bird said the resignations of 402 of the county's 425 Roman Catholic school teachers had been collected and will be submitted at board offices.

Mr. Bird said almost all teachers in the system's elementary schools attended and gave negotiators a firm mandate to negotiate for salary parity with public school teachers.

Meanwhile, Sarnia secondary school teachers plan to submit their resignations to the Lambton County Board of education today. Contract talks broke down last Thursday.

No-Student Apathy

Students with knapsacks and babies virtually took over the city hall entrance as they swarmed in to deposit nomination papers for various offices in this city's municipal elections. "We've never seen anything like this in Guelph," veteran city hall officials said.

North Is No Longer Colony Says Priest

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — People living in the North must be taken into consideration in the building of an all-weather highway and a natural gas pipeline to the Arctic, says Rev. Joseph Adam, Roman Catholic priest who has worked in the North for 16 years.

"The North isn't a colony any more," he said in an interview in a cluttered office in a church rectory in this northern community. The people would no longer accept being left out of sharing in the benefits of resource development in the North.

"A few of the people are starting to become restless."

Father Adam said the pipeline, on which construction is expected to start in the winter of 1975-76, would be too vulnerable.

"They haven't a chance to push it through unless they have the co-operation of the native people, of the people living in the North. The people will say no unless they have a share in the pipeline. They won't ask much at first, only one per cent, but later on they're going to ask for more."

If the people had a share in it, he said, then they would see that it went through.

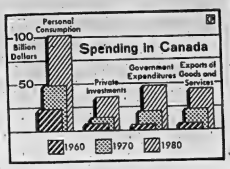
If the native people are just pushed aside, Father Adam said, violence might be the result . . . the pipeline might be blown up.

"I heard one native, an Indian from Fort Smith, say that if they don't do it (blow it up) in the North then we'll do it further south."

Father Adam said there won't be any organized violence but "you never know what will happen . . . one guy will be offered a bottle of whisky to blow it up and he'll do it."

Father Adam, a native of Belgium, said something has to be done about the situation where an Eskimo cannot say he owns even one square inch of land "where he was born and has been for 1,000 years."

"Ottawa has no business giving hunting and fishing licences to white people coming north, . . . This should be the Indians' prerogative."



"If an Indian girl marries a white man you make a miracle, you make an Indian girl a white girl so she has no right to trap and fish . . . . The white people made these laws themselves, not in consultation with the Indians."

Father Adam said welfare is good, but humiliating, and the native people will be smart enough to find out that the welfare money they get is taken from the liquor stores and the royalty from oil.

"They won't take that kind of life . . . these people are not any more the timorous people that we've known.

"The old people won't do anything, but the young generation—with a vermin of civilization—are going to do something."

Father Adam said the government has to talk to the native people, to the Indian Territories and to the Committee for Original Peoples Brotherhood of the Northwest Entitlement.

Spending

Graph shows how much was spent in 1960 and 1970 in the four categories of spending and the projected 1980 figures as seen by the Economic Council of Canada. The council says the biggest increases in spending will be in personal consumption and government expenditures. The federal advisory board proposed Thursday a set of performance goals it says should reduce unemployment and cut down the inflation rate. (CP Newsmap)

500 Million Years Of Existence Ending

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Pity the poor brachiopods. After 500 million years or so of living in areas of the Bay of Fundy the clamlike water dweller is dying out.

That's the way it appears to Alan Logan, a geologist with the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton.

Brachiopods live on rocky ledges in the ocean and are common creatures, says Mr. Logan. The species is as old as 500 million years in fossil records "but appear to be approaching extinction."

Mr. Logan and Jim Noble of UNB, along with Robert Webb, a graduate student, having been studying brachiopods in the Passamaquoddy Bay area of the Bay of Fundy.

Brachiopods have a localized distribution, said Mr. Logan, living in such areas as the coasts of Nova Scotia and Maine, and in Antarctic waters —"areas rich in plankton," the microscopic life on which many sea creatures feed.

The species we are studying are a cool-sea or variety and we are trying to determine the factors which control their distribution by studying their life habits."

There was evidence that at one time there were thousands of species but now only about 200 are known.

Why are they diminishing in numbers in the undersea world?

"Their life habits are much the same as clams and they may be competing and losing in the battle for food and living space," Mr. Logan said.

As one gets stronger, the other weakens."

A brachiopod is about three-quarters of an inch across and clam-like shape, something like a football with the ends more rounded.

The creature attaches itself to the bottom of a rock and lives communally with other sea creatures, although neither is dependent on the other, sharing the same living conditions.

The researchers have to dive between 25 and 100 feet to find the brachiopods, and bring the animals to the surface on their boulder homes, where as many as 50 to 100 of the tiny creatures have attached themselves.

"We have found as many as 700, but we really hit the jackpot that time," said Mr. Logan of the project, which has been under way for two years.

The work on the species is open-ended.

The researchers will return to the Passamaquoddy waters next spring.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, DEC. 1

Aries (March 21-April 19): From one experience to another is good enough as you strive to wind up the work week in good order.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In decision is normal for today—let matters take their own course while lunger before you try much of an intervention.

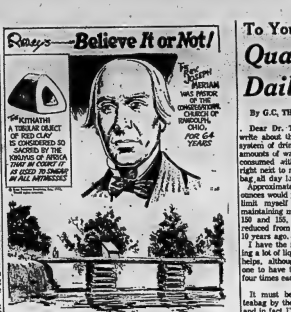
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Most of the day seems perplexing or confusing—it is easier if you hold faith that all eventually comes straight.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Home and family affairs continue interesting, with some decisions hanging—impatience doesn't help. Social contacts are Lively.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Experiments give mixed results. Generate a secondary problem: doing nothing would make things worse. Travel encounters diversion.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Planning the future has to be tentative. Wind up your work routines neatly, with as tidy a reserve set aside as means permit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gently does it! Seemingly settled matters do not stay put if you get in a hurry or take too much for granted.



Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Line up a list of unfinished projects, assign priorities and begin knocking off the backlog. You have no time to lose.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Wind the week down with as little fuss as can be managed. What's done can't be helped. Give yourself a break first.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): When all the uproar is quiet, nothing has been greatly changed. If you remain consistent you are in a stronger position later.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): By letting people find their own guidance, you learn something new and are spared much waste of time and energy.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Ongoing routines are hindered by temporary slips in arrangements, unfilled notes and the like. All comes into place.

Quart of Liquid Daily Reasonable

By G.C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write about the effect on one's system of drinking rather large amounts of water daily, usually consumed with tea. Hot water right next to my desk. One teabag all day long.

Approximately how many ounces would you think I should limit myself to? I work on maintaining my weight between 150 and 155, having gradually reduced from about 200 pounds 10 years ago.

I have the feeling that drinking a lot of liquid during the day helps, although it does cause one to have to get up three or four times each night.—G.C.D.

It must be a sorry looking teabag by the end of the day, and in fact I'm more concerned about that than about the amount of fluid you consume.

Thirst is the most accurate guide to how much water you need. Assigning an arbitrary number of ounces doesn't take into consideration the amount your nervous tension, and how much you get rid of in breathing.

But sipping can become a habit, too. (I take it for granted that you know you don't have diabetes mellitus or diabetes insipidus which can cause inordinate thirst.)

But if you insist on a specific figure, let's say that a quart a day wouldn't be unreasonable—remembering that your food also contains a good deal of water.

So I'd suggest a few more teabags. The best flavor comes from the first Steeping. After that, alkaloids (caffeine, theobromine and tannin) are extracted, along with bitter substances that you have especially tasty.

I'd also suggest that you cut down on the water intake around midafternoon to help you get a restful night's sleep instead of the trots three or four times.

So long as there is no swelling (take it), I see nothing to worry or weight gain (that is, you are alive). Except that dilapidated excreting as much fluid as you teabag.

The bidding:

Opening lead - Jack of hearts.

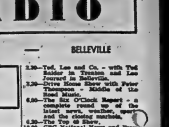
The great majority of mistakes made in bridge are of the common garden variety. A player who sits grimly and knows better than to control the particular error he makes, but for some unexplainable reason, he takes his eye off the ball at a critical moment. As a result, he sometimes gets punished inordinately for a relatively innocent miscalculation.

Consider this deal, where South failed to make three notrump in a relatively straightforward hand. West led a heart. Declarer won East's king with the ace and returned a low club. West went up with the king and led the ten of hearts, forcing out the queen.

South now had to go down one, whatever he led next. Actually, he returned the jack of clubs — West rising with the ace to cash three heart tricks and put a quick end to the matter.

Declarer would have made the contract had he taken the precaution of ducking East's king of hearts at trick one. He should have realized that if East had another heart to lead the defense could at most collect two hearts and two clubs to force him to nine tricks — while if East did not have another heart to lead, he would be unable to stop the contract regardless of what he decided to return.

The only combination of cards that could defeat the contract was for a defender to have five hearts and the A-K of clubs — and South should consequently have ducked the king of hearts to protect against this possibility.



There was no good reason to take the king, and every good reason not to take it. The hand required one simple play at trick one, and all that South had to do was to meet the challenge head-on.

One Old Lanc Still Flying

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP) — The elderly Lancaster bomber lumbered down the runway and greeted the cold morning air with a painful groan.

Terry Harrold watched her disappear over the grain fields and smiled proudly.

"Shes the only one in the world still flying. She's got quite a history."

During the Second World War the Lanc—as flying veterans call her—was the RAF's workhorse in delivering bombs to Germany. Now this survivor is as hard-working as ever, but delivering water in season to forest fires.

When the Lanc lifted off the gravel runway a few miles north of Edmonton, she was on her way to earn another payment for a new airport—one more chapter in Terry Harrold's dream.

The Lancaster is one of four vintage aircraft which make up the fleet of Northwestern Air Lease Ltd., a fledgling water-bombing company owned by Mr. Harrold and a partner.

The planes—the Lanc, two B-25 bombers and a small Beechcraft—fly only during the forest fire season. They are hired out to government forest services in the Northwest Territories, the Yukon and sometimes Alberta and British Columbia.

Profits from water bombing are used to help finance construction of a satellite airport which Mr. Harrold said is needed badly in the Edmonton area.

Much of the area's private and industrial air traffic is generated by the Edmonton Industrial Airport, a down town field often criticized for being dangerously crowded. Mr. Harrold said he hopes to be able to offer his country airport as a means of relieving pressure at Industrial.

Also, he said, his 190-acre airfield provides a low-cost base for Northwestern Air Lease.

Mr. Harrold, a commercial pilot in his late 30s, formed Northwestern with Peter Kuryluk about six years ago. Both had been flying water bombers for another company.

In 1969, they came up with the airport idea, bought the land and started work on the strip.

Initially, we felt that instead of paying out parking and land fees for our planes, we might as well put it into land for ourselves," said Mr. Harrold. "Then, we heard they might want to move smaller aircraft out of Industrial and felt this might be a good satellite airport."

Tragedy struck last year. Mr. Kuryluk was killed in the Northwest Territories when two water bombers collided as they tried to aid a downed helicopter pilot.

Mrs. Kuryluk became Mr. Harrold's partner.

The airport should be fully operational by spring, said Mr. Harrold. A large hangar has been built and an aircraft maintenance company has agreed to set up shop on the site.

Mr. Harrold's plan is to lease land to companies wishing to locate on the airport and to rent space to private aircraft owners and flying clubs. There is enough space to park 200 aircraft outside.

He estimated that next year the airport will begin paying for itself and funds from the water bombing company no longer will be needed.

"We're just on the threshold now. I don't expect we'll ever get rich out of it, but it gives us a base to work out of and it's just fun to try and build up something like this."

Potter's Advice

No House Calls? Then Change Doctors

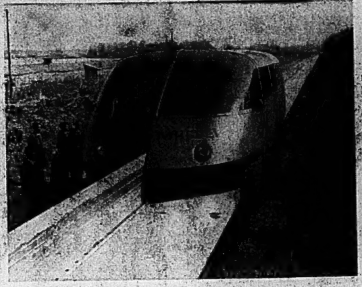
TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter says your physician should make house calls and if he doesn't, "change doctors."

Dr. Potter made the comment in the Ontario legislature Tuesday while calling for a new emphasis in health care, with more home treatment and less hospital treatment.

"I realize doctors are busy," said Dr. Potter, "but they're going to have to be prepared to treat people in their homes more than they have in the last few years."

There is no shortage of doctors in Ontario, he said, and time-oriented health care programs are feasible.

"We've got all the doctors we need," said Dr. Potter. "We don't have a shortage. There's a problem of distribution. We've got too many in the cities and not enough in the districts."



He said he is "hopeful" doctors will respond favorably to a trend toward home treatment. He said Ontario has fallen into the trap of believing that hospital treatment is necessary even for minor illnesses.

See Own Province

QUEBEC (CP) — The Discover Quebec program, sponsored by Tourbec (Quebec Students Office of Tourism) and the high commissariat on youth, recreation and sports, is encouraging young Quebecers to know their own province better. More than 600 youths have participated in the program since its inception in 1970, and although organized tours and visits have discovered areas of their province with which they were previously unfamiliar.

Tree Troubles

FREDERICTON (CP) — The city of Fredericton, famed for its collection of elms, is spending about $25,000 to $35,000 this year to remove up to 40 of the stately trees. City Engineer William Barrett says as many as 40 of the elms have contracted Dutch elm disease and may have to be removed. The city intends however, to maintain its elm population, having planted at least 350 new ones.

German Vehicle

This Krauss - Maffei experimental vehicle is already under test in Germany. Many of its technological innovations will be embodied in the system proposed by Krauss-Maffei for the test installation at Toronto's Exhibition Grounds. Each vehicle will be propelled by a linear induction motor and will accommodate 12 seated and six standing passengers. Magnetic attraction will be employed to hold vehicles just clear of the guideway, giving it a friction-free, noiseless ride. Control will be fully automatic. Cars may be linked to form trains.

Oxford English Verse Book Undergoes Major Revision

LONDON (C) — A much-loved literary institution which has graced the bookshelves of the English-speaking world for the whole of this century has undergone major surgery, and opinions are divided on its new form.

The New Oxford Book of English Verse, 10 years in the planning, retains fewer than half the contents of the familiar edition first brought out by Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch in 1900 and revised by him in 1939. That book has sold nearly 900,000 copies and, in the words of one reviewer, "ranks probably as the most profitable ambassador Britain has ever sent . . . abroad."

But there had been criticisms that Quiller-Couch's choice was too lyrical and too heavily romantic in the Victorian style, giving short shrift to England's rich heritage of political, satiric and dramatic verse. So Oxford University Press, publishers of the anthology, labbed a leading Oxford scholar, Dame Helen Gardner, to produce a new version.

Dame Helen's choice of the best English poetry of seven centuries, from 1250 to 1950, takes a hatchet to large chunks of the 19th century, chopping out, among others, Robert Southey, Alfred Noyes and Sir Henry Newbolt. In compensation, she includes among her 884 poems the whole of T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land, the whole of Coleridge's The Ancient Mariner and much larger slices of Pope, Dryden, Thomas Hardy, Gerard Manley Hopkins and W. B. Yeats.

In her preface, Dame Helen says she has treated Hopkins, Hardy, Yeats and Eliot as the four greatest poets of the last 100 years—as Quiller-Couch ranked Keats and Shelley.

The 64-year-old professor of English literature has also kept in touch with the times by including a number of poems which the publishers say would have seemed "unacceptably coarse and earthy" to Quiller-Couch, an aristocratic Victorian man letters and university don.

With the rich bulk of modern poetry to cover, Dame Helen also decided to restrict her poets to native Britons working "in these Islands." She has thus excluded poets of the Commonwealth and Americans with one exception—the late Ezra Pound, chosen because he was "at the centre of the modern movement in England."
